CHICAGO'S PARK FACILITIES EARN WORLD RENOWN

Recreation Centers a Great Asset.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago's recreational facilities in parks and playgrounds are one of the city's proudest assets. The beauty of the lake front development enraptures globe trotting visitors with its parks, beaches, boat harbors, lagoons, and shore drive.

Girdling the town to the landward is a 33,000 acre belt of forest preserve. Between this outer belt and the magnificence of the front yard shore line is a park and boulevard system which in itself for years has been renowned among the cities.

A few years ago a government report said probably no other American city provides in its parks so many elaborate and varied facilities for indoor recreation as does Chicago. Probably, also, in no other city do the people make more use of their parks.

A Recreational Paradise.

Under the recent merger of the former 22 separate park districts into one city-wide system the new Chicago park district controls 5,416 acres of parks, 176 miles of boulevards, including driveways within parks, and 78 fieldhouses where social, athletic, and recreational activities are provided for young and old.

As part of the plant are 12 bathing beaches, 41 swimming pools, 8 golf courses, and many athletic fields. Some cities have a greater park acreage in ratio to population, but few have their parks so well distributed or as easily accessible from the congested areas.

Supplementing this park system, the city government has jurisdiction over 78 small parks, 39 playgrounds and athletic fields, 3 bathing beaches, 3 natatoriums, 30 street end beaches, 18 public baths, and the municipal nursery. Attendance at these city beaches and natatoriums alone runs in excess of 11 million persons a year. The municipal baths serve more than 700,000, the park beaches millions more.

Parks Benefit Thousands.

Last January 1,937,289 men, women, and children were served by the park district's recreation division. It was the first month of the new program, which emphasizes community participation in park activities rather than in competitive interpark sports. In January 300,428 used park gymnasiums, 100,000 used the assembly halls, 90,000 the club rooms, 4,220 were in crafts classes, 618,000 skated on park ponds, 90,000 used the games rooms, and 95,000 the reading rooms. Some 570 men's basketball teams are now competing in local park district tournaments. The basic idea is to get fullest possible use of the parks for leisure time.

It is not a new idea. Long before the brain trusters appeared Chicago, under rugged individualism, was establishing neighborhood recreation centers for fuller enjoyment and use of leisure hours. It has aided in a materialistic way, too, for many factories have located here because of the recreational advantages afforded their employés and families.

In the outlying parks and reservations the Cook county forest preserves, with 33,000 acres, last year reported attendance of 18,000,000. They are worth a separate story.

52,000 Acres of Parkland.

In three Illinois adjoining counties—Du Page, Will, and Kane—are 2,000 acres of forest preserves, while 1,000 acres have been acquired by the Wisconsin counties of Kenosha and Racine. Indiana owns nearly 5,000 acres of parks, including the dunes, within easy reach of Chicagoans. Thus the report printed by the United States department of labor, prepared by the National Recreation association for 1930, says: "The total public park acreage in the Chicago region is in excess of 52,000 acres, or an average of more than 10 acres for every 1,000 people."

In addition are the great museums located within park boundaries, the zoos, the conservatories—incidentally, Garfield park conservatory has the largest floral display in the world, the collection, valued at $1,250,000, numbering 4,700 species and varieties of plants.

Along the outer breakwater, between Wilson and Montrose avenues in the Lincoln park extension, Chicago has what is probably the largest artificial bathing beach in the world. It is now half a mile long. It took 1,800,000 cubic yards of sand to make and it cost $1,134,000.

SEE NEW DEAL AT CROSSROADS AFTER 2 YEARS

Success or Failure Still at Issue.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The New Deal will be two years old tomorrow. President Roosevelt will complete the first two years of his term of office, a period packed with more momentous events than any peace-time biennium in our history.

As the President passes the halfway post of his term he finds the New Deal at the crossroads. Whether it is to be written down a success or a failure will be determined by the events of the second half of his quadrennium.

Although bulwarked by victory in the Supreme court's decision of the gold clause cases, the New Deal was jolted last week by three federal District court decisions adverse to the NRA and the TVA.

Revolt Raises Question.

Although the President received an impressive vote of confidence in the congressional elections last November the current revolt in the senate against the Roosevelt work relief program raises the question whether this development reflects a popular reaction against the administration.

Although the President has resisted so far the issue of fiat currency, although he is confident the huge public debt incurred and in the making can be absorbed by our national wealth, there is at this turning point widespread apprehension that a period of dangerous inflation is at hand.

Since that raw, windy day on which Mr. Roosevelt took the oath of office he has carried the country far toward that new economic and social order which is the professed objective of the New Deal and has employed the resources of the nation on a vast scale in the effort to check deflationary forces and induce the recovery of prosperity.

New Monetary System.

He has established a new monetary system with the dollar devalued, gold withdrawn from circulation, and specie payment suspended.

He has regimented agriculture and industry under government domination.

He has brought about the readjustment of debts in favor of debtors.

He has restored confidence in the banks, with deposits insured, with the government exercising greater control of the banking system and with the government owning preferred stock in half the banks.

He has raised wages, reduced working hours, and manipulated prices upward.

He has brought stock trading and the issuance of securities under strict government regulation.

U. S. Ownership Program.

He has inaugurated a vast program of government ownership and operation of public utilities.

He has begun the redistribution of urban and rural populations, with government financed homes for transferred families.

He has initiated legislation creating systems of unemployment insurance and old age pensions.

He has invoked measures for the redistribution of wealth.

He has launched in the Tennessee valley an experiment in government financed collectivism to achieve "the more abundant life" for backward population groups.

U. S. Engages in Business.

He has incorporated many government controled and financed corporations to enable the federal government to engage in business enterprise.

He has brought the telegraph and telephone systems and the radio under more complete governmental control.

He has put the unemployed on a federal dole and is now seeking legislation to take the jobless off the dole and put them on work relief.

He has expended 3 billions 300 millions on construction of public works to prime the business pump, and is now seeking 5 billions more for public works for work relief and additional pump priming.

He has established 53 emergency agencies manned by 100,000 new government employés to administer recovery and New Deal undertakings.

Granted Extensive Power.

He has been granted by congress more power than any President, except in time of war, to enable him to achieve recovery and carry forward the purposes of the New Deal.

He has increased taxes and proposed further increase of taxes aggregating 1 billion 000 millions a year.

He has borrowed 7 billions 600 millions and created a potential credit expansion of 34½ billions.

He has expended 12 billion 852 mil-

Samuel Insull on Trial Today as Embezzler

Samuel Insull, who in 1932 abdicated his shaky throne as utilities czar of the middle west, yesterday announced himself ready for his second trial on criminal charges since his arrest and return to America last year. He is slated to go trial on an embezzlement charge this morning in the Criminal court of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

Last Nov. 24 Insull and 16 of his former business associates won a verdict of not guilty after a trial in federal court on an indictment for using the mails to defraud.

Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora said yesterday the new trial involves $66,000 taken from the treasury of the Middle West Utilities company, of which Martin Insull, brother of Samuel, was president. The money was applied as margin on one of Martin Insull's brokerage accounts. The transfer of funds was made at Samuel Insull's order, the state charges.

Thompson Defends Transaction.

Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, Insull's defender, said there was nothing criminal in the transaction. The money was loaned by the Middle West company to the Mississippi Valley Utility Investment company, another Insull company, Attorney Thompson contends, and was charged against Martin Insull. It may have turned out to be a poor loan, he said, but at the time it was regarded as beneficial to all Insull security holders. The other company transferred the money to the brokerage account, Mr. Thompson said.

The transaction which forms the basis of this is similar to that for which Martin Insull was tried and acquitted in the state court after his extradition from Canada. Martin was found not guilty of embezzling $340,720 of Middle West's money which was used to bolster the market value of Insull stocks. Martin also was named with Samuel in the indictment on which Samuel will stand trial today, but the terms under which Martin Insull was extradited do not permit his trial on this charge.

Two Other Indictments Pending.

Aside from this trial, two other indictments are pending against the brothers. One names both in a charge of embezzling $104,000 of the Mississippi Valley company's funds for brokerage house margins, and in the other Samuel is charged with a violation of federal bankruptcy laws. According to Mr. O'Hora, Martin Insull is liable to trial only on one item of $20,000 in the $104,000 case.

The prosecutors do not expect any difficulty in the selection of a jury, and only the regular venire will appear in Judge Harrington's court today. In the other Insull trials few jurymen disqualified themselves and little or no prejudice was found, Mr. O'Hora said, so he hopes to conclude this trial by the end of this week.

KING OF THE BELGIANS REPORTED STRICKEN BY TROPICAL DISEASE

FOLKESTONE, England, March 3.—(AP)—King Leopold III. of the Belgians was reported tonight to be a sick man, suffering from a tropical disease. First reports of his surprise visit here with Queen Astrid said he underwent a slight operation on his eye.

The closest secrecy surrounded the condition of the king, who succeeded his father, Albert, when the latter was killed on a mountain climbing expedition a year ago. Lord Dawson of Penn, the personal physician to King George of England, and Sir Harold Gillies, famous plastic surgeon, held a long consultation after examining the Belgian monarch, it was learned.

AIR LINER MAKES 489 MILE TRIP IN 2 HOURS 11 MIN.

Albany, N. Y., March 4.—[Special.]—One of the fastest flights between Detroit and Albany ever made by a transport plane was completed tonight when a single motor, eight passenger plane of American Air Lines negotiated the distance of 489 miles in 2 hours and 11 minutes, avering slightly better than 240 miles an hour.

The plane was chartered yesterday to take Dr. E. G. D. Murray of Montreal to Detroit to perform an emergency operation. The record flight was made on the return journey, with Pilot R. V. Kent at the controls.

A Dark Alley, 24 Hens and a Tale of Woe

It was dark early yesterday in the alley back of a butcher shop at 500 South Halsted street. Only a faint glimmer from distant street lights penetrated the cave-like darkness to help Walter Swaggard, 35 years old, colored, in his work.

And it was work. Tugging hard, he had managed to pull a large crate of chickens out the rear door of the shop, and as he started bumping it down the few steps to the alley, two slats broke, and the squawking hens leaped to freedom.

It was a case of catch-as-catch-can. In every direction scurried two dozen frightened chickens, black Minorcas obscure in the shadows and white Wyandottes running crazily among trash barrels.

The Situation Looks Up.

The gasping Swaggard wished he were slumbering in the quarters he calls home at 905 North Union avenue. He had managed to grab only a couple of the white hens and was pausing to catch his breath when help appeared in the shape of two dim figures that entered the alley.

Caps pulled low over their foreheads, the two men stepped up to the colored toiler.

"What's the matter, bo?" asked the taller one.

"It's these here chickens," explained Swaggard. "They're the fastest moving critters I ever run into. How about lending me a hand?"

The two pitched in. Up and down the alley the chase ranged. Several times the two new hunters paused for breath, but in the end they had caught all the white hens and most of the black ones.

Generous to Own Detriment.

"How about taking a couple of these chickens home with you?" offered Swaggard. "I sure couldn't have caught more'n a couple without your help."

The two "helpers" looked at each other. There was an embarrassing pause.

"What will your boss say if we do?" asked the shorter man.

"My boss," laughed Swaggard. "What do you bums care about a boss? I'm doing a little heist here. You're welcome to a couple."

"Yeah, I'm a bum all right," answered one of the men, "——bum policeman. We thought you worked in the butcher shop."

The Situation Looks Down.

The two accommodating fellows were Detectives Kenneth Ebey and Edward Hazzard of the automobile detail. They found it necessary to make just one more catch. Then, with this catch and with the box of chickens, they went motoring to the detective bureau to find a crate big enough for Swaggard.

Judge Lindsey About to Rule on 'Wife Swap'

Los Angeles, Cal., March 3.—[Special.]—Superior Judge Ben Lindsey, whose outspoken expressions on "companionate marriage" and "liberalization" of divorce laws long have kept him in the public eye, is preparing to hand down a decision in the so-called Los Angeles "quadrangle" case. In this case are involved Mr. and Mrs. Walter Emerson and Mr. and Mrs. Barton Sewell. "Wife swapping" charges are an issue.

Judge Lindsey's public life has been turbulent. He was disbarred in Colorado Dec. 9, 1929, after a long and furious battle. His troubles continued in California. His right to sit on the Superior bench, after his election by a plurality of 420,000 votes over Ida May Adams, Los Angeles woman attorney, was assured only after state courts in successive decisions upheld his right to practice law in the state and to qualify as judge.

Ruled Illegally Elected.

The Denver "Boys' judge's" long service on the Colorado bench was terminated in 1927 by a Colorado Supreme court ruling that he had been illegally elected in 1924. The Denver Bar association accused him of attempting to disorganize the Juvenile court. He fought back, charging "political grudges," but formal complaints finally resulted in his disbarment.

Charges against Judge Lindsey were based on his acceptance of $47,500—$37,500 from Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes and $10,000 from Samuel Untermeyer of New York, her attorney— as "gifts" for services Judge Lindsey rendered while Mrs. Stokes' litigation seeking a slice of the estate of her late husband, the multimillionaire W. E. D. Stokes, was pending. Judge Lindsey, then on the Juvenile bench, described his services as "those of a mediator" and said that he accepted the money with the consent of County Judge George A. Luxford of Denver, his superior on the bench. He pointed out that Mrs. Stokes had been willing to accept $200,000, but finally received $3,000,000. No action ever was taken against Judge Luxford.

Helps Produce Picture.

While the Colorado case was still pending Judge Lindsey came to Los Angeles and applied for admission to the bar. Meanwhile he assisted in production of a motion picture titled "Companionate Marriage" in which some of his marriage views were exemplified on the screen. In May, 1928, Lindsey was admitted to the California bar after presentation of credentials showing him to be a member of the Colorado bar.

After his disbarment in Colorado his case came up again before the California bar. It was finally ruled that there was no "irregularity" in his admission.

About this time he began making addresses before a wide variety of organizations on his theories for revision of marriage and divorce codes. He debated with preachers. He spoke from the same platform with Margaret Sanger. He denied he was an advocate of free love, trial marriage or any weakening of the family tie, but contended that American family life was crumbling under pressure of outworn laws.

Reinstatement Is Denied.

Lindsey sought reinstatement before the Colorado bar. The Supreme court held that he would have to apologize for statements made in a book before

CRETE, THRACE AND MACEDONIA TORN BY REVOLT

ATHENS, March 3.—(AP)—The Greek government bombed the home of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos in the Island of Crete tonight in a grim effort to stamp out a fast growing revolt which had spread to Thrace and Macedonia on the mainland.

Bombs from airplanes and machine guns were turned on the residence at Canea of the 70 year old rebel leader and "grand old man" of Greek politics, but meager reports did not disclose whether he was home at the time.

The insurgents arrested M. E. Aposkitis, the governor general. Venizelos was said to have seized $1,000,000 from Canea's treasury to finance the revolt.

Flyers Return to Crete.

Government planes, after raining bombs upon warships seized Friday night by rebels in the navy, flew to Athens tonight for more munitions and returned to mutinous Crete to continue the bombardment.

The government announced the aircraft had overtaken the five rebel ships which they pursued yesterday down the Ægean sea. The cruiser Averoff was struck by an aerial bomb while the vessel lay in Souda bay, near Crete. Airmen reported seeing a tall column of smoke rise over the ship, leading to the belief she might have been put out of action.

Another official statement threw some doubt upon the report that all five ships had reached Souda bay. It said two of the ships had been overtaken and bombed near the Island of Cythera with undetermined damage.

Recapture Town from Rebels.

As the harassed government called out naval reserves reports came that the rebellion had reached Alexandropoulis and other towns in Thrace, in the northeastern corner of Greece, between Macedonia and Turkey.

Information that Seres, eastern Macedonia, had been recaptured from the rebels indicated the uprising was more extensive than at first believed. This was the first news of disturbances in that section.

Athens was quiet, although under martial law and in a state of siege. Following strict censorship, the government suspended some sections of the constitution. These were not specified. Passengers on a number of boats in the harbor here, many of them Americans, were forbidden to land.

Raid Venizelos' Athens Home.

The government searched the Athens home of Venizelos twice during the day and reported finding arms and compromising literature.

Gen. George Kondylis, minister of war, personally headed the search. They found Deputy Papanastitiu, recently an opposition spokesman, and another Venizelos associate named Caphandaris in hiding there.

The newspaper Estia said a number of leading politicians called a secret conference which was seeking means to bring order without further bloodshed.

Island Governor Held.

The resignation of Foreign Minister Demetrios Maximos, the arrest of the governor general of Crete, and the resignation of three other cabinet members announced yesterday combined to force the government to call the naval class of 1932 to the colors and to prepare for calling out army classes on the mainland if necessary.

It was learned that the revolt had been plotted for a whole year. It broke Friday when, by prearrangement, twenty Greek naval officers, both active and retired, lunched together at a well known stadium street restaurant in Athens, with uniforms concealed under mufti.

They were conveyed by motor cars to the Salamis arsenal, where they presented old or forged passes. The sentinel who questioned their authority was shot and killed by a high-ranking rebel and the revolt was on.

The five warships which sped down the Ægean sea for Crete yesterday under government gunfire were boarded while the crews were ignorant of the plan and put under steam.

An Appeal to People.

The Greek cabinet was in session all last night. George Pesmazoglu, minister of national economy, assured his colleagues there was no suggestion of a financial panic anywhere in Greece. The government then issued an appeal to the Greek people stating its determination to crush the revolt and restore order resolutely and rapidly.

It declared that certain seditious naval officers, inspired solely by party passions, had forced the crews of a number of naval vessels to sail for Crete, where Venizelos had encouraged them to take action. The decree calling the naval reserves was then published. It was announced that commercial planes on the Salonika-Athens route had been commandeered and converted into bombers to augment the air force.

No Parley with Rebels.

Rumors that the government intended to hold a parley with the rebels were said to be without foundation. Admiral Typaldos, who offered yesterday to mediate, attempted privately to bring about a reconciliation with Gen. Demestikas, one of the mutinous officers.

The general was said to have replied that it would first be necessary to call off the aerial bombardment of the mutinous ships. The government refused, and instead wirelessed the crews, appealing to them to support the government on the ground of patriotism.

The new minister of marine, Admiral Doumains, made several drastic changes today in the higher posts of the navy, dismissing some officials whose loyalty was suspected and replacing them with others regarded as more reliable.

Exiled Leader Leaves Cannes.

CANNES, France, March 3.—(AP)—Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, exiled Greek politician, left Cannes tonight by automobile for an undisclosed destination. There were no indications he intended to return to Greece.

Previously Plastiras, who was dictator for a day during a revolt in 1933, denied he had any hand in the present revolt. He said he was willing to return to power only at the call of the majority of the people and provided that former Premier Venizelos had no part in the government.

"I am a great friend of Venizelos and I like him immensely," the exiled leader said, "but we do not see alike. Venizelos is a parliamentarian and I am a soldier."

Gen. Plastiras said Venizelos took refuge in Crete, "where the entire populace is for him, because he feared for his life at Athens, where his assassination had already been attempted."

Maximo Admits Resignation.

PARIS, March 3.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Demetrios Maximos, after denying that he had resigned from office, finally admitted today that he gave up the job before coming to Paris for his "health."

Previously he had denied he had any intention of resigning but later confirmed Athens dispatches saying his resignation had been accepted. He emphasized that it was offered "long before the revolt."

MACEDONIA AND THRACE JOIN REVOLT

The revolt against the Greek government spread to Macedonia and Thrace last night. Dark portions on map show these two important sections in the northeast corner at Greece, as well as the Island of Crete, which was seized by rebel forces. Former Premier Venizelos is leading the rebellion. He lives in Crete and government flyers bombed his residence there in a grim effort to stamp out the uprising.

BIRTHRATE DROPS IN ITALY; IL DUCE REBUKES PEOPLE

ROME, March 3.—(AP)—Despite Premier Mussolini's campaign for more population, despite all his propaganda, subsidies, gifts, and decrees, Italy's birth rate is down heavily since 1922, the year of the advent of Fascism, figures revealed today.

If the birth rate had continued as in 1922 Italy would have 2,377,140 more persons within her borders, a semi-official statement pointed out. Il Duce demonstrated this fact to his people in many trenchant editorials in his newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, in Milan.

"Nearly two and a half million individuals unborn during twelve years," said the Popolo d'Italia, "signifies a slice four times larger than that taken from our people during the world war. The figure is impressive. The country is defrauded of more than a million males, that is, future soldiers. A million soldiers can decide the life of a nation."

The statistics the newspaper quoted showed that Dec. 1, 1921, Italy numbered 38,499,000 souls. The rate of increase of population was more than 9.6 per thousand. In 1922 the rate was 12.2 Between 1923 and 1925 this rate remained about the same.

But in 1926 it fell to 10.8, and in 1931 to 9.8. In 1934 it rose slightly to 10.

The population on Jan. 1, 1935, was 43,096,000 persons. However, it would have been 45,473,140 if the rate of increase had been maintained at 12.2.

BRITAIN RUSHES 7 WARSHIPS TO ISLE OF CYPRUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 3.—Three British cruisers and four destroyers tonight were ordered to proceed from Malta to the eastern Mediterranean in connection with the Greek revolt. Many inhabitants of Cyprus, sister isle of Crete, are violent Venizelists. They rebelled two years ago against British rule.

According to information reaching naval circles in London, which is well informed on affairs connected with the Greek fleet because the Athens navy was built and organized by Britain, the Greek government will be forced to come to terms with the mutinous sailors aboard five ships at Crete, as the cruisers Averoff and Helle are the navy's crack vessels.

If these ships are sunk or destroyed by bombs, the balance of naval power in the Aegean will pass into Turkish hands. It is declared the Greeks and British would do everything in their power to prevent such an occurrence. Meanwhile the order placed last week with Britain for two new destroyers has been temporarily suspended by the Greek government.

YOUNG CANADIAN LOSES JOB; DIES BY PLANE LEAP

TORONTO, March 3.—(AP)—A suicide leap from an airplane last night by James C. Grant, 22 year old son of a Nanaimo, B. C., bank manager, was disclosed today.

Smiling, and with a farewell wave of one arm, young Grant climbed from the cockpit of the plane 1,500 feet over an airport just north of Toronto and jumped to his death. Friends said he was depressed because he lost his job as a bookkeeper here a few months ago. His suicide was the fifth in a series from airplanes within the last two weeks.

Just before he leaped Grant handed Lieut. G. Ralph Spradbrow, instructor who was with him on the flight, a note absolving the instructor from blame in the affair. His crumpled body was found half a mile east of Barker airport.

SIAMESE RULER RETIRES TO LIFE OF PLAIN PRINCE

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 3.—"It's all over. The king has abdicated."

This laconic announcement tonight revealed that the 41 year old diminutive King Prajadhipok of Siam finally has renounced his throne after failure to settle the long drawn dispute with the Bangkok government.

Sitting alone in the library of the stately manison at Knowle Park in the village of Cranleigh, Surrey, where he has been residing with Queen Rambaibarni for several months past, the ex-monarch spent hours yesterday writing a six page abdication letter to his people. In the future he and his wife will be known simply as Prince and Princess Sukhodaya.

Sought Rights for Subjects.

The communication reveals the ex-king as probably the first monarch in history to abandon power because his government rejected his demands for greater freedom and democratic control for his people.

"My intention that the people should have a real voice in the policy of the government has been ineffective," the ex-king wrote. "Since I realize that now there is no longer any way of my assisting or protecting the people in the future, I hereby renounce all rights which I had as king or rights of succession, but I reserve the rights which I had formerly enjoyed before accession to the throne."

From the moment that Phya Bahol, the present prime minister, and his party seized power the ex-king declares his hope for changes diminished.

Will Live in England.

Late today the ex-king himself saw the newspaper men. Bareheaded and in a tweed suit and country shoes with the ex-Queen Rambaibarni in the background, Prajadhipok discussed his future plans.

"We intend to remain at Knowle until June. Then we will go to Switzerland for a while. After that my movements are still uncertain."

He refused to discuss politics, but before returning to the house he paused to request newspaper men to avoid using his former flowery titles. "Please, whatever you do, do not refer to me as possessor of 24 umbrellas or brother of the moon or anything like that," he pleaded, "that's all bunk."

Claim Boy to Be King.

LONDON, March 3.—(AP)—The London Daily Mail in a dispatch from Lausanne, Switzerland, said tonight the throne of Siam was formally offered to 11 year old Prince Ananda. To a modest "pension" in Lausanne, where he is enrolled in an exclusive school, the Mail said the invitation was conveyed to the shy prince by the Siamese minister to Paris.

ALFONSO'S 2D SON TO WED MEMBER OF BOSTON FAMILY

Jaime and Bride Will Visit United States.

ROME, March 3.—(AP)—Social roads led to Rome today as Europe's royalty and aristocracy prepared for a brilliant wedding tomorrow uniting American blood with the royal family of Spain.

At 11 o'clock in the centuries old Church of St. Ignatius, Don Jaime, second son of former King Alfonso of Spain, is to marry Emmanuela de Dampierre, granddaughter of the former Josephine Curtis of Boston and descendant of three centuries of illustrious makers of French and American history.

The nuptials are expected to surpass in brilliance even the wedding of Prince Torlonia and the Infanta Beatriz, daughter of Alfonso, who returned from their honeymoon in the United States for the ceremony.

Ex-Queen an Absentee.

Scores of members of royalty, the most important figures of Spanish, French, and Italian society, and well known persons from other countries, including the United States, are here for the occasion.

The mother of the bridegroom, former Queen Victoria, and the father of the bride, Count de Dampierre of Paris, however, will not be present. United States Ambassador Breckenridge Long, Mrs. Long, and other members of the diplomatic corps will attend.

Despite the wishes of Alfonso, no such loyal demonstration for the former monarch will occur tomorrow as marked the previous wedding, although more than 500 enthusiastic royalists have arrived from Spain for the wedding. For fear of embarrassing Italian authorities they have been requested to refrain from public expression of their loyalty.

Mass by Exiled Primate.

The high wedding mass will be celebrated by Cardinal Segura, former primate of Spain, who was forced by the revolution to flee the country. Afterwards the couple will pray at the tomb of St. Peter and be received in private audience by Pope Pius.

On Tuesday they leave for London to visit the queen mother and afterwards will embark on a honeymoon cruise which will carry them through the Aegean sea and up the River Nile. Later they hope to visit the United States.

This afternoon Alfonso was host at a reception for Spanish royalists from Spain. A wealth of lace brought as a wedding present from Spain was exhibited.

"Beware of Matches," She Writes; Turns On the Gas

Mrs. Dorothy Haynes, 30 years old, who lives in Mount Auburn, Christian county, was revived last night by a fire department rescue squad after she was found unconscious in the gas filled kitchen of her brother's home at 2808 North Sawyer avenue. When the firemen arrived in response to a report that gas was escaping from the home they found a printed note tacked to the door. It read: "Beware of Matches—Danger." Harry Mulberry, the woman's brother, said Mrs. Haynes was despondent over separation from her husband.

MOSCOW SCORES GERMAN ARMING, WARLIKE MOVES

Fate of Peace Pact Seen in Simon Visit.

MOSCOW, March 3.—(AP)—Newspapers published long articles today stressing Germany's military strength and warning of her alleged aggressive intentions toward Russia. They linked these with reports of the forthcoming visit to Berlin and Moscow of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary.

The chances for a general peace agreement depend very much on whether Sir John, looking into the eyes of the Germans, believes what he sees there, said Izvestia, organ of official opinion in the U. S. S. R.

Wants "Hands Free."

If he does, said the paper, the situation in eastern Europe will "become more tense," and this possibly will lead to "very bad results."

The real reason Germany rejects an eastern Locarno pact, Izvestia insisted, is "to have her hands free to provoke a war."

Nicholai Bukharin, editor of the paper and former secretary of the communist international, signed an article which denied a report that France and the soviet union had concluded a far eastern agreement, terming it a German invention concocted by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, a high Nazi official.

Holds Fate of Peace Pact.

The press as a whole stood by the attitude of Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov, expressed in his recent note to England and France, that if the powers weaken in favor of Germany's objection to an eastern pact the U. S. S. R. cannot accept the London peace proposals.

The paper said that by this sanctioning of armaments England suggested that others arm in order to have their interests considered. The U. S. S. R. was wrong when it thought England diplomacy was fighting for armament reductions, it concluded.

3 MILLIONS COST OF MAINTAINING THE PRESIDENT

Annual Upkeep Expense of Office Mounting.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The cost of maintaining the presidential establishment, which has been increasing steadily, topped 3 million dollars in 1934.

The President occupies the most valuable establishment in the world that is set aside for a ruler. The official valuation is 18 million dollars—$15,700,000 for the grounds and $2,300,000 for the White House and other improvements. Its rental value is $1,800,000 a year.

Running of the mansion cost more than $600,000. An addition to the executive office building cost $325,000. This brought the total White House cost in 1934 to more than $2,700,000.

Cruise Costs Half Million.

Maintenance of the President outside of the White House also was costly. An extended cruise to Hawaii cost $500,000. Maintenance of yachts for shorter cruises was estimated at more than $60,000.

Against these expenditures President Roosevelt has a salary of $75,000 and a yearly allowance of $25,000 for traveling expenses. The overwhelming balance is met, except for the White House rental, which is purely hypothetical, as the mansion is the property of the people, by congressional appropriations.

The budget set down the expense of the White House for the year 1934 as $442,050, but the actual cost is greater than this figure indicates.

There are military and naval aids carried on army and navy pay rolls. Outside the White House nobody knows how many White House clerks, stenographers and other employés are being carried on the pay rolls of other departments.

Office Cost Is Mounting.

The executive office proper cost $113,188. In the next fiscal year it is estimated it will cost $125,884. Its salary list was headed by Louis Howe, secretary to the President, who draws $10,000 a year. The two assistant secretaries, Marvin McIntyre and Stephen Early, each take $9,500.

Salaries of the 34 other employés range from two laborers at $1,179 each to an executive officer at $7,000.

There was further provision for the executive office, listed in the budget as contingent expenses. This total was $38,452, and will total $50,350 in the next fiscal year. Of this $15,480 went for a superintendent, three chauffeurs, an assistant chauffeur, a foctman, and a washer. The balance was for stationery, record books, telephones, telegrams, furniture, autos, and other expenses.

President's Pay Included.

There also was a special budget item of $2,700 for letterheads and envelopes, speeches and documents, printing and binding, bringing the grand total for the executive office to $267,840. The grand total includes the President's salary and travel allowance, and Vice President Garner's salary of $15,000 a year.

For the care, maintenance, repair, alteration, heating, lighting, and other maintenance of the White House and grounds the appropriation was $173,210. The government pays all White House expenses except the cost of the food consumed by the President, his family, and his guests.

There was a pay roll under this appropriation of $88,423. Among the 58 persons maintained the year round on this roll there are 4 butlers, 3 cooks, 1 valet, 5 maids, and 7 gardeners. A number of temporary gardeners and other employés received $7,800.

The White House coal bill was $3,919. The laundry bill was $4,736, the electric bill $10,422, and the gas bill $712. The greenhouse cost $5,208, and repairs to furniture, furnishings and equipment $13,025.

$2,000 for Landscape Plan.

An index of the manner in which the White House grounds are cared for was given recently in an allotment by the Public Works administration of $2,000 for a study and preparation of a general plan for improvement of the grounds. None of this will be spent on actual landscaping.

The PWA provided the $325,000 for the addition to the executive offices. The elaborate structure has 67 rooms and offices and 15,000 square feet of office floor space, excluding corridors.

The new quarters, which the President took over in December, have air conditioning systems, installed at a cost of $80,000. The President has an individual air conditioning unit serving his office quarters and no others.

Fifteen rooms on the third floor of the building include four set aside for Mrs. Roosevelt. Here secretaries attend to her correspondence and social affairs.

Pay $9,301 for China.

The only information available on White House furnishing is the recent expenditure for the new White House china. For 1,720 pieces of china for White House dinners, $9,301 came out of the contingent expenses funds and taxpayer pockets.

On state occasions this china graces a table decorated with flowers from the executive mansion greenhouse. Additional flowers often are obtained from the department of agriculture's experimental greenhouse, supported at an annual cost of $71,239.

Away from the White House the President was maintained last year at a cost comparable with the outlay for the executive mansion, although not in its accustomed luxury. For weekend cruises he has the yacht Sequoia.

The expense of the upkeep of the yacht is borne by the navy department. That department's report on naval expenditure gives the basis for an estimate of the annual cost of the yacht's operation at $55,000, in the first three months of its operation the craft cost $13,854.

Tender Costs $12,000 Yearly.

When the navy took over the Sequoia to take the place of the presidential yacht Mayflower, sold by President Hoover, it also took over the coast guard patrol boat, Cuyahoga, and fitted her up as a tender for the Sequoia. Whenever the Sequoia takes the President, cabinet members, and other New Dealers on week-end cruises the Cuyahoga goes along under command of the President's naval aide. The Cuyahoga stands the taxpayers about $12,000 a year.

When the President decided upon an extended cruise to Hawaii last year on the adjournment of congress, the Sequoia was deemed too small a craft for such an excursion. The cruiser Houston was assigned to this duty. The cruiser New Orleans went along as a presidential escort and transport for representatives of press associations. This junket cost taxpayers $500,000.

The President has had at his beck and call government experts on almost anything that would interest him. He could study astronomy or make mousetraps and find federal employés to help him.

May Gratify Every Wish.

The privileges attached to the office are multitudinous. If he wished to go fishing the bureau of fisheries could be called upon to detail an expert to lead him to trout pools. He could command and commandeer for his pleasure anything from a forest retreat to an army polo pony.

He may and does have movies shown for himself in the White House. Every resource of the government awaits his call. Even the congressional library suspends the limitation on withdrawals in his favor.

ON POLICE FORCE 43 YEARS

Lieut. William Blaul, 5753 North Talman avenue, who will be 68 years old Wednesday, and who has spent 43 years on the police force. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Hopeful on Outlook

Lieut. William V. Blaul, who will be 68 years old next Wednesday, looked back yesterday on his 43 years of police service in Chicago and expressed optimism over the future of society's ceaseless war on crime.

"There has been an increase in crime in proportion to the increase in population and the increase in wealth," Lieut. Blaul said. "We can curtail crime and keep it from becoming a factor in the every day life of the average citizen. With honest policemen to make arrests, honest prosecutors to present cases, and honest judges to conduct trials, crime can be kept in its place as a mere occasional incident with which ordinary folk come in contact rarely.

"There is no need for third degree methods in prosecuting criminals. Honest police procedure, preserving the constitutional rights of the accused, will work."

In 1903, Lieut. Blaul, then a sergeant, ran down the notorious "car barn bandits," three ruthless killers. They were convicted and hanged after their arrests won for Blaul the highest police honors.

Lieut. Blaul is now assigned to the Town Hall police, but he is a former commander of the state's attorney's police detail and a former deputy chief of detectives, in which capacity he acted from time to time as chief. With him at 5753 North Talman avenue lives his daughter, Mrs. Edna Chapman. His wife died last September.

HOLMES WEAKER; CHIEF OF UNIONS CALLS AT HOME

Jurist Conscious as Doctor Visits Him.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—(AP)—Oliver Wendell Holmes tonight was reported still in a "disturbing condition" with no indications of improvement.

Mark Howe, secretary to the 94 year old jurist, said that Dr. Thomas A. Claytor had made his last regular visit for the night and would not return unless there was a change in the condition of the jurist.

Gets Oxygen Treatment.

Ex-Justice Holmes was being administered oxygen at regular intervals in an effort to combat the bronchial pneumonia with which he was stricken last week.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was among those who called at the Holmes home to ask the condition of the former Supreme court justice.

"Mr. Holmes is conscious and he is not suffering," Howe said during the morning shortly after the physician had reported the sick man "a little weaker."

Wounded During Civil War.

Save for a major operation after he became a Supreme court justice, this probably is his first really serious illness since the jurist was wounded during the civil war when an officer with the 20th Massachusetts Volunteers.

Mr. Holmes was wounded in the breast at Ball's Bluff on Oct. 21, 1861, and at Antietam he was shot in the neck.

Today Justice Brandeis, one of his most intimate friends, called to inquire about him almost hourly. The first visitor to the Holmes residence this morning was Prof. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard law school.

5 PLANES JOIN HUNT IN AFRICA FOR LADY YOUNG

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia, March 3.—(AP)—Five airplanes from the Union of South Africa joined the search today for Lady Young, wife of the governor general of Rhodesia, missing since Thursday with Dr. J. Kerby when their airplane was forced down in the bush country. Four other planes were already in the hunt, while 200 native troops and 170 railway employés were beating the bush 10 to 15 miles from the railway line between Monze and Mazubuka, northern Rhodesia.

THREE ARE SEIZED AS COUNTERFEITERS ON A LARGE SCALE

New York, March 3.—(AP)—A counterfeit ring which government agents said had flooded five states in the last year and a half with $200,000 to $250,000 of fake 5 cent pieces was smashed today with the arrest of three men in a farmhouse near Goshen, N. Y.

Directed by Alan G. Straight, chief of treasury department agents in New York, a raiding force waited all night at the house in Chester township and arrested Louis Ehlers, 42, who said he was a garage mechanic, and Leo Gallie, 39, machinist, who were found in the building. Both said they lived in Florida, a small town near Goshen.

The third man, who gave the name of George Ehlers, 40, brother of Louis, was arrested when he arrived in an automobile bearing a Delaware license.

Three hydraulic presses, one of four and a half tons, with a total capacity, the agents said, of 15,000 to 20,000 nickels a day, were found in the basement of the abandoned farmhouse.

Metal lathes, a gasoline power plant, and other tools were found in the completely equipped machine shop.

FRANCE ARRESTS BEAUTY AND NAVY OFFICER AS SPIES

BREST, France, March 3.—(AP)—The arrest of a beautiful woman on charges of naval espionage, along with her friend, a young French naval lieutenant, was surrounded with secrecy today. She and the officer were taken into custody as they were about to board a train for Paris.

Police disclosed that she was 30 years old and of Swiss or German origin, although she speaks English and French fluently. She had registered at a hotel here under the name of Oswald but police said they found passports bearing other names in her baggage.

STREET CAR AND AUTO BUS STRIKE CRIPPLES DUBLIN

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 3.—(AP)—Dublin's streets were almost deserted today as a transportation strike went into full effect, holding street cars and buses idle.

Taxicabs and even the famed Irish "jaunting cars" were in great demand. No trains operated from Kingsbridge station, principal terminus of the Great Southern railway. Some 2,000 workers were affected as two unions, the Amalgamated Transport and the General Workers' union, agreed to walk out. Both were protesting the discharge of an employé.

E. P. Hart, secretary of the Amalgamated union, predicted the strike would be of long duration.

lion dollars, incurred a deficit of 7½ billions and increased the public debt from 21 billions to 28½ billions.

When a President completes the first half of his mandate from the people it is the custom to take stock of his stewardship. Has he made good? Everybody asks. Has he accomplished what he set out to do or made such progress as to warant confidence that he will do the job in the remainder of his term? Is the country better off than when he took hold?

Mr. Roosevelt and the other New Dealers answer all these questions in the affirmative. The New Deal, they say, has lightened the burden of debts and set the country upon the path of recovery, as is evidenced by increased industrial activity and improved business and agricultural conditions generally.

Antis Give Negative Answer.

The anti-New Dealers give negative answers, asserting that such real recovery as may be in progress has been accomplished in spite of, not because of, the New Deal, that improvement in business, industry, and agriculture is largely illusory and ephemeral, having been artificially superinduced by the increased purchasing power created by the gigantic outpouring of government funds in subsidies, grants, unemployment relief, and loans.

Upon the fruits of the New Deal up to date there is no more agreement than upon the bank panic by which it was ushered in. The Democrats said the panic was the logical culmination of Mr. Hoover's ineptitude in dealing with the depression. The Republicans said it was the manifestation of distrust of Mr. Roosevelt.

Point to Vigorous Action.

There is little disagreement, however, on the vigor and reassuring confidence with which Mr. Roosevelt acted to halt the panic and to reëstablish a system of solvent banks to which frightened depositors soon returned their money. He found a country plunged in the uttermost depths of despair and inspired it with fresh hope. Then he began to unfold the New Deal upon the results of which there is now such divergent opinion.

When Mr. Roosevelt took office there were 13,689,000 persons out of work, according to the American Federation of Labor figures. There are now 11,329,000 unemployed. According to the NRA there were 11,880,000 persons unemployed in 1933 in the industries that later were brought under codes, compared with 8,416,000 today.

In the two years of the Roosevelt administration the number of workers reëmployed is 2,360,000, according to the federation of labor; 3,464,000, according to the NRA. Mr. Roosevelt recently stated that 4 million workers have been restored to jobs. Both the federation and the NRA figures show that there are more unemployed today than a year ago.

More Persons on Relief.

When the Roosevelt administration came in there were 4,560,000 persons on relief. Last fall there were 4,629,000 persons on the dole, including 390,000 added to the rolls by the drouth. Including members of families there were about 18¼ million persons subsisting on the dole when Mr. Roosevelt took office. The relief administration stated yesterday that the number today is about 20 million, or 16 per cent of the population. The increase of 1¾ million is due partly to the drouth, partly to increased unemployment in the last year and partly to the shifting of destitute persons from state to federal relief rolls.

In the last two years the dole has cost the federal government 2½ billion dollars. In March, 1933, it was costing the federal government about 50 millions and state and local governments about 30 millions a month. Now it is costing the federal government 150 and state and local governments 35 millions a month.

Working Hours Reduced.

Under the government regimentation of business effected through the NRA the average number of hours worked in manufacturing industries has declined from 36.6 a week to 35.7. That is, the average wage earner works nine-tenths of an hour less every week now than before the New Deal. Average earnings have increased from 43½ cents to 55.2 cents an hour, a raise of 11.7 cents an hour. On Saturday the average worker received formerly $15.75. Now his envelope contains $19.73, according to NRA statistics, an increase of $3.98 a week.

By last December, however, when the latest figures were compiled, this 25 per cent increase in the average weekly wage had been more than half wiped out by a 13 per cent increase in the cost of living since March, 1933. The cost of food, as a result of the drouth, of dollar devaluation, and of the artificial manipulation of farm product prices upward by the AAA, is now going up by leaps and bounds.

Food Costs Increase.

Already food is costing 34 per cent more than two years ago. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace estimates that food will cost 11 per cent more within the next four months, and other necessities 4 per cent more. The time, therefore, appears near at hand when the wage earner after paying his bills will have relatively little more in his pay envelope at the end of the week than he had before the advent of the New Deal.

The NRA figures show that when Mr. Roosevelt became President the volume of production in all manufacturing industries had fallen to 48.7 per cent of the level of 1929. Now it is up to 63.9 per cent. Thus there has been a 31 per cent recovery in manufacturing. All business activity was at its lowest point in the first quarter of 1933 and has now made an 18 per cent comeback toward the level of 1926, which is taken as the normal of prosperity.

Slip Back After Rise.

Industrial corporation profits had reached an all time low in the last quarter of 1932 and were on the way upward again when Mr. Roosevelt took the helm. Then they were 7 per cent of the 1926 amount. After the establishment of the NRA they rose to 37 per cent about a year ago, but now have slipped back to 26 per cent. The average corporation today, according to these NRA statistics, is making nearly three times as much money as it made two years ago. Industrial stock prices are 81 per cent higher.

Two years ago the total national income had sunk to half of the 70 billions which the population received in 1929. Now it is back to about 44 billions, a 25 per cent recovery.

As a result of the drouth, dollar devaluation, and measures of crop curtailment under the AAA the prices of farm products at the farm have increased 95 per cent. With his products bringing him more money at elevator and stock yards, with his mortgage refinanced by the government at a lower interest rate and with the subsidy he ras received from the AAA, the farmer is feeling much better off today than two years ago. Including the government subsidies the aggregate farm income is estimated by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at about one billion dollars more in 1934 than in 1933.

Farmers have received from the federal government a little more than half a billion dollars in rentals and benefits in connection with crop curtailment and 170 millions for removal of surplus products from the market. To finance these subsidies processing taxes on farm products have been levied in the aggregate of 641 millions. The processing taxes operate to increase the prices of farm products, so that consumers eventually foot the bill for the increased income of the farmers.

Altogether, therefore, there is a showing of improved business and improved agriculture under the New Deal. The big question is to what extent the improvement is due to the distribution of 12 billion dollars of government funds which has gone into circulation with the result of temporarily increasing purchasing power. That this priming of the business pump is largely if not almost wholly accountable for the improvement is evidenced by the fact that the industrial production chiefly stimulated is that of food, clothing, automobiles, and other consumers' goods.

The industries producing machinery, buildings and other durable goods are still stagnant except to the extent that steel production has been stimulated by the demand for automobiles which people with the newly increased purchasing power provided by government funds are buying. The President's view is that the durable goods industries will not revive until the surplus of durable goods produced in boom times is absorbed.

LIBERTY LEAGUE HITS 30 HOUR WEEK; SEES PROGRAM AS UNSOUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—Strong opposition to the imposition of a 30 hour week on the industry of the country was expressed tonight by the American Liberty league. The league, a nonpolitical organization, numbering among its leaders Al Smith and John W. Davis, recently was formed to combat radicalism and excesses in federal and state governments.

The league reported on the Black bill, now under consideration by the senate judiciary committee, and the Connery bill before the house labor committee. The league declared both bills do violence to constitutional principles, are based on fallacious economic theories, and would impose on the federal government an impossible enforcement task involving a tremendous expansion of Washington burocracy.

"Both bills seek to control conditions of production," the league said. "Such a step is a flagrant departure from constitutional principles. While the constitution permits regulation of interstate commerce, the courts never have construed commerce as synonymous with production.

"The bills represent a repudiation of the right of freedom of contract, as guaranteed by the due process clause of the fifth amendment to the constitution."

ELEVATED ROAD PROVES ITS NEED BY ITS ABSENCE

27 Hurt in Year at City's No. 8 Death Corner.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago's No. 8 death corner is the simple two street intersection of Western avenue and 63d street, with no physical reasons apparent for its being more dangerous than 15,992 other corners in the city except for the unusual width of the north and south thoroughfare.

The special hazards become apparent only after a survey of trafic at this south side intersection and a review of the accidents that caused personal injuries to twenty-seven men, women and children in a year.

An Elevated Highway Argument.

As a result of this survey and study, Leslie Sorenson, engineer for the bureau of streets, and George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, proposed measures that would reduce the risks in a minor degree, but they both agreed that a substantial reduction in the toll will be possible only when fast "through" trafic is removed from the surface streets to elevated highways, where there can be no pedestrian hazard.

Eight of nine motorist accident victims among the 27 at this corner were hurt in head-on collisions. Four of the eight, according to the police records, were attempting a left turn, while for the other four the records do not describe the manuever that resulted in a crash.

Little is suggested by the engineers for alleviating the risk of head-on smash-ups. It was pointed out, however, that on an elevated highway left turns are segregated and trafic bound in opposite directions is separated by a medial curb, making the head-on collision physically impossible.

18 Pedestrian Victims.

Eighteen of the victims at the Western avenue and 63d street intersection were pedestrians. There are no pedestrians on an elevated highway. Of course, even with the construction of an elevated highway, the sidewalks would still be used by transferring street car patrons and by local shoppers—probably more local shoppers—with the hazard of street crossings lessened. But the walkers would no longer be exposed to express motor travel now required to move on the surface streets.

A study of pedestrian accidents at the No. 8 death corner indicates that control of their movements for their own protection could be handled much more effectively. Of the 18 victims, three were knocked to the pavement after stepping off the curb to reach a street car loading platform. Two were hit as they stepped off the platform. Four others were felled while crossing the street a few yards off the cross walk away from the intersection.

Advocates Cross Walk Use.

"These nine," said Mr. Barton, "might not have been hit had they been using the cross walk. Some city's have herded the pedestrians onto the cross walks by having iron fences bordering the street car loading platforms."

Mr. Sorenson opined that such fences in Chicago would be knocked down by the overhanging bodies of trucks. "Safety island" really is a misnomer for these loading platforms as illustrated by the fact that two of the 18 pedestrian victims at 63d and Western were struck by motor trafic while standing on the "safety" platform.

"We could get the same results and keep pedestrians from jaywalking to and from the street cars," said Mr. Sorenson, "by building a fence on the sidewalks about eight inches from the curbs opposite the loading zones. There is no legal parking opposite these zones, so retailers could not complain that they would lose accessibility by motorists."

"Such pedestrian barriers are being erected in London," the motor club engineer continued. "They're practical for opposite street car loading zones but you'd still have midblock jaywalkers. The fences could not be used there because the business houses would lose ready accessibility from the street.

Suggests "Sidewalk Curb."

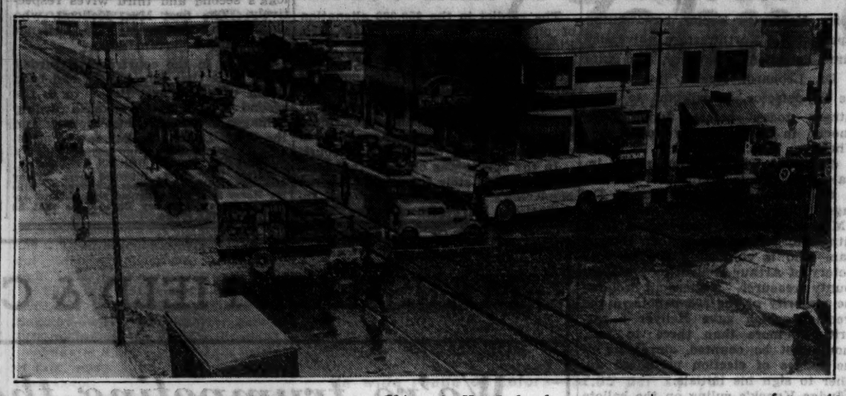
"I don't know of any city using it, but I believe a sidewalk curb would effectively discourage midblock jaywalking. It would be built about 16 inches from the outer edge of the sidewalk so that doors of automobiles could open to discharge passengers. Eighteen inches high and of colored concrete, they would restrain jaywalkers and at the same time not bar motorists entering and leaving their cars."

Eight of the 27 personal injuries in 12 months at 63d and Western avenue not heretofore accounted for in this article—include one motorist hurt in a rear end collision, five pedestrians hit by turning automobiles, and two pedestrians felled while walking against the red lights.

AUTO KILLS INDIANA HIKER.

Aguila, Ariz., March 3.—(AP)—Gustave Toepke, 55, of South Bend, Ind., was killed when struck by an automobile as he walked along the highway 15 miles east of this city today.

FENCES FOR PEDESTRIANS PROPOSED HERE



Here, at 63d street and Western avenue, Chicago's No. 8 death corner, engineers propose fences to control pedestrians as a measure of relief from trafic hazards that injured 27 persons at this intersection in twelve months. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

JOYRIDER KILLED AS STOLEN TRUCK HITS STREET CAR

Driver Believed Hurt; Flees Fiery Wreck.

Frank Ribelis, 19 years old, 3244 South Morgan street, was fatally burned early yesterday morning when a delivery truck of THE TRIBUNE stolen Saturday night from the loading platform at Tribune Tower, burst into flames after it crashed into a street car at 51st street and Artesian avenue.

At the Southtown hospital Ribelis told his sister that a friend invited him to ride in the truck and that he did not know it was stolen. Police said the "friend" he named was seen with a bandaged arm after the accident and he is being sought. Ribelis' companion was driving the vehicle.

Knocks Car Off Track.

The truck, being driven north in Artesian avenue, collided with a street car west bound in 51st and knocked it off the track. The machine careened against a trolley wire pole and wedged between the pole and the street car. The gasoline tank exploded. Ribelis was unable to free himself and was burned before passersby dragged him out.

Miss Mary Petus, 24 years old, 5440 South Kildare avenue, a passenger on the street car, was cut and bruised, but none of the other passengers or the motorman, William C. Moss, of Lemont, was injured.

Firemen put out the flames of the truck and the street car which also caught fire, and took Ribelis to the hospital, where he died. Chief George Seamon of the 26th batallion said the firemen were hampered by the crowd that gathered and he had to call the New City police to hold back the crowd.

Death and Injury List Grows.

The death of Ribelis increased the 1935 Cook county motor death toll to 146. Until 4 p. m. yesterday, 119 were killed this year in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits and 2,360 injured.

John Prinzy, 31 years old, 4855 South Elizabeth street, was killed yesterday and two companions, E. W. Wood and Henry T. Banks, were injured when run down by an automobile in the Black Forest, near Colorado Springs, Colo. The three, all workers at a transient camp, were hiking back from a dance when struck by a car driven by William Remington of the Black Forest.

Edward Pastory, 18 years old, 5044 South Washtenaw avenue, and Miss Olga Meyers, 18 years old, 5636 South Maplewood avenue, were seriously injured yesterday morning when the stolen automobile in which they were riding collided head on with a Western avenue street car at 54th street. Pastory said he borrowed the car from a friend living in Cicero and did not know it was stolen. It was stolen on Feb. 23 in Cicero from A. C. Konapasek, of Round Lake.

Eva Weber, 12 years old, 1138 Wellington avenue, was slightly injured yesterday morning when she was struck by the automobile of a hit and run driver at Ashland avenue and Irving Park boulevard.

Engineer Seriously Hurt.

Alexander Kane, 37 years old, 3747 South Maplewood avenue, incurred serious injuries when he was struck by an automobile as he was crossing Western avenue at 55th street. Anton Koscielniak, 43 years old, 5654 South Campbell avenue, driver of the car, was not held by the police when witnesses said Kane, a stationary engineer, stepped in front of his car.

SHOT IN DICE GAME.

Samuel White, 35 years old, colored, 3136 Vernon avenue, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday morning in a quarrel with Fred Malone, colored, in a dice game at 1151 Larrabee street. Malone is sought.

ELEVATOR STRIKE IN BRONX PREDICTED BY LABOR LEADER

New York, March 3.—(AP)—A strike of 30,000 elevator operators in 16,000 business and apartment buildings in the Bronx appeared inevitable tonight unless Mayor F. H. La Guardia or the regional labor board again intervene. The strike is set for 8 a. m. Tuesday.

In telegrams to the mayor and to Ben Golden and Samuel Lamport of the regional labor board, Louis Cooper of the Building Service employés union asserted all efforts to adjust the difficulties with the landlords apparently had failed. He called building owners "obdurate and unreasonable."

"Building employés in the Bronx are being paid from $15 to $60 a month for working from 72 to 110 hours a week," he said. "Coolie labor is better paid than that."

HOPKINS CANCELS TALKS; FLIES TO AID WORKS BILL

Defends $4,880,000,000 Plan in Speech Here.

Canceling five of his scheduled "missionary" speeches in behalf of President Roosevelt's 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief bill, Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, left Chicago last night by airplane to join in efforts this week in Washington to salvage the measure. According to Washington advices, Mr. Hopkins was recalled at the direct instance of the President.

Before he took off from the Chicago airport at 11:30 o'clock last night in an American Airways ship, Mr. Hopkins addressed the Milwaukee forum in Milwaukee and the Community Council of Jewish Charities at the Covenant club here. He was to have spoken before five other meetings today and Tuesday in his five day "good will" tour.

Denies Significance of Summons.

Mr. Hopkins professed to attach no particular significance to his hurried call, but Washington reports indicated that the administration expected help from him in reviving or altering the work relief bill. This program, which business leaders assert would increase relief costs by 50 per cent, bogged down several days ago in the senate. Dispatches say Mr. Hopkins is to appear this week before the senate appropriations committee to argue for his bill.

It was in behalf of his program that Mr. Hopkins spoke last night at the Covenant club. Any other plan for "cheap" relief, Mr. Hopkins declared, would lead to the removal of 20,000,000 persons now on relief into a new economic order.

Sees Collectivism as Alternative.

"We can provide ample relief at lower costs if you demand it," he said. "We can work out some scheme of production for use, removing this block of our people to some form of collectivism.

"We can establish commissaries—and wreck our systems of distribution. If work relief is given up it will be cheaper this year, but I prophesy it will cost infinitely more when people get the habit of the dole."

BEG YOUR PARDON

In the society section of Sunday's TRIBUNE it was erroneously stated that the reports conference of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers would be held Tuesday. The meeting will be held Wednesday, March 6, at 10 a. m. in the Stevens hotel.

The indoor picnic to be held Tuesday afternoon is to be given by the sisterhood of the Temple Emanuel at 701 Buckingham place and not by the Temple Sholom sisterhood as was stated in Sunday's north side metropolitan section. The Temple Sholom sisterhood will have its annual mothers' and daughters' tea tonight in the temple at 3480 Lake Shore drive.

MRS. HAMMOND SENDS ANTI-LONG PLEA TO GARNER

New Orleans, La., March 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, chairman of the women's committee of Louisiana, which is seeking the removal from office of Senators Huey P. Long and John H. Overton, said today she had sent Vice President Garner petitions from citizens of California, Kentucky and New York demanding a hearing of the committee's charges against the senators.

"From this day on congress daily will receive the requests of citizens from all parts of this country for a fair hearing," Mrs. Hammond said in a letter to the Vice President.

action could be taken. He refused and the disbarment stood.

While in New York City in 1930 Lindsey was ejected from Bishop Manning's Episcopal church when he demanded a public hearing after Bishop Manning had denounced his teachings. He was brought into Magistrate's court, but the complaint against him was dismissed on the ground that it was incorrectly drawn. There the matter ended.

In January, 1933, he went to Washington, to lobby for a plan to "grubstake" boys in mining and forestry camps. Later he was mentioned as a candidate for governor of the Hawaiian islands.

Becomes NRA Official.

In February, 1934, he was admitted to practice in federal court in Los Angeles. Soon thereafter he was named a NRA code authority for Los Angeles, dealing with motion picture industry labor and compliance matters. He was involved in a number of controversies and finally resigned to become a candidate for Superior judge. He stumped the district, expounding his so-called radical views on domestic relations. He backed Upton Sinclair in his losing fight for governor. Lindsey's election followed, but he had to engage in a long legal battle before he mounted the bench.

One of the first cases assigned him was the Emerson-Sewell case. He issued a preliminary decision holding Mrs. Sewell guilty of "indiscretion" but guiltless of "misconduct," and ruled Mrs. Emerson's charges accusing Emerson and Mrs. Sewell of adultery had not been proven.

"I am not so much concerned about the older people in this case," he said," but the lives and welfare of all their children are involved. It must be decided for the best interests of the children."

PROTEST PLANS FOR "DICTATOR" IN AAA CHANGES

The Chicago Association of Commerce in a statement issued yesterday said that the proposed amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment act embodied in senate bill 1807 and house bill 5585 would give a political appointee almost unlimited dictatorial powers.

"A broad interpretation of the amendments would bring within their scope practically all manufacturing establishments in the United States,' asserted the protest against the amendments which was signed by George W. Young, president of the association. "Iron and steel would constitute the largest exceptions."

Virtually every commodity of agricultural origin or commodities of other origin that compete with agricultural products, would be put under the control of a political appointee, said the statement.

In its campaign against the "pink slip" provision of the income tax law, the association announced yesterday that eight of Chicago's ten representatives in congress have agreed to vote against that part of the measure which would make the income tax returns public.

Congressmen Raymond S. McKeough of the 2d district and Ralph E. Church of the 10th have not yet aligned themselves with the repeal move, according to the association.

SUITORS MEET; MOTHER OF GIRL SHOT TO DEATH

Seymour, Mo., March 3.—(AP)—Chester Lane found another suitor of Lola Lee barring the doorway when he went to call. He forced his way in. Then there was a pistol shot. Officers said the bullet, presumably intended for Lane's rival, William Cantrel, killed the girl's mother, Mrs. Robert Lee, 50. Lane was held in jail.

Ryerson Stresses Need for Interest in Events

With life becoming more and more complex and people becoming more interdependent, it is necessary for individuals to increase their interest in their responsibility for the public welfare, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., said yesterday in giving the Sunday address at the regular services in the University of Chicago chapel. Mr. Ryerson is the fourth layman to serve as university preacher during the current academic year.

White Robbers Hold Up Negro Rectory; Get $400

Three armed white men invaded the rectory of the Greater St. John's church, 4821 Michigan avenue, last night, held up the Rev. O. M. Williams, colored pastor, and seven colored ushers, and escaped with $400. The men entered shortly after evening services had been concluded, as the weekly offerings were being counted.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Acclimating Calves.

FEED yards at The Tribune Experimental Farm near Yorkville are being restocked with cattle for the coming feeding and grazing season. One hundred and fourteen head of feeder calves were brought to the farm Wednesday afternoon. They will be roughed through the spring months and put on grass this summer.

Clarence and Louis Thurow bought the new bunch of steer calves on the open market at Kansas City. They weighed an average of about 453 pounds, or a total of 53,350 pounds, and were bought at $7.60 a hundredweight. The total cost at Kansas City amounted to $4,054.60. Transportation cost by rail from the market to Plano, Ill., amounted to $167.06. The trucking cost from Plano to the farm was $10. The total cost of the calves delivered to the feedlot at the Yorkville farm is $4,231.66.

The calves are short yearlings, all Herefords, excepting one Aberdeen Angus. Market experts place them in the "good to choice" class. They were produced in Kansas.

These feeders were bought to be used in utilizing roughage at the farm, including corn fodder, silage, and lugume hay, during the spring months. When summer comes, they will share in grazing over approximately 300 acres of woodland and pasture. Silage will be kept as emergency summer feed in case of another drouth.

When the calves arrived at the farm, the cattle feeders used every precaution to avoid losses while the animals were becoming accustomed to their new surroundings and feed. For two hours after they reached the farm water was withheld from them and they were allowed to fill up on dry soy bean hay mixed with a small amount of timothy hay.

Since the first day at the farm the calves have been fed the following roughages: dry soy bean hay each morning, corn fodder at noon, and alfalfa hay at night. All of these roughages have been fed in limited quantities. The calves are not being given silage at the present time. For the next three or four weeks they will be kept on soy bean hay, fodder and alfalfa hay. The rough is fed in such limited quantities that the calves clean up their allowance at each feed. They have access to salt at all hours in the day.

The 114 calves are being kept in the feedlot near the new 80 foot silo where the 117 steers, recently sold, were finished for market. The original herd of 119 steers weighed a total of 72,980 pounds when they were brought to the farm and the 118 sold weighed a total of 130,290 pounds. This was a gain of 57,310 pounds instead of 33,032 pounds, as incorrectly stated in a previous article.

SECOND ROBBER FOUND SLAIN BY PASTOR'S PISTOL

After the Rev. Edward Wainwright, colored Baptist minister, reported he had shot and killed one of two colored robbers who seriously wounded his wife when they entered the parsonage at 3311 East 95th street late Saturday night, the body of the second bandit was found yesterday morning in a nearby vacant lot where he had collapsed and died of two wounds.

Mrs. Wainwright met the men at the door. When they told her it was a robbery she screamed and one of them shot her in the side. They fled. The clergyman seized a pistol and fired at them. One fell with a fatal bullet in his head, and the pastor supposed his companion had escaped.

The slain robbers were identified as Charles Thomas, 25 years old, 2744 Cottage Grove avenue, and Wesley Streeter, 18 years old, 405 East 31st street.

N. Y. FIXED DEBT $256 PER CAPITA, RECORD SHOWS

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—New York City had a total funded or fixed debt of $2,308,116,020 outstanding on Dec. 31, 1933, according to a summary of the financial statistics of the city corporation for the fiscal year ending on that date, made public today by the bureau of the census. Of that amount, $1,172,137,551 was for public service enterprises and investments.

The figures, which included transactions of the Triborough bridge authority, were based on an estimated population of 7,154,300.

It was shown by the summary that the net indebtedness—the funded or fixed debt, less sinking fund assets—was $1,835,555,919, or $256 per capita. Of this indebtedness, $100,000 was for the Triborough bridge authority and the remainder for the city corporation.

The per capita net debt in 1932 was $247 and in 1917 it was $186, the figures disclosed.

SCRIPT EXPERT TO TESTIFY IN VOTE CONTEST

Mrs. Katherine Keeler, handwriting expert of the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory, and wife of Dr. Leonarde Keeler, inventor of the lie detector, is expected to be a witness today before Judge Win Knock in the County court at Wheaton. Mrs. Keeler will be asked to determine what election official initialed the ballots in the last election in the second Lisle precinct of Du Page county.

Mrs. Keeler has been called as a witness by former Sheriff John Hesterman, who is contesting the 14 vote victory of Arthur Hellyer as Du Page county treasurer. Hesterman declares the majority of the 505 ballots in the precinct, which gave Hellyer a majority of more than three to one, should not be counted, since one of the judges of election permitted another to sign his initials.

Judge Knock's ruling on the ballots in this precinct will decide the contest.

KELLOGGS' HEART BALM VERDICT TO BE READ TODAY

The verdict in the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Florence Kellogg against Mrs. Ruth Ritze Kellogg will be read at 10 o'clock this morning in the court of Circuit Judge Craig Van Meter. The verdict was reached Saturday night after the jury had deliberated more than eight hours, and was sealed in pursuance of an order by the court.

In the suit it was charged that Mrs. Ruth Kellogg stole the love of George M. Kellogg Jr., attorney for the International Harvester company, while he was still married to Mrs. Florence Kellogg. The latter obtained a divorce in May, 1933, and about a week later Kellogg married the then Mrs. Ritze. The two women were Kellogg's second and third wives respectively. The first Mrs. Kellogg, who obtained a divorce in 1916, did not figure in the current suit.

Reports in the courtroom Saturday night were that four ballots had been taken with the first tied 6 to 6, the second 8 to 4 in favor of awarding damages to Mrs. Florence Kellogg and the third 11 to 1 in her favor.

THREE SLAYINGS PRECEDE QUIZ BY GRAND JURY

Bullets Take Toll in New York Rackets.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Three slayings today, all of which police linked with the lucrative policy game, gambling, dope or vice rackets, made a dramatic prelude to a grand jury investigation beginning tomorrow.

John [Spider] Murtha, 36, described by police as a policy racketeer and strong arm man, was shot and killed by two gunmen as he walked from a Brooklyn hotel with a woman friend.

"We've got you now, Spider," they shouted, "you can't get away."

They shoved the woman aside and fired seven shots into his body. Murtha fell dead.

Found Slain on Roof.

The body of a man, said by the police to have been a drug peddler, was found on the roof of a building on 106th street by Grazio Risio, a tenant.

Police identified the body from finger prints as Salvatore Natoldi, 24.

Natoldi, the police said, probably was mixed up in the Harlem policy racket, led by Arthur [Dutch] Schultz.

Federal agents had been searching for Natoldi on a warant charging violation of the anti-narcotic act.

Slain at Taxi Wheel.

Solly Jacalow, 37, a taxi driver, was killed as he sat at the wheel of his cab in East 26th street. He was shot in the head.

A man who gave his name as Angelo Benpensato, 27, was arrested after a pursuit by police and held on a homicide charge in connection with the case.

Benpensato owns some "push ball" machines of the type which sometimes are used for gambling. The suspect, officers said, admitted he had been arrested eighteen times in the past.

Find Victim of Ride.

Troy, N. Y., March 3.—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man, stabbed 12 times and shot through the mouth, believed by police to be a "ride victim," was found today beside a road in a lonely section of North Troy.

Jews Battle in Palestine Over Sabbath's Observance

TEL AVIV, Palestine, March 3.—(AP)—Street clashes growing from nonobservance of the Jewish Sabbath left ten persons injured today and ten others in jail. Religious and nonreligious Jews fought in this all-Jewish city yesterday after a stormy meeting of religious Jews at which speakers condemned nonobservance of the Sabbath by a majority of the population. Marching from the meeting the crowd smashed windows of Jewish shops which were open, and stopped passing taxis, taking out Jewish passengers. British police authorities halted the disorders.

NUMEROUS PAINTINGS CREDITED TO COROT SAID TO BE COPIES

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Many paintings by Corot in American collections and museums, Dr. George de Cornell, director of the Fine Arts Guild of America, declared tonight, are copies put out by groups of art swindlers in Paris.

Many Modiglianis, some Monets and a few Manets and Pisarros also are the work of obscure copyists who turn out fake masterpieces "left and right," Dr. de Cornell asserted.

"They say that out of 3,000 Corots 8,000 are in the United States and England—only Corot never painted 3,000 pictures," Dr. de Cornell said.

"Fake is a bad word. As a matter of fact, some of the copies are better than Corot.

"To my knowledge, there are eight false Monets in this country.

Dr. de Cornell described the group headed by Jean Charles Millet, who recently received a six months' prison sentence in France, as the chief, but only one of many similar groups selling copies of masterpieces as originals. Millet is the grandson of the famous painter, Jean Francois Millet.

Dr. de Cornell charged that five copies of the Mona Lisa were sold for $800,000 each to Americans.

YANK ESCAPES CHINESE REDS; TELLS OF HORROR

Missionary Held for Two Months by Army.

WUHU, Anhwei, Province, China, March 3.—(AP)—The Rev. Howard Smith of Newark, N. J., who is recuperating here from his experiences as a captive of Chinese communists, today told a harrowing tale of his capture and escape.

Smith is one of few foreigners captured by the Reds who lived to tell the tale. He was taken late in 1934 near Foochow, Szechwan province, and held there for two months by the army of the notorious Red Gen. Ho Lung, now hard pressed by government troops near the Honan-Szechwan border.

He escaped one night while a guard slept, and reached safety, famished and exhausted, after a ten day journey.

Try to Convert People.

He said the Reds treated him fairly well and were hopeful of obtaining ransom, but he was certain death awaited him if the exorbitant ransom demands were not satisfied. He declared Ho Lung's troops were among the best disciplined of the scattered Red armies infesting this area.

They suffered from lack of supplies and few wore uniforms, although all displayed a bit of red. His captors moved frequently and when they entered a new village they immediately sought to win the common people to the communist cause through mass-meetings and printed propaganda.

Officials and the wealthy, he said, were killed or held for ransom and their homes looted and torn to pieces in search for hidden riches. Poor people were not molested.

Smith saw villagers who dared to dispute the Red authority visited with swift and terrible vengeance. He saw captives slain when they were unable to maintain the swift pace of the moving army.

Smith is 27. His wife and child now are reunited with him. Both are with the Christian Missionary alliance.

15 Missionaries Flee.

SIAN, Shensi Province, China, March 4 [Monday].—(AP)—Fifteen missionaries, including several Americans, are evacuating various towns of eastern Kansu province, bordering troubled Shensi province, and coming here, it was learned today.

All of those evacuating are either China inland mission workers or associates. The Americans include six women, three men, and one infant. Among them are the Rev. E. E. Taylor of Portland, Ore.; Earl Peterson, Tacoma, Wash.; Miss A. Mewlson, East Orange, N. J., and Miss Anna Madsen, New Haven, Conn.

Scattered reports said several towns in southwest Shensi are in the hands of communists. Executions, it was said, are going forward by the hundreds, with the landed gentry, officials, and any one opposing the invaders as victims.

The China inland mission revealed that hope has been virtually abandoned for both the Rev. S. C. Frenchan, Australian mission worker, and his London wife, who are feared to have fallen into the hands of Red bandits. from Fenghsien indicating that two British missionaries who set out to search for Mrs. Frenchan in the mountains of this province have abandoned the hunt.

Search for Two Britons.

CHANGSHA, Hunan Province, China, March 3.—(AP)—At the request of the China Inland mission the British consul here renewed his efforts today to sift conflicting reports concerning the fate of R. A. Bosshardt and A. Hayman, who, refugees insisted, had been tortured and murdered. The two are British missionaries.

A. F. L. DRIVERS UNION ACTS FOR BOOST IN WAGES

Chicago coal teamsters, members of the Coal Drivers Helpers and Handlers' union, local 704, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, at a meeting held at the Washington Boulevard auditorium yesterday voted to approve a new contract which is being negotiated with the Chicago Coal Merchants association calling for a wage increase of 16 2-3 per cent.

According to George Mitchell, vice president of the International Teamsters' joint council, who presided at the meeting with Leslie G. Goudie, acting head of the union and president of the council, terms of the contract have been approved by officials of the association. A meeting will be held during the week by the association to act on the agreement. Under the new contract the men will receive 87½ cents an hour, or $7 a day, instead of 75 cents an hour or $6 a day, with a guarantee of a half day's pay when they work less than that length of time.

A meeting called by officials of the Chicago Coal Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers union, local 704, a rival organization which ordered a strike two weeks ago, was adjourned until Wednesday evening when only a few teamsters appeared at Hodcarriers' hall yesterday.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Plumped into British naval affairs as chief of the admiralty, Churchill found his military training useful. With war almost certain, he laid plans which were carried out when the war came. How he matched the Germans ship for ship and maintained British control of the sea is described in today's instalment, a revealing picture of the great powers' preparations for the conflict.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

I have never in any other office exercised direct power as I was called upon to do at the admiralty in these years of preparation. Not only did I have all the support and authority which belongs to a minister with a large government majority behind him, but in addition the Conservative opposition viewed with a very great measure of sympathy and goodwill my new appointment.

It was my duty to organize and animate the whole tremendous apparatus of British sea power. Certainly I worked hard to comprehend the scope and details of my task. My military education and what I had seen and thought of war had left me with very definite views in this great sphere. I was sure the navy required a strong element of the staf system upon which all the great armies of Europe were built. All the main problems of naval administration presented themselves in their largest and most acute forms. The rate of building against Germany, the character and design of the ships, the obtaining of money from parliament, the organization of the fleets, the strategy of a naval war, the discipline and contentment of the sailors, and above all those conditions of instant and constant preparedness which the state of Europe seemed to require. All these were now reviewed from a new angle.

Selects New Advisers.

For this purpose I felt I must have a new set of naval advisers. I took a few weeks to consider my course of action and to select a new board of admiralty formed of men whom I knew beforehand were in sympathy with the general policy which the government desired. I then explained to the existing authorities that new measures required new men. They accepted the fact with good feeling, and I provided suitable employment for them wherever it was possible. Parliament was startled to learn one night that three out of the four sea lords had been replaced, but no disposition was shown to question the decisions which I had taken or obtained from the prime minister.

We let the Germans know quite plainly that they had no chance whatever of overtaking us in our shipbuilding. On all their existing programs we had decided to maintain a superiority of sixteen dreadnaughts to ten, and I now announced that any further increase in German building would be matched by two keels to one. All dreadnaughts contributed by the dominions were additional to this, and in cruisers and destroyers we proclaimed a resolve to maintain a hundred per cent superiority.

Offer Naval Holidays.

On the other hand, as a counterpart of this, we offered to the Germans a series of naval holidays. Each power would execute its declared programs but would introduce one or more blank years in which neither power would build any capital ships.

Had the Germans accepted this proposal I believe that a very great softening of the European situation would have followed and no one knows into what happy regions this might have led. However, they refused, and accordingly we went ahead with our programs with the utmost vigor.

Our navy estimates bounded up by fives and tens of millions, while the man power of the royal navy was increased as fast as the thorough training of officers and men allowed, until it was nearly double our numbers today.

Division of the Navy.

The navy was organized in three fleets, the first of which, comprising four battle squadrons of all the strongest vessels, was always ready at a moment's notice; the second, comprising two battle squadrons, at a day's notice, while the third, made up of two battle squadrons of the oldest vessels, alone required the calling out of the reserves. In all we formed eight battle squadrons of sixty-four battleships, together with about one hundred cruisers and three or four hundred smaller craft.

In order that every one in the admiralty should realize the imperative need of being always ready for a "thief in the night" or a "bolt from the blue," I had a special map in a locked, wooden frame placed behind my chair, and every day the new admiralty war staf marked with flags the exact position of the British and German fleets. On no occasion did we ever allow ourselves to become unable to concentrate what we considered to be overwhelming force to their available maximum.

Change War Plans.

Up till the time of my going to the admiralty, the naval war plans against Germany were to maintain a close blockade of the Heligoland bight with flotillas of small craft supported by cruisers and ultimately by the main fleet. But the conditions of modern war, the rapidly growing strength of the German navy, and, above all, the advent of the submarine, made these plans obsolete. To maintain a close blockade across the whole breadth of the North sea would have exhausted our fleet in a few weeks, while the larger ships supporting them would have lolled about in perilous waters, a deadly target for mines and torpedoes.

We therefore changed these plans to what was called distant blockade. We proposed to close the Straits of Dover by one of our fleets of all classes of vessels, and to place the grand fleet, as according to naval tradition it is called, in time of war, at the north of Scotland, in or near the great natural harbor of Scapa Flow in the Orkneys whence it could dominate all waters between Scotland and Norway. Thus the North sea would become an inclosed lake and Germany would be cut off from the oceans and from the rest of the world.

War Justifies Plans.

We examined with great care the possibility of a German invasion across the empty North sea and a descent on what appeared to be the unprotected east coast of Britain. We felt confident that with our superior fleets in the stations I have described, ready to move to intercept or cut off an invading or raiding force—all the distances being minutely examined—she would never dare to attempt so perilous an operation with any force large enough to be effective. All these conclusions were justified by the war. The grand fleet from its northern station dominated the whole blue water scene. The English channel became an Anglo-French pond across which we could ferry troops and supplies in unlimited quantities, and no attempt was ever even planned by the Germans for an invasion of our island.

For the purposes of these new plans we needed every vessel we could get in home waters. My military training and study of the art of war and the maxims of the great captains of the past made me earnestly desire to concentrate every available ship for the great battle which one must be prepared to fight within a very few days of a declaration of war.

Influence French Strategy.

We therefore proposed to bring home the battleships from the Mediterranean in order to have overwhelming superiority at the decisive point and at the decisive moment. This undoubtedly led the French to move their battle fleet into the Mediterranean, and, although no convention or agreement was made between us, the naval dispositions of the two friendly powers became in fact complementary to one another.

Looking back on it all I think I might have spared a few more ships for the outer seas, for, as it turned out, the Germans never chose to challenge the main trial of strength at sea. They darted out and darted back and we tried to catch them, sometimes with success, but they never invited the supreme test of a fleet action fought out by the lines of battle. But no one could tell this in 1912, 1913 or 1914.

Lives on Yacht.

During the three years before the war I was nearly eight months afloat. The yacht Enchantress became a sort of floating headquarters office and home, and by it I was able to visit almost every ship in the navy and every dockyard and arsenal. Although, of course, I did not claim to be an expert, yet moving about surrounded by some of the ablest officers and most competent authorities I was able to acquire a general knowledge of the whole of our naval establishments, and also a personal acquaintance with all the senior officers, which gave me a general view of our naval machinery and personnel perhaps more complete than that possessed by any other living person. I was thus able to understand and weigh the advice given me by the admirals, and when they differed, as they often did, I could form an opinion of my own. And also at other times I formed an opinion of my own.

Last Corsican Bandit on Trial for 11 Murders

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BASTIA, Corsica, March 3.—Andre Spada, the last Corsican bandit, will go on trial here tomorrow before a jury of twelve of his island countrymen on seven counts charging eleven murders and two assaults with intent to kill. To all these crimes Spada has confessed and has even admitted one more, for which two brothers named Lecca are now serving terms on Devil's Island. None of these killings were done for gain. They were, in the bandit's conception, incidental to the war he waged against his enemies, public and private.

GUESTS TO TELL EVENTS BEFORE DEATH OF BRIDE

Inquest Tomorrow for Mrs. Statler Davidson.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 3.—(AP)—Solicitor Roland S. Pruett revealed today he intended to summon about 20 witnesses in an effort to reconstruct the incidents preceding the strange death of Mrs. Elva Statler Davidson, 22, heiress, who had been married only two months.

The inquest, postponed several times since the body was found in her garage, will be reopened Tuesday.

Pruett is convinced, he said her death was either murder or suicide.

The complete autopsy report is expected tomorrow.

Makes Report on Gas.

Dr. C. C. Carpenter of the Wake Forest Medical school, who began work on the autopsy Friday, received a report tonight from Dr. Haywood M. Taylor of the Duke university department of toxicology. Dr. Taylor confirmed Dr. Carpenter's earlier finding that there was sufficient carbon monoxide in Mrs. Davidson's blood to have caused death. Dr. Taylor said, however, his examination is incomplete.

Carbon monoxide—the deadly fumes from an automobile's exhaust—was officially ascribed as the cause of Mrs. Davidson's death the day her body was found.

Husband's Guests Called.

Witnesses already summoned for the inquest include the young heiress' 41 year old husband, H. Bradley Davidson Jr. of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Champaigne of New York, Davidson's house guests; the servants, including the butler, Emmanuel Burch, who reported finding the body in the garage.

Pruett added he also expects to summon ten or twelve persons who attended a charity ball with the Davidsons and later a supper party at a rustic camp a few hours before the body of Mrs. Davidson was found in the garage. A waiter at the camp, John Notragiacomic, Pruett said, has told that Mrs. Davidson wept at intervals, while the party from the dance was having a late supper. Another waiter, questioned by the officials, said he did not see her weep at any time. Both waiters probably will be at the inquest.

Would Explain Bruises.

An incomplete autopsy indicated Mrs. Davidson's death was caused by inhaling fumes from an automobile exhaust pipe. To be explained, the solicitor pointed out, were a dozen or more bruises, some as large as a half dollar, found on her thighs.

The Davidsons, with their friends, the investigation revealed, returned home about 5 a. m. The butler reported finding the body about 9 a. m., Pruett declared. Rigor mortis had set in when the body was found.

College Grad and Athlete.

Mrs. Davidson was one of four children adopted by the late E. M. Statler, chain hotel operator, and reared under guidance of advanced psychologists. She was graduated from Radcliffe college at 20.

Two years ago she qualified for the U. S. Olympic swimming team but a spinal injury incurred while diving, impaired her health and she could not compete in the championships. Her condition was aggravated, it was said, by an injury in an automobile accident on her honeymoon.

SEEK INDICTMENT OF 'CREAM PUFF' GANG TRIO TODAY

Murder indictments will be sought today against the three "cream puff" bandits, who have confessed a dozen robberies including that of the bakery shop of Frank Schmitt at 7745 South Halsted street, in which Mrs. Anna Marie Schmitt, 36 years old, was shot and killed on Jan. 31.

The three robbers, who told of their fondness for cream puffs and pies, which accounted for the fact that they specialized in the robbery of bakeries. They are Raymond Halverson, 15 years old, 727 West 21st street; Joseph Zvirblis, 17 years old, 2016 Canalport avenue, and Peter Sinkus, 20 years old, 1816 Ruble street.

Zvirblis, who described himself as the leader of the trio, admitted that he had fired the shots which resulted in the death of Mrs. Schmitt.

The three robbers were taken to the detective bureau showup yesterday and paraded before robbery victims. They were identified in a half dozen holdups.

INFLATION AHEAD! What to Do About It

W. M. Kiplinger

Author of INFLATION AHEAD!—WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT. Editor and publisher of the famous Kiplinger Washington Letters for 15 years. Shrewd, courageous, accurate predictor of trends and reporter of government in its practical effects on business, whose published forecasts are followed eagerly by his large and important clientele; confidante of Washington officialdom through several administrations.

Distinguished for simple, concise presentations of complicated subjects in easy-to-understand language; unbiased, dispassionate, constructive critic of government policies, who calls spades spades; frequent contributor to leading magazines.

HE Has Been RIGHT in the Past... and Well Ahead of Time...with These Important Predictions On:

Government centralized control of banking and credit, predicted two years ago.

The precarious banking situation, months before the collapse of 1933.

The more-than-seasonal business decline, spring to summer, 1933, at a time when most observers were predicting only the usual summer slack.

Devaluation of the dollar, indicated as probable eight months ahead.

The low point of the depression.

Spectacular spurt, summer of 1933, and the collapse.

Recent rise of foodstuff prices, predicted six months ahead.

Rise of NRA, the changes, and decline.

Decline of interest rates, more than a year ahead.

Reorganization of farm mortgage lending policies.

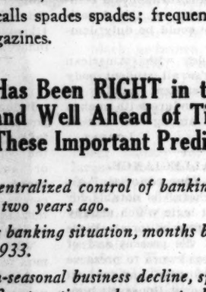
Levels of unemployment, six months ahead.

Failure of gold purchase to raise commodity prices.

Rise of silver prices.

On price fixing of agricultural products, months ahead. On all AAA policies.

The fate of scores of important bills in Congress, indicated accurately months in advance,—a consistent record for many years.



Frederick Shelton

who assisted Mr. Kiplinger in the preparation of this book. For the past 14 years an analyst of governmental and business trends. Thoroughly grounded in politics and economics. Lawyer. Seasoned observer. Always sound, cool. Always well-balanced in his judgments.

Has wide reputation among Washington technicians for his objective attitude on issues when they are at their most heated stages, and for his ability to look beyond the immediate present. Knows usually "how things will wash out."

INFLATION is now definitely under way. Not because of the Supreme Court's gold decision. Not despite it. But because of a constantly increasing number of causes, circumstances, conditions, and events. In the steady march toward Inflation the gold decision is merely one of the latest incidents. Among sophisticated observers of trends, doubts as to the inevitable Inflation did not exist even before the decision was rendered. Even if it had been "unfavorable" to the Government it would not have prevented Inflation. New routes would have been found anyway, new channels cut.

To learn exactly how to protect yourself against Inflation, and even to turn it to your advantage, read this entirely new book just off the press—"INFLATION AHEAD!—WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT." This is not a general textbook of economic theories. It is a specific guide for every individual who either earns a salary or draws an income from investments—for business men, lawyers, doctors, teachers, farmers, trustees or investors. It is in the practical form of 25 semi-personal letters covering every angle of the subject—written in simple language by W. M. Kiplinger and Frederick Shelton.

This book is entirely hardboiled. It wastes no time arguing whether Inflation is good or bad. It tells what WILL be—not what should be. These 25 letters face reality and tell you what to do now.

Publisher's Note:

We are book publishers solely. Neither the authors nor we are in any way connected with the selling or buying or promotion of securities or commodities. Nor are we interested in either furthering or retarding Inflation, or in the promotion of any economic doctrines. We publish this book because it is timely, because Mr. Kiplinger's and Mr. Shelton's analyses of the prospects of Inflation are authoritative, completely disinterested, able, and therefore important to the public.

THIS NEW BOOK TELLS

How to Protect Yourself Against Inflation

—And Turn It To YOUR Advantage

This book answers the following questions, and hundreds of others, which you will have to face during the coming weeks and months. It tells what to do about Inflation, what not to do, what to look out for.

What will Inflation mean to you personally—based on your present income, business, age, savings, taxes, debts, insurance, and investments?

How will it affect your earnings—whether you are the owner of a business, an executive, an employee, or a farmer?

Will you be safer in building a home or in renting one—and should you try to get a long or short term lease?

Should you contract for a new car or any other sizable purchase on installment?

Is your income within the range of those which will suffer most, unless you start planning now to "beat Inflation"?

Will your money now be any safer in Government Bonds than in savings banks or building and loan associations?

How will merchandisers be affected by Inflation?

Can consumer goods markets improve materially, quickly?

Which is the best hedge against Inflation—stocks, bonds, commodities, or real estate?

Compared with the experiences of other countries—such as the crises leading to the revaluation of the franc and the German paper-mark catastrophe—what chances have we to control, hedge, limit, or confine our own Inflation?

Where are real estate prices most likely to rise first?

Why is the purchase of Commodities not the best protection against Inflation for the average individual?

How is the usual process of Inflation after depressions being further accelerated by present Governmental policies, plans and actions?

Is this a good time to start or expand a business—or should you wait?

Will interest rates continue to go lower?

Is it really true that bond prices will go down if stock prices go up?

What new factors should you now consider before deciding what to do about life insurance or annuities?

In what specific ways can you take advantage of Inflation in order to offset losses and the inevitable increased taxation?

Exactly what should the "ordinary business man" do about Inflation?

What will the Government's new attitude toward holding companies mean to stockholders during the Inflation period?

When may you expect to feel the peak-effects of Inflation on business volume, farm produce prices, credit expansion, investments, capital goods, taxes, living costs?

How should you plan now to turn Inflation to your advantage in 1935, 1936, 1937 and 1938?

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

SECURITY.

A number of readers have asked what is THE TRIBUNE'S position on the social security program now under consideration in Washington. This editorial is to be regarded as a preliminary reply.

Higher wages are desirable. They permit workmen to live well, dress well, meet doctors' bills, educate children, and provide for old age. THE TRIBUNE lives this belief. Wages in the printing trades are among the highest in the country, and THE TRIBUNE, in nineteen out of twenty years, has paid its employés above the contract rates in the industry.

Continuation of pay during illness is desirable if the charge can be borne. THE TRIBUNE bears it. Old age pensions are desirable and so is life insurance. THE TRIBUNE provides both for its employés. The standard of security set up in the government's proposals is far below that now enjoyed in this organization.

In return THE TRIBUNE has had first choice of workmen and there is a spirit of coöperation among its employés which bids fair to prolong its success and usefulness.

Unfortunately, all companies and all industries are not in a position to do as we have done. The great majority of enterprises are barely able to make ends meet. They cannot be called upon for greater expenditures for security than they are now making, for to do so would force them into bankruptcy. That is true of many long established institutions and it is obviously true of the new ones. New industries, with no accumulation of reserves and no certainty whatever of the future, are seldom in a position to do more than meet their pay rolls.

THE TRIBUNE can take care of its own, but how far it can go in paying sickness, idleness, and old age benefits for employés in other companies and other industries is problematical. Certainly it cannot go very far in that direction without discovering that it can no longer meet what have always been regarded as its own obligations to its own employés.

Men crave security in a world in which they are subject to hunger, the weather, disease, old age, and death. All architecture, all science, all industry of whatever sort represent the efforts of men to protect themselves from the hazards which beset all living things. Most of what is called civilization is a product of the urge for security. It would be strange, indeed, if demagogs failed to exploit so powerful a desire in men.

Man has been described as a wishful animal sometimes restrained by simple arithmetic. So far as the security program is concerned, the principal question to be determined is whether this wholesome restraint has been rigorously applied. The answer for the present, at least, is NO. No convincing showing has been made that the premiums can be met without disorganizing the whole economic mechanism. There is, therefore, real danger that to gain the appearance of security we shall lose the only real basis for security, which is abundant productivity.

Implicit in most of the thinking in Washington these days is the assumption that there is enough productive capacity in the United States today to provide a comfortable living for all the population. The recent Brookings studies, "America's Capacity to Produce" and "America's Capacity to Consume," suggest how far we are from that goal. Certainly if there is enough to go around the fact has not been demonstrated.

Prudence commands that instead of assuming we have enough for all, we assume the contrary. If there is not enough for all, there can be, in our day, no real security for all. From this it does not follow that all social insurance proposals must be condemned out of hand as impractical, but rather that each of them should be examined with as much scientific detachment as possible, to determine whether it is practical and, more especially, whether it will not work more harm than good.

To the desire for security we owe most of what we call civilization, but also much of our wishful thinking. It is sometimes difficult to believe that so fundamental a craving can lead us astray, but it can and it will if we neglect to examine all proposals made in the name of security with more than ordinary caution. Needless to say, no such examination of the government's proposals has yet been made.

ESTABLISH A LAKE FRONT AIRPORT.

A glance at any airways map of the United States must immediately direct one's attention to the fact that Chicago is our national air center. All important transcontinental routes include Chicago in their schedules and in addition other lines radiate from Chicago to every important center of population. The map resembles a spider's web, strikingly similar to the pattern traced by the railroads. With this background the traveler might well expect to find at Chicago airport facilities that would be a model for the entire country—cities usually reflect the importance of an industry centralized in this manner.

While the Municipal airport is by no means inferior in the matter of appointments, its location conveys the impression that the center of air travel is not at but near Chicago. Let us see what air timetables disclose. In ninety-six cities served by the major air lines the schedules state that the traveler must allow thirty-five minutes or less to reach the airport from the hotel district. The lowest time is St. Paul, Minn., at ten minutes, with such cities as Washington, D. C., and Milwaukee, Wis., rated at twenty minutes. Baltimore, Md.; Boston, Mass.; Seattle, Wash., and Salt Lake City, Utah, are numbered in the thirty minute class, while Philadelphia and Detroit require thirty-five minutes. To continue our examination of these air bus time allowances we find that in only twenty cities is the allowance greater than thirty-five minutes. New York, Cleveland, Buffalo, and Cincinnati require forty minutes, while San Francisco and Atlanta provide leeway of forty-five minutes.

But where does Chicago stand? At the bottom of the list. Air ticket offices advise an allowance of from fifty minutes to one hour over a route that follows street car lines and provides exasperating traffic delays for the full distance. Our lake front airport project offers an unexcelled opportunity to welcome this industry to Chicago as well as to aid substantially in its development, and there is no logical reason why steps leading to its construction should not be started without delay.

GREAT LAKES STATION.

THE TRIBUNE did not protest the virtual closing of the Great Lakes station while the President was urging reduction in federal expenditure, although it has always recognized the merits and usefulness of that institution. But now that public money is being spent by the hundreds of millions on all sorts of projects which represent sheer waste as well as bad policy, we can find no respectable reason why a meritorious agency in the nation's first line of defense should be left out in the cold.

The greater per cent of naval recruits has been drawn from the west and naval men say that they are of the highest quality. To give them their first training at Great Lakes has obvious advantages which have often been stated. We know no important reason why these advantages should be sacrificed except that of politics and perhaps of sectional competition. Neither should control. Although federal money is being spent wildly, it should at least be allocated equitably. The seaboard states inevitably have the lion's share of naval spending as well as the chief benefit of naval protection in war, but the midwest, which bears a substantial part of the burden of defense expenditures, is in equity and public policy entitled to a fair share of such benefits as come through this expenditure.

Yet in spite of the demonstrated merits of the Great Lakes station and the just claims of the midwest to a fair deal, the naval budget ignores them and makes no provision for replacing the station on a normal working basis. We hope the Illinois delegation in congress will vigorously and persistently demand that proper provision for its restoration be made as justified both by equity in federal spending and by the station's inherent merits.

WAR WITH JAPAN.

[Peoria Journal-Transcript.]

The handwriting on the wall, as read by some Americans, is that if the United States goes to war again within the next quarter century it will be with Japan. There is an increasing strain between the two nations which may cause an open rupture at any time.

To all who can see behind the screens of diplomacy it is plain that a conflict between the United States and Japan is in the making. It is high time that both the United States and Japan should look at the issue calmly and squarely.

As a matter of fact, no two countries have less reasons for going to war. Although the boundaries of the two powers touch the Pacific there is no real point of friction, either geographically or economically.

Japan should remember that the United States, unlike European nations, is not interested in territorial expansion. We are gradually relinquishing our territories. The principal interest of the United States in the orient lies in the peaceful promotion of trade and commerce.

As far as the United States is concerned foreign trade with Europe is practically a thing of the past. Almost every European country owes this nation billions of dollars and until these loans are paid no new loans will be made. European nations take the position that until new loans are made there will be no trade.

Thus the United States must look to Japan and the orient for trade. To date Japan has paid her loans promptly and has been a good customer for our raw materials. In turn, the United States has been Japan's best customer.

If there is any friction between the United States and Japan it is entirely due to misunderstanding. Japan, on one hand, fancies that the United States has blocked her ambitions in the orient, while the United States has been led to believe that Japan has colonial aspirations on this continent.

If the United States has interfered with Japanese colonial enterprises, Uncle Sam has been merely a cat's-paw dragging European chestnuts out of the Asiatic fire. Great Britain, the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy, and France have territorial ambitions to protect in the orient. The United States has none.

Should the United States go to war with Japan we would be doing the very thing we did in 1916. This country would be fighting Europe's battles all over again. Europe would then have opportunity to furnish supplies and munitions to both Japan and the United States. The nations of Europe could also use the war as a cloak under which to consolidate their own colonial and territorial ambitions in the orient.

As the result of such a war Japan eventually would be defeated. The only leader in the orient would be crippled for generations. Nor would America fare much better. To the present back-breaking load of war debt would be added a new debt to keep additional generations of Americans in poverty.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND HERE IS NEWS! "Wins $19,800 at Monte Carlo." That's as strange and weird as a man biting a dog, which is always quoted as the last word in real news. But winning at Monte Carlo is the biggest of the two stories, because it's the rarest. Even when people make big killings at Monte Carlo they puff up and think that Lady Luck is sitting in their laps, and you couldn't drag 'em away with a block and tackle. And finally the deadly law of averages works against 'em and they go broke and the Casino management kindly gives 'em fifteen or twenty francs to get them off the premises before they commit suicide. But a man won $19,800 at Monte Carlo! Then he must be different from all the other suckers. Not at all. He had to catch a train. We all love to gamble. But catching trains is a gamble, too.

BALLAD OF KRISTIN AND IVAR.

Kristin bit her lips to red,
primly sitting on her chair;
bowed her lovely golden head and borrowed a very seemly air.
She modestly raised her eyes to see who stood before adoringly.

The smiles of this youthful one lay like sunlight on his face.
He called her daughter of the sun and proffered her some flowering lace.
"I picked it by the brook at dawn—come back with me! It's not all gone!"

Ivar helped her from her throne and walked beside her down the hall.
Her steps were soft upon the stone, her echoed laugh a finch's call.
They were a lady and her knight until they reached the outside light.

The guardsman opened wide the gate, bowing low before the two.
Her mien was sweet and delicate until her skirts at last swung through, when suddenly the maid and lord ran swift as deer across the sward.

Her mother watched a happy hour how laughingly they ran and played, and called her husband to her bower to look upon their pretty maid.
"Methinks," she said, "they two are fit to enter the great hall and sit."

He deemed that she had spoken wise and laid a kiss upon her arm.
She smiled upon him with her eyes and prayed, "God save us all from harm."
They walked together down the room in the still and lofty gloom.

Lord and lady, maid and youth, met beside the loft-room stair.
"Daughter, your mother has spoken truth in saying you are grown and fair.
Tonight you both may come and dine with all the knights and ladies fine."

Kristin curtsied where she stood and vowed she'd bear her with good care, remember to be sweet and good and keep her garland on her hair.
She laughed aloud when her father said she would be nodding her sleepy head.

At eventide they sat at board as straight and smiling as the rest, every lady with her lord and all attired in their best.
But Kristin and her youth slept fast ere the wine was ever passed.

The host wiped off his gleaming knife and drained another mug of ale.
Turning, he whispered, "Sweet my wife, when we have finished with this tale you'd best have someone bed them down.
Kristin's asleep in her velvet gown."

Many a day and night went by ere they were bidden again to sup, with all the others sitting by,
who could not hold their young heads up.
But ere another year was gone they drank their betrothal-ale till dawn.

I DON'T say anything at all about dollar inflation, not one way or the other, but I do think somebody is around with an air pump or something blowing up the price of groceries. They'll have to inflate my dollar after a while so that it can rise up in the air as high as the grocery prices. And I'd like 'em to attach the air pump to me so that I could go along up and keep company with my dollar.

"BITES NEIGHBOR'S EAR; Pays Two Thousand Dollars Damages."—Headline. One has to be fair; that is, one ought to be. When I make a mistake I always acknowledge it. Oh, not out loud, but in a hoarse, confidential whisper when the doors are locked, the windows down, and I'm all alone. But this time I step right out in the open and admit I was wrong. When I read that caption about a man's biting his neighbor's ear I thought, of course, it happened in a bridge game and that the neighbor had trumped the gentleman's ace. A moment's reflection convinced me I was wrong. If it had happened in a bridge game they wouldn't have noticed it except to say, "It's your play, Lutie," or "Oh, don't be rude!" or something like that. I read the story and found my suspicions were justified; it didn't happen in a bridge game at all, but in some sort of bungalow back fence fight.

IT'S COMING, the right time, and if it's going to be—well, let's have it now. It's getting on to cherry blossom time in Japan, and if we just have to invade that place it would be nice to do so when the cherry trees are full of blossoms. We should certainly all strive to take the horror out of war and the cherry blossoms would help a lot.

THE TONGUE TALKS.

THE tongue may refuse to disclose secrets, but it frequently talks to a medical man in a language that he best can understand. An 18th century physician once said, "Let me see your tongue and feel your pulse and I will tell you what is wrong." Of course this is a statement that would be laughed at today, but because the older physicians observed more closely, the tongue told them a much more extended tale. Every medical examination should include a careful inspection of the tongue and of the mouth.

The mouth ordinarily contains large numbers of bacteria of many sorts. They are aided in their growth by inflammation, ulcerations of the mucous membrane, decaying teeth, and diseased tonsils. These bacteria lodge on the papillae [tiny projections] and in the crevices of the tongue, and multiply in a warm and moist culture bed. As the individual swallows they are rubbed off with the scales to which they are attached, pass into the stomach, and may add consternation to the already numerous families of bacteria in the intestine. Whenever the tongue is constantly furred or coated there is a thickening of the outer layers and an increase in the number of bacteria. The individual whose mouth tastes as though a Hottentot family had just moved out usually has but little appetite.

Certain diseases may be identified by the appearance of the tongue. In pernicious anemia, although the symptoms of inflammation are lacking, the tongue becomes smooth and glossy. In pellagra the tongue shows irregular patches of inflammation. In diseases accompanied by a high temperature, particularly intestinal obstruction, peritonitis, and typhoid fever, the tongue has a characteristic thick brown fur. Brownish areas on the mucous membranes of the mouth and tongue are noted in Addison's disease.

Inflammation may occur in the tongue as in any other tissue or structure of the body. There may be swelling so extensive as to interfere with breathing, causing the tongue to protrude from the mouth. Sometimes the inflammation is confined to one side of the tongue. The condition has occurred with infections such as erysipelas and streptococcic inflammation of the throat. Swelling is often so severe that the constant application of ice will be required.

The mouth is kept moist through the secretion of the saliva producing glands, principally the submaxillary and the parotid, and a healthy tongue depends largely upon the free flow of saliva from these sources. Along with an investigation of the tongue one should make certain that the mouth is amply provided with saliva, as a dry mouth is usually a diseased mouth. Curiously enough, calculi or stones may form in the salivary glands or in a duct leading from a gland to the mouth just as they may form in the urinary bladder, in the gall bladder, or in the kidneys. Perhaps stagnation of the secretion causes deposits of calcium salts. At any rate, these stones may bring about a stoppage of the free flow of saliva from the glands to the mouth, with a swelling of the glands involved. As a rule diagnosis can be made by means of X-ray and the stone removed surgically.

The importance of good mouth hygiene cannot be too strongly emphasized. This means a clean tongue, free from food débris and too many bacteria. No matter how hard we try, the mouth cannot be rendered sterile. We can, however, rid it of millions of organisms by proper habits of eating and by keeping the teeth and tongue clean.

As a tongue cleaner, a tooth brush is too harsh and only a soft rubber brush should be used.

NATURALIZATION PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, March 1.—[Friend of the People.]—I know a man who is an American born citizen and intends to marry a girl of German birth who came to America in 1926. She had a declaration of intention [first paper], but the same has expired by limitation of law. 1. Would their marriage automatically make her an American citizen? 2. Would she have to file again, and if so, how long would it take before she could become a citizen? G. C.

1. No; an alien woman does not gain citizenship by marriage to a citizen on or after Sept. 22, 1922.
2. The wife of a citizen may apply for naturalization without a declaration of intention. The naturalization proceeding in such a case would take approximately five months, provided that the other requirements of the naturalization law could be met.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director Immigration and Naturalization, Chicago District.

NOT A CITIZEN.

Chicago, March 2.—Friend of the People.]—A friend was born in Europe and came to America in his childhood. In the year 1919, at the age of 18, he joined the navy and came back in 1921. He was not overseas. I want to know if that made him a citizen of the United States. B. S.

Under the facts stated the subject is not a citizen of the United States and in order to become one must comply with the requirements of the general naturalization law, that is, file a declaration of intention [first paper] and when the same is at least two and not over seven years old apply for naturalization. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,

FLYING STORIES

By Test Pilot Jim Collins

A man came up to me for a flight test once when I was an inspector for the department of commerce. He flew terribly, so I sent him away and told him to come back in a couple of weeks after he had practiced a little more. He came back a couple of weeks later and I turned him down again.

The third time he came in he said, "I think we'll get along all right this time. Can I take the test today?"

"I'm too busy today," I told him. But he pleaded so hard that I finally said, "All right, I'll squeeze you in this afternoon. Come at 3 o'clock."

"Thank you, thank you," he said, and held out his hand.

I reached out my hand and when I gripped his I felt something in the palm of my hand. I pulled my hand away and found a piece of paper in it. I unfolded it and discovered it was a ten dollar bill.

I stood there and looked at it, puzzled and amazed for a few seconds. Then the full import of it dawned on me. He thought I had been holding out for something. He thought he would fix me up. He didn't know he could never fix me up if I put my stamp of approval on him when he was unfit and he should then go out and kill some passenger because of my leniency.

It started at the top of my head, that raging anger. It burned like flaming coals and raced through my veins like fire. I began to tremble violently and when I looked up the man was a red flame in a red room.

I hurled the paper bill at him as though it were a javelin and shouted, "Get out! Get out and don't ever come back!"

Have you ever thrown a piece of paper at anybody?

The bill fluttered ineffectually down to the floor half way between us. I rushed at it and kicked at it until it was out of the door. I kicked him out, too.

I wondered, sitting at my desk afterward, why I had got so mad. It wasn't honesty. I hadn't had time to think of honesty. I wondered if it was because he had implied that I was worth only 10 dollars. I wondered what I would have done if he had offered me ten thousand dollars. I began to understand graft.

A STANDARDIZED PRODUCT.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—That there should appear in a newspaper always first to defend freedom of the press and the other traditional American civil liberties an editorial favoring legislation requiring that school teachers take oaths of allegiance to the American constitution is an amusing sign of the bewildered thinking current today.

Americanize the school? How quaint! The school is Americanized—all the way to the colleges; that's the tragedy! Have you ever met the college co-ed, the most standardized product in America today—and the most uninteresting? Do you know the American college senior [overgrown sophomore] who dates her? He is equally regimented! It is tragic and nationally suicidal that in the American universities Americanization should be so rife and individualism so utterly dead!

That the cream of our youth should, during these momentous times, be so unresponsively mute is symptom enough of how far gone we are toward submission to any dictatorship.

The best security American liberty could have is not keeping youth ignorant of other institutions but, year by year, vaccinating them with knowledge thereof so that in the resultant turmoil and comparisons the superiority of the American theory of liberty could be duly demonstrated.

The great trouble with American schools is that they're all student body and practically no student mind. No government can long endure with such a condition rampant among its future leaders. LORENZ.

OATHS OF ALLEGIANCE.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Your editorial, "Allegiance of the Teachers," is notable for an utter lack of that logic which usually distinguishes a TRIBUNE editorial. Were not the members of the present and of the preceding congress sworn to preserve and protect the constitution, and for that matter was not President Roosevelt himself so sworn? Do you think this formality has restrained any of them from making hash of it any time it stands in the way of a pet project?

UKRAINIANS IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—In Mr. Small's article published in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE Feb. 24 entitled "Czech Problem of Unity" he stated that during his travels in the easternmost province of Czechoslovakia, called Sub-Carpathian Russia, he found there Ukrainians, Ruthenians, Russians, Magyars, and Jews. But the majority of the population, he said, is composed of Ruthenians and Russians.

First of all the proper name of that easternmost province of Czechoslovakia is not Sub-Carpathian Russia, but the Sub-Carpathian Ukraine, and the majority of the population in that province is not Ruthenians or Russians [Great or Little], but Ukrainians.

Unfortunately, with all due credit to the Czechoslovakian government for its generous support of the Ukrainian educational institutions in Prague and Podebrady, it stubbornly refuses for political purposes to call the Ukrainians in the Sub-Carpathian region by their proper name. For example, when the Ukrainian Teachers' association recently applied for a charter the government refused it on the ground that the inhabitants of the Sub-Carpathian region were not Ukrainians but "Ruthenians," in spite of the fact that the Academy of Science at Prague has recognized the Ukrainian language as the tongue of the inhabitants of that particular province.

CONFISCATION.

Independence, Ia., Feb. 26.—When the powers that be punish individuals for failing to go along with the majority in the conduct of any particular business or industry, that business or industry becomes public and not private. Such a course destroys enterprise and prohibits initiative, and by so much prevents recovery.

Who, in the exercise of ordinary common business sense, would invest capital and labor in an industry knowing that governmental interference or regulation in which he has no voice may make it impossible for him ever to recover capital invested, to say nothing of realizing reasonable profit from his investment?

Talk about taxation without representation! EDWIN DUKES.

GERMAN-AMERICAN TRADE.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 26.—The alarming decrease of United States exports to Germany proves the boycott of German goods in this country to be a destructive game of colossal folly.

THE MODEL WIFE.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—After reading the cartoon by McCutcheon in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE I was fit to be tied.

The very idea, "The Model Wife: Do You Know Her?" Know her? Why, there would be thousands like her if only there were more model husbands. Any wife would be a model wife with a husband as illustrated in the cartoon—thoughtful of his wife; preferring her company to that of visitors; showing interest in her hat; worrying over her washing a few pots and pans for a few days while other wives do it every blessed day; proud of his children and actually finding time to romp and play with them instead of burying his nose in a newspaper and then off to bed without a cheery word for them, and telling stories to his wife instead of some other woman! Last but not least, giving her a cozy, comfortable home instead of stuffing her away in some one room kitchenette apartment.

MRS. ALTON TAYLOR.

THE ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Your editorial, "Junk for Japan," ends with a slur on the ordnance department of the army, which seems to be characteristic of your paper.

Does your staf actually believe that the ordnance department can get or spend money as it pleases? [Please recall that it is not a part of the New Deal.] Just what would you have the department do? You have been making destructive criticisms for some time, but it would better help the cause of preparedness—which I suppose to be your aim—if you were to suggest some practical ways in which to improve the department's work.

In the meantime you must realize that your criticism will always poison some other uninformed minds and make it increasingly difficult for the department to obtain the coöperation of the public in carrying on its peacetime program for a reasonable state of preparedness.

IOWA BALKS ON LAWS WRITTEN BY NEW DEALERS

Contend Proposals Would Nullify Statutes.

Des Moines, Ia., March 3.—[Special.]—Gov. Clyde L. Herring of Iowa has balked at the efforts of New Dealers in Washington, D. C., to rewrite some of the fundamental laws of this state.

The governor is a Democrat. He "wants to coöperate" with the national administration, but he does not believe that such coöperation makes mandatory the passage by the Iowa legislature of bills written by Brain Trusters hundreds of miles away.

20 Measures Offered.

The governor said he recently received twenty bills from the office of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. These have been turned over to Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor for a "complete analysis."

"After the measures have been studied, the attorney general will file a brief on each bill to accompany it into the hands of the legislative committees," the governor said.

Bills "Entirely Unacceptable."

The governor revealed that six bills sent to Iowa by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation proved "entirely unacceptable" in the form in which they were presented.

"Why, one of those bills would empower Washington men to act as receivers for our banks," the governor said.

Herring said provisions of some of the bills offered by Secretary Ickes would, among other things, affect the Iowa statutes on debt limitations and would nullify the law under which the state is conducting itself financially.

FISH CAN SAVE G. O. P. IN 1936, SAYS KNUTSON

Washington, D. C., March 3.—(AP)—The hat of Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York rested tonight in the 1936 presidential ring after being tossed into the circle by Representative Harold Knutson, Republican, Minnesota.

Only last night Fish, one of the New Deal's most persistent critics, told the country its salvation lay in electing a Republican to the White House in 1936.

"He would appeal to agriculture, to the younger element, and likewise to conservative and liberal, in that he stands for constitutional government and believes in keeping abreast of the times," said Knutson. "While Mr. Fish is from the east, he would have a strong appeal to the west because of his well known liberal views and record in congress.

"I know of no one who has a broader appeal to all elements than Mr. Fish, and with him as our standard bearer in 1936 I am satisfied we can sweep the country."

CHARLES HAYES EXTORT TARGET AT WINTER HOME

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 3.—[Special.]—Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, was the target of an attempted extortion plot which involved a threat to bomb his palatial seaside home, it was announced today by Sherif W. H. Lawrence.

A man who identified himself as Frederick Lancaster of St. Joseph, Mich., formerly of Seattle, Wash., has confessed the plot, according to Sherif Lawrence.

Friday, the sherif said, a note signed "Norman Hoyt" was delivered at the Hayes home by Lancaster. It carried a warning that the residence would be bombed unless $300 was sent to a West Palm Beach address. Police went to the address and seized Lancaster.

Hayes and his family have been here at their winter home for several weeks.

Quiz 3 Today in Girl's Death Laid to an Illegal Operation

Assistant State's Attorney Irwin Clorfene said yesterday he expects to question a physician, a lawyer and a woman today in his investigation of the death of Miss Marie Dwyer as the result of an alleged illegal operation. Dr. Maurice Dale, 3368 Harrison street, and Dr. Frank R. Braune, 306 South Wabash avenue, are at liberty on $10,000 bail on a charge of murder by abortion. Prosecutor Clorfene said the three he intends to question were named by Mrs. Mossie Crockett, office assistant to Dr. Braune, who told Saturday of witnessing the operation on Miss Dwyer.

Good Morning!

Those two hard looking, tender hearted, wise cracking cronies, Inspector Piper of the New York police force, and Miss Hildegarde Withers, erstwhile school teacher, co-sleuth again in this picture.

They met, if you remember, in "The Penguin Murder Case," at which time Hildegarde was just a school teacher with a passion for deduction. "Murder on a Blackboard"—which hasn't played here yet—again found them with their heads together. In "Murder on a Honeymoon" Hildegarde has given up teaching and is on her own as a detective.

In an airplane—whose passengers include a honeymoon couple—bound for Catalina Island a man dies suddenly.

The supposition is that he's keeled over from heart failure. But——

"No such thing," decides Hildegarde Withers—and forthwith starts making a perfect pest of herself with her ferreting.

Ere long Mr. Piper is at her side—the deceased proving to be a man the New York police have been looking for. . . . And the tale goes merrily and murderously on its way.

Edna May Oliver and James Gleason are an ideal team for this sort of serio-comic mystery thing. They have snappy support, and the director was astute about hiding the real facts in the case from the palpitating observer.

"Murder on a Honeymoon" hands out laughs with its punches—and both are frequent enough to satisfy the average fan.

Ceremony April 23

Mr. and Mrs. James George Hodgkinson, 4926 Kimbark avenue, are making known the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn, to Ferdinand Nathan Gundrum Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Nathan Gundrum, and at the same time announcing the wedding plans. Miss Hodgkinson and Mr. Gundrum will be married at 8:30 o'clock the evening of April 23 at St. Paul's church, with a reception following at the South Shore Country club.

A bevy of attendants will precede Miss Hodgkinson to the altar. Miss Margaret Goes is to be her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will include Miss Harriet Rush, Miss Ellen Quinn, Miss Gladys Sullivan, and Miss Harriet Henneberry. George Schnur is to be best man for Mr. Gundrum, and ushering will be Frank Nahser, Thomas Cochran, Robert Langford, and Ralph Webster.

Miss Hodgkinson is a graduate of the Kenwood Loring school, and Mr. Gundrum is a graduate of the University of Chicago, where he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. After a wedding trip to White Sulphur Springs they will make their home at the Blackwood, 52d street and Blackstone avenue, where many newlyweds have recently moved, including the young Tilden Cummingses.

Start Constructive Action During Lent, Bishop Hughes Urges

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of Washington, D. C., senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, spoke last night before the Sunday Evening club. He urged more "taking on" during the Lenten season and less "giving up." From 1924 to 1932 Bishop Hughes was in charge of the Chicago area.

"Lent, upon which we are now entering, should be not merely a season for giving up certain pleasures," said Bishop Hughes. "More positively it should be a season for taking on permanently constructive action; not merely an emptying out but a filling up of our lives with worthwhile activities."

The peril of creating a vacancy is apparent in the unemployment problem, he declared. With its forced freedom from work, he warned, it may turn idle hands over to mischief.

Benefit Opera Announced for Girls' Mission

Society Busy Planning Post-Lenten Events.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALTHOUGH the Lenten season beginning on Wednesday brings a lull in most social activities, a number of charity-minded committees are looking beyond Lent and Easter, which falls on April 14 this year, to spring events that will provide funds for several of the city's most deserving institutions.

The Church Mission of Health, working through a half dozen important ladies in St. Chrysostom's and St. James' churches, announces this morning that it has taken over the opening performance of the San Carlo Opera company's engagement here, Monday, April 29, as a benefit for its work. Already twelve boxes have been sold.

The performance scheduled for the opening night is that of "Madame Butterfly," with Mme. Hizikoyke, the Japanese prima donna, in the title rôle. Mrs. D. Mark Cummings is chairman of the benefit with Mrs. James R. Offield and Mrs. Bruce Borland as vice chairmen. Mrs. William M. Collins Jr. [Louise Neff] has promised to round up some young and pretty matrons and post-debs to usher. Others serving on the committee include Mrs. Dudley S. Stark, wife of the pastor of St. Chrysostom's; Mrs. Duncan H. Browne, whose husband is the rector at St. James'; Mrs. Homer W. Bang, Mrs. Edward F. Hamm, Mrs. Emily R. Gridley, Mrs. Clarence Melhope, and Mrs. William Humphreys.

Mission Aids Girls 16 to 25 Years Old.

The Church mission is an organization devoted to the care of Protestant girls between the ages of 16 and 25. Its purpose is to aid girls whose problems, mental, moral, social, and spiritual, are serious beyond the ability of their families or themselves to remedy them.

The early birds among the boxholders include Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Mrs. Ruthven Dean, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Harold C. Smith, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Bishop and Mrs. George Craig Stewart, Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. Humphreys, Frederick T. Haskell, and Wells Martin.

Among those who are interested in the success of the benefit—all of them stanch supporters of the two Episcopal churches mentioned above—are Mrs. Harold Eldridge, Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. John A. Spoor, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, Mrs. Thomas H. Hinde, Mrs. Frank B. Mulford, Mrs. Alan C. Dixon, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. Robert S. Peck, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Freemont Chandler, Mrs. Clarence McCarthy, Mrs. Albert Cotsworth Jr., Mrs. Nathan Davis III., and Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Crofton.

Madonna Center Party Leaders Return to City.

With several of the committee members for the Madonna Center dinner-dance April 27 at the Palmer house just back in town, plans will be moving forward rapidly for this party.

Checks Smart for Spring

From a Chicago shop—Checked wool two piece suit, with a smart short reversible jacket featuring the flared back peplum. An ascot scarf of the checked wool ties in the neckline.

Style Demands Smooth Underlayers

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Again the solemn warning! If you would wear the new spring clothes and appear the crisp, smooth lady of fashion such clothes should make you appear, you will, if you value your peace of mind as you pass a revealing mirror, spend plenty of time and as much money as you can on proper foundation underlayers.

Every curve you have should be under control. All these impeccably tailored slim daytime suits need streamline silhouettes. Otherwise the snap is missing. You can't expect a dress to fit, no matter how expensive it is, if you do not wear the smooth new underlayers that make such a fitting possible.

Everything in the world has been done to make these foundation layers the smoothest, most flattering article of any wardrobe. Two way stretch satin lastex, insets adroitly inserted to make them fit like a second skin, talon fasteners [zippers to most of us] leave no trace of where they begin or end and flat trick garters are the marks of the new underlayers.

These 1935 corsets, corselettes, girdles, all-in-ones or whatever you call them, are not even distantly related to the old fashioned atrocities. Armor plate and iron women effects are taboo. Youthful and average figures are fitted with models without even a suggestion of bones, while models for large figures are miracles of super-designing, with the minimum of boning, if any. There are some new successes for short figures that come in what is called half sizes. See these new underlayers and be fitted before you buy your new spring clothes.

Fashion photograph. . . . One of the snappy spring suits featuring small checks in two contrasting shades, beige and tobacco brown. The short jacket has the flared perky back peplum like a bustle and the jacket can also be worn with the beige checks outside or reversed as a contrast. It's from a Chicago shop.

Goya, Beliajus Give Afternoon of Dancing Art

Spanish Star Is Eye Filling in Varied Program.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Carola Goya in Spanish dances at Orchestra hall and Vytautas Finadar Beliajus and his group in dances of Lithuania and other countries at the Studebaker theater converted yesterday afternoon into a dancing instead of the customary concert schedule.

It has been several years since Miss Goya last appeared in Chicago. She has made use of the interval by becoming a much better dancer than before. Most of her dances are of her own creation, but she manages to differentiate them so that each conveys its own illusion. She is lithe and alert, she has an expressive face as well as body, and she would seem to be in complete mastery of the technic of the art, particularly in such matters as the tap of the heels and the rattle of the castanets. These become real musical instruments. At one time she is inviting and evasive with all the alluring grace in the world, at another she is full of the rowdy vitality of the gypsy, but always she is eye filling.

With her were two musicians who became important parts of the program. Norman Secon, a first class pianist, played for her as well as solos for the audience. Beatrice Burford, harpist, would seem to know everything about the harp, but also how to select the program and play it so that the harp can take its own place as a solo instrument.

Mr. Beliajus and his associates have evidently specialized in folk dances. In solo, duet, and group dances they performed a series of gentle, graceful evolutions that make folk dancing one of the attractive arts. Dances of other lands were presented by other soloists. Michele Gamboni appeared in dances of Africa, India, and Persia; Violet Strand in those of Morocco, India, and Cambodia.

Rose Bampton, the contralto, is seriously ill and her recital, announced for the afternoon at the Chicago Woman's Club theater under the auspices of the Musicians' Club of Women, has been postponed until March 25.

Artists of the Chicago Opera, banding together under the name of Chicago Opera Tour, Inc., will go out next week for a brief tour that will take them from Minneapolis to Texas. Edith Mason, Maria Jeritza, Coe Glade, Giuseppe Bentonelli, Helen Ornstein, Ada Paggi, and Carlo Morelli are among the singers enrolled. Isaac Van Grove and Leo Kopp will conduct, and Harry Beatty will be the technical director. With route and datings announced as incomplete, it is told that the company will present four operas before the University of Minnesota, and that there will be several one night stops presenting acts from various operas.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

A FRIEND—really a friend of Sandy and Binge's, for she comes to take them for long walks, as she used to the late lamented Jitters — dropped in and brought with her an envelope of clippings and letters of sentimental and historic interest. Among the yellowed letters and invitations which her grandmother Lawrence, who was a Miss Wadsworth of New York, had received, was a front page torn from the New York Herald of Dec. 29, 1856. One interesting item on the page was headed "Polygamy in Utah," and bore a Fillmore City date line. The piece follows:

"As it may be a matter of interest to the gentile world to know how fast our people are in Utah Territory, I will give you briefly a list of the standing among the women of the members of the last legislature—that is, their names and the number of wives—to wit:

"Of the members of the council:

George A. Smith, cripple and near-sighted	5

THE same item continues, enumerating the personnel of the legislature, twenty-six members and the five officers, with 179 wives.

"To which add 68 for the number of wives then living of Gov. Young and you have the whole number of females thus represented by the members of the legislature, officers of same and his excellency, amounting to 420; or in other words, 48 men have 420 wives. These, Mr. Editor, are sober truths, and in what they end is for the dark and doleful future."

OF personal interest in the envelope of letters and clippings left by Elizabeth Mead was a complete file on the life of Jitters, the wire haired terrier who made frequent appearance in these columns. All paragraphs mentioning Jitters had been carefully clipped, including accounts of his early blindness, the operation for the removal of cataracts, the touching little verse written after his death by a reader who had never known him, and printed in the column; even a catalog of an art exhibit that included a painting of Jitters. Only one thing was missing, and that, I think, should be supplied here—the little black bordered rectangle of space that announced the passing of Jitters. It read merely "JITTERS, 1928-1931," but it announced to his friends that, the operation to restore his sight not being successful, Jitters had been put to sleep.

That was yesterday that the Jitters file fell into my hands, and the evening before a distinguished Winnetka gentleman hitherto a stranger, except by reputation, who was a guest at the same party, made reference to Jitters. The terrier has been gone nearly four years. One is forced to the conclusion that readers do like to hear about dogs.

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts the hazardous though thrilling post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced, threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, though she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables dies. Her death is attributed to natural causes. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had had prosecuted. Miss Venables' particular friends in Ste. Brigitte, besides Dr. Gilcrest, are the Baron and Baroness Henri de Bellesnaves, Beryl Tomlins, town librarian and harmless gossip, and a few old residents of the resort hotel. Sarah gathers that Dr. Gilcrest is in love with the baroness. Harry arrives. The evil looking gardener of the De Bellesnaves arouses Sarah's suspicions.

INSTALMENT XIX.

A DUAL CHARACTER.

"Demo is a lazy, drunken beast," the baroness fumed. "I'd send him packing tomorrow, but Henri is too soft-hearted."

In spite of this manifest loathing Sarah still fancied her hostess' ill-temper had another cause, and that now, as she lay slim and childish in her white pique frock and coquettish scarlet sandals, it was of the adamant Gilcrest she was thinking. Sarah likewise regretted his absence, though her brief glimpse of him just now had shown her a man so harassed with work that she had felt a moment's elation to note how little the baroness' pleadings seemed to move him. She began to hope that after all the attraction was more one-sided than she had supposed, her spirits rising accordingly.

A light yawn, a stir, and pungent fragrance reached her nostrils as her companion raised herself on her elbows to survey the scene with dreamily glowing eyes. First she gazed speculatively at Harry, who, his chestnut curls ruffled by the breeze and a pipe-stem bitten between his lips, was staring absently out to sea; then, wriggling closer to Sarah, she put a pensive query.

"Does dear Chrissie still cling to her belief about the major's death?"

"Do you happen to know if dear Chrissie still clings to her belief about the poor major's death last spring?"

Sarah looked at Harry. As he gave no sign of interest she made a discreet rejoinder.

"I think she continues to be a little mystified over certain features, but she hasn't said much. I've been wondering about it, too. That evening, before he left your house, did he give you the impression of being upset over anything?"

"I did not notice it." The baroness shook her head slowly. "Nor did Henri. And you, 'Arrie? Did you think the major was worried?"

"Not he." Harry turned a moment in their direction and blew a cloud of smoke into the clear air. "He was winning, wasn't he? Which always put him in a good humor. It was at the end of the second rubber his headache came on, if I remember rightly. He had a bottle of aspirin in his pocket and took two, with a stiff whisky and soda, but it did no good, and presently he gave up."

"What did he have to drink before the whisky and soda?" asked Sarah casually.

"Ah!" Mme. de Bellesnaves' monosyllable was significant. "Several cocktails and Bordeaux all through dinner, with a liqueur to follow. The point is, what did he take before he came to us? Because I had an idea he was a little—how shall I say?—exalted when he arrived."

"Old Frampton?" Harry smiled reminiscently. "O, I can tell you that part of it. When he came in from golf he always took a couple of stiff ones. That was his rule; and that night I picked him up in the bar getting outside a strong gin-and-bitters." He hesitated, apologetically. "I've had to keep mum on the subject, you know, but—well, you saw for yourself, didn't you? He was unsteady on his pins when he insisted on footing it back to the hotel. That's why I called out to him to wait and let me give him a lift."

And even after this the double brandy at the café Sarah had been picturing the major in the gloom of his homeward walk coming suddenly on a pair of whispering conspirators—Demosthenes and a confederate?—and catching just enough of a plot against Miss Venables and himself to send him terror-stricken to the safety of the bar before hurrying on with his dire news. Now her theory was shaken. With such an assortment of drink aboard the man must have been befuddled to the point of distorting whatever he saw. . . .

Harry created a diversion by begging the baroness to give them one of her famous imitations.

She hung back, protesting. Never had Sarah seen the exquisite face more Madonnalike, though she had a faint suspicion the look of exaggerated purity was assumed by way of jest. Then, like a flash, the transformation came and took away her breath. Gone was every vestige of beauty, in its place the lineaments of a gibbering ape, bestial, perverse. The contracted eyes became soulless and cunning. Sarah gasped and laughed, but to her the thing was not funny. For the moment she had the curious feeling that two beings dwelt in the woman's body, one of them a changeling always ready to leap forth and wreak mischief. Even the red-tipped nails seemed to her an animal's claws dripping with blood. To the accompaniment of a shrill shriek they lunged at her face so that she shrank back with an uncontrolable shudder of disgust. . . .

Harry's rapturous shout broke the spell. Instantly the actress was herself again, and shrugging in mock disdain demanded a cigaret.

"There! Are you satisfied? Then leave me in peace. I have a book to read which Brian has lent me—and Sarah, if I'm not mistaken—" her eyes lit with a mischievous smile—"must recover from a shock."

Although Sarah knew she was being teased, she later admitted to Harry that the sight of the vivid caricature had for a second been disconcerting.

"Perhaps it was too lifelike. Anyhow, I don't want to see her do it again. It was a sort of nightmare."

Harry laughed. "You're imaginative, aren't you? But you're level-headed, too. I noticed how cagey you were when she got on the subject of Chrissie. Good girl!" He patted her bandaged hand.

"I remembered she wasn't supposed to know what has been happening. But, Harry," Sarah continued earnestly, "you and I have never really discussed those letters. Have you any theory about them?"

He shook his head, but she fancied his sunburned face turned a ruddier hue. Seeing him reluctant to commit himself she resumed: "Has it ever occurred to you that someone in this town bears your aunt a grudge and is taking advantage of what came out during the inquest to lead her off on a false scent? It might be a blind, you see, to protect the writer in case another accident took place and there was an inquiry."

"There won't be another accident," he answered confidently. "And I shouldn't wonder if the threats had come to an end, too. Somehow I feel the whole bally thing has petered out—though I can't give any reason except that it's nearly two months now since the last scare."

It was less than four weeks since the March letter arrived, but on the point of setting him right Sarah recalled that Miss Venables had not informed him of that particular letter lest he oppose her journey south. In a curious way he made her feel the anonymous letters were a delicate subject, and this, oddly enough, was much the same impression the doctor had given her during their memorable passage at arms.

Miss Venables met them in the lounge with the news that Beryl Tomlins had returned from Nice only to take to her bed.

"Isn't it a shame? Too much rich food, and by rights she ought to diet very carefully."

Thus it was that the heart-to-heart talk with the librarian was again postponed; but two days later it materialized, most unexpectedly, Sarah was left on her own, Harry having driven his aunt to their friends in St. Raphael, and since it was a Wednesday when the doctor's errand-boy took a half-holiday she volunteered to call for the prescription Miss Venables was in the habit of taking. Arrived at the side door opening into the dispensary she heard two feminine voices raised in argument. The soft, stubborn one belonged to Dr. Gilcrest's dispenser, Marjory Barrows; the heartier, rougher tones she recognized as Miss Tomlins' own. From the little she caught she could guess what was happening. The returned wanderer was doing her utmost to retail an item of choice gossip which Miss Barrows, a conscientious reticent soul, was bent on discouraging.

Spring Calls for Toning of Hair and Scalp

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

This is the hair-toning season of the year. Things happen to hair in the spring as they happen to complexions. Blemishes appear unexpectedly with the general upheaval of springtime.

If you really want your hair to respond quickly with life and luster and greater glory all round for your spring chapeau [for the hair is come to be three quarters of the success of your hat] you might do well to put yourself on a spring diet, say a week of fruits and vegetables mainly with perhaps, a steak, lamb chop, or chicken course at dinner time, when you might also include two green vegetables or on green vegetable and a salad.

Get the system cleaned out thoroughly. There's an immediate reflection in the hair quality when this is done. There's no hokum about this. I personally have seen it happen time and time again. You know, without my telling it, how hair is affected when one is ill. The same goes for their reflecting a better state of physical being.

Of course, that wave for which you pay your hard earned money, keeps you from using the hair brush. But suppose you say: "Oh, let the wave go hang for a couple of weeks. I'm going to brush my hair, wave or no wave." Then do it. You'll see what scalp massage lies in that hair brush. Even two weeks' daily care will work wonders, after which you'll arrange somehow to get more hair brushing done.

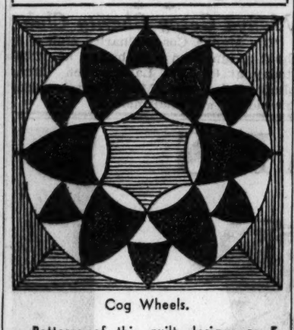
Cog Wheel Forms Basic Design of Intricate Quilt



Cog Wheels.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

"Cog Wheels" is one of the old quilt patterns which requires extraordinary time and patience to piece. When the blocks are completed and set together and the quilting done in outline, "Cogwheels" is one of the outstanding quilts in its field. A good quality of quilting cotton must be used in any coverlet if one wishes to bring out the beauty of the quilting and the pattern. The blocks are 18 inches square when finished and may be set together with 3 inch bands to match one of the colors in the quilt or joined block to block, forming a continuous design.

With her second book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents (12 cents by mail). The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

FREEZONE

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

If you're in the mood for a costume accessory that's as swish as it's sensible, don't overlook the compact and lipstick sets that whirled into the Chicago shops just last week. The lipstick is as nice as it can be and the compact is for loose powder—and we hope the makers of those with cake powder won't froth at the mouth when we assert flatly that we think that's what most women prefer.

There are three cases from which to choose, both for the compact and the lipsticks. The set in ivory and gold finish is chastely simple but feminine. A corded drumstick crest is set in the center of the powder case. This ivory and gold combination, by the way, is very new for this house and they're to be congratulated on it.

Another set is black and gold—sophisticated looking and quite the smart thing for the woman who fancies black. But our personal pet is the set in red, white, and blue. The compact is white, with a tricolor crest, and the lipstick case, also white, has a red band at one end, a blue at the other, with simulated cording stretched between. It's gay as can be.

This same house has just launched a gardenia bath powder that will be impossible to resist, what with its lovely fragrance and its ivory and gold drumstick carton. There's just something about the scent of gardenia that makes most women yern for it. It has the cool, almost insolent detachment that those of us less sure of ourselves accept as one of the stamps of the siren—and who, in her secret, feminine heart doesn't wish there were something sirenish about her? Even if it's only the fragrance she wears?

This dusting powder is feathery in texture and as charming in fragrance as the velvety white gardenia itself. Fluffing it on after the bath will make you feel like one of the chosen daughters.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

[For information about the compact and lipstick sets and the gardenia bath powder call Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100.]

MacKinlay Kantor in Chicago; New Book to Appear Tomorrow

MacKinlay Kantor, young Iowa author, who made his first literary appearance some eight years ago with "Diversey," a novel of Chicago, arrived here yesterday in between engagements on a lecture tour of the central west. In 1927 he came to Chicago by cattle train, carrying the manuscript of his first novel.

Both that novel, "Diversey," and his second, "El Goes South," also laid in Chicago, were well received. His third, "Long Remember," was a Literary Guild selection and a nation-wide best seller. His fourth book, "Turkey in the Straw," comes off the press tomorrow.

"Turkey in the Straw," he explained, is a volume of American ballads, consisting of some 40 poems dealing with the middle west and civil war days. Many of these first appeared in A Line-o'-Type or Two column of THE TRIBUNE in 1925 and 1926.

which is always one of the gayest of the spring. Miss Mary Agnes Amberg and Miss Marie Plamondon, both committee members, came back to Chicago yesterday from Colorado Springs where they went a week ago for the marriage of Noel Cremin to Robert Perlitz. Another who came home yesterday and is a committee member is Mrs. Frank M. Gordon. Mrs. Gordon has been enjoying a winter holiday in Palm Beach with her sister, Miss Cecile Corboy.

Other members of the committee include Mrs. Julius T. Benedict, Mrs. David F. Bremner, Mrs. James S. Clare, Mrs. Thomas J. Conlon, Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin, who is still in Broadmoor, Colo., where her daughter was married; Mrs. George F. Douaire Jr., Mrs. Arthur A. Goes, Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Mrs. Charles A. Schreiner, and Mrs. J. Donald Scott.

Schipa Benefit Concert Committee to Meet.

Another ambitious benefit is planned by the Chicago Alumnae Association of Mount Vernon Seminary. The association is sponsoring a concert by Tito Schipa on the afternoon of Sunday, March 31, at the Auditorium theater. Mrs. Thomas H. Knorr, the former Jeanne Street, as chairman of the affair, has called a large meeting to be held tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. John Merriman in Evanston to discuss plans for making the benefit a huge success.

Assisting Mrs. Knorr with the detail work are Miss Lucy Jane Hedberg, president of the alumnae; Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., Mrs. Theodore Gary, Miss Susan Jane Wegener and Miss Katharine and Miss Marjorie Street. This busy committee has obtained an office at 662 North Michigan avenue. Good news for those who will benefit the Mount Vernon scholarship fund by attending the concert is that tickets will be sold at box office prices.

Among the older women who are interested in the school and in the benefit are Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, whose subdebutante daughter, Valeria, is taking a post-graduate course there; Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Mrs. Everett Cooke, Mrs. Edwin Price, and Mrs. Ray P. Hoover.

Two Stage Openings Draw Society Tonight.

Major attractions this evening are the opening of the widely discussed play, "The First Legion," at the Harris theater, and the opening appearance of the Savoyards at the Erlanger theater.

The arrival of "The First Legion" presents occasion for discussion among clubs and civic organizations and also among church groups during the Lenten season, for its message is faith. With an all male cast and the fourth of the American Theater society's series, it headed the "White List" of current plays during the 1934-'35 season in New York.

Mrs. James M. Bremner will entertain a party of 15 at the opening tonight. Others who will be in the audience include Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Andrews, the Walter Paepckes, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Warfield III., Robert E. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adams, the Norval Pierces, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin B. Pool, and Miss Jean Armstrong.

Gilbert and Sullivan Troupe Here Two Weeks.

The Savoyards, as the members of the D'Oyly Carte Opera company of London are affectionately called, are assured of a hearty welcome to Chicago, judging from the many and interesting reservations that have been made for tonight at the Erlanger. The company is to be here for two weeks in traditional presentations of Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas.

The engagement of the company was climaxed in New York by a dinner at the Lotos club presided over by William Lyon Phelps of Yale university and Dr. Walter Damrosch. In Washington last week a reception was tendered the group at the British embassy by Sir Ronald Lindsay. The British consul general and Mrs. Lewis Bernays are among those who will entertain tonight at the presentation of "The Gondoliers."

Bermuda Is Popular Spot for Debutantes.

After making plans for at least two months a goodly percentage of the past season's debutantes have gone to Bermuda. Miss Bette Rich and Miss Betty Brooks sailed Saturday on the Monarch of Bermuda to visit the Francis P. Butlers and their debutante daughter, Deborah, who have taken a house near Hamilton. Miss Louise Forgan, the James B. Forgans' attractive daughter, is sailing for Bermuda the 23d of this month with an aunt of Miss Rich and when they arrive on the island they will take a house with Miss Rich and Miss Brooks, to be away until after Easter.

Miss Forgan will go east to spend a week or so with her cousin, Mrs. William Woodhull, the former Julie Forgan, in New York before sailing. Miss Rich's mother, Mrs. R. Joseph Rich, is in her Palm Beach home where her son, Bill, a senior at Yale, will join her for the Easter holidays.

Miss Brooks' older sister, Miss Jane Brooks, left for Bermuda a week earlier than the debutantes. She and Miss Marjorie Bertha are sharing a house until Easter. Miss Bertha's engagement to Orville H. Shell Jr. of New York was announced early in the year and she will be married in May. Miss Brooks' mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, are waiting for Easter time to get away on a little trip. They plan to motor to Washington, D. C.

Miss Doering and Mother Going to Mississippi.

Miss Nancy Doering, another member of this group of debutantes that was so popular and fêted during the last season, is not going to Bermuda, but instead will leave Thursday with her mother, Mrs. Edmund J. Doering Jr., for a quiet month in Garfield, Miss. Miss Doering's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. Martin Stevenson, are moving into their new apartment at 1120 Lake Shore drive today.

West Indies bound are Miss Janet Ayer and Miss Caryl Bloomingston. They are sailing Saturday on the Reliance with Miss Ayer's mother, Mrs. Walter Ayer, on this popular eighteen day cruise.

Coat Dress Chic for Day Wear

WOMAN'S AND MISS' COAT DRESS.

Here is a smart coat dress that you will favor for every day wear. The bodice also may be surplice, with a high, round neck, as in the small view. A "fly-away" bow is slipped through a bound opening of the bodice. One of the rough, printed crêpes in navy and white made the original dress. The belt was plain navy with a bright red buckle, and the scarf and buttons were navy.

The pattern, No. 2848, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

BY MARY MEADE.

There's many a good soup which has received only a lukewarm reception because it looked dull and uninteresting. You've seen it happen yourself, haven't you? Take a split pea soup, for instance, or a cream of celery soup, or a thick, rich bean soup—no matter how hot and temptingly seasoned it may be it may lack eye appeal.

What to do to those three soups in question? The garnishes here are needed perhaps, first of all, for color, with an added justification of lending extra zest to the flavor. To achieve a more interesting result in extremely simple fashion, here are three suggestions: Sprinkle the top of the split pea soup with tiny bits of frizzled dried beef. Top the cream of celery soup with a green flutter of chopped parsley. Float a couple of slices of hard cooked egg in the thick bean soup, or use merely the rings formed from the hard cooked whites, sieving the golden yolks into a bright sprinkling for the center of the soup bowl.

Croutons—tiny squares of browned or toasted bread—add interest as soup floaters. Onion soup, of course, calls for its own thick round of crunchy toasted bread topped with melting cheese, Parmesan or otherwise. And corn soup, the ordinary, colorless, bland kind, takes on a heretofore unknown glamor with a fluffy sprinkling of hot buttered pop corn.

As companions for the frizzled dried beef garnish you might think about bits of crisp bacon or ham. These two are well suited to soups such as cream of asparagus or spinach. Still along the meat line, what about a good cabbage soup with tiny Swedish meat balls? They take a little more time to prepare than, say, chopping parsley, but they're worth it.

Swedish Meat Balls.

½ pound ground lean beef
¼ cup dry bread crums
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
Pepper, salt, nutmeg

Combine the ingredients and form into tiny balls, less than an inch in diameter. Brown these in a little hot fat in a skillet, then drop them into the boiling soup and simmer for a half hour before serving.

Grated cheese gives almost any soup an increased rating in attractiveness as well as flavor. Small strips or fancy shapes of colorful, cooked vegetables do the same for a clear consomme, while an even simpler touch is the addition of a spoonful of transparent pearl tapioca beads. This type of tapioca, remember, calls for a preliminary night's soaking before cooking.

Some of the pale, colorless soups will cheer for a topping like this:

Pimiento Cream.

½ cup heavy cream
1 egg white
2 teaspoons sieved pimiento
Salt

Whip the cream until stiff and likewise, separately, the egg white. Then fold the egg white, along with the pimiento purée and a few grains of salt, into the whipped cream and serve a small spoonful on each serving of soup.

Minute dumplings are a necessary accompaniment of our old favorite, pepper pot, and may find just as hearty a welcome in other soup kettles as well. These corn dumplings have numberless stanch followers.

Corn Dumplings.

½ cup yellow cornmeal
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 eggs
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Steam the cornmeal, salt, boiling water, and minced onion for two hours in the top of a double boiler. Then stir in the slightly beaten eggs and chopped parsley, and drop by tiny spoonsful into the boiling soup. Cover the soup closely and cook for 10 minutes without lifting the lid. Serve immediately.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

TWO SLAMS THAT WERE NOT SO EASY TO MAKE.

That great player, Waldemar von Zedtwitz, was the declarer on both the hands given below, and his splendid playing technique in fulfilling these difficult contracts—both looked easy in the bidding—may help you some time in a tough slam contract when the only chance is to find the right cards in the right place for the play that you select.

North:
Sp. A Q x x x — Di. A K Q x
His. x — Cl. Q x x
South:
Sp. J x — Di. x x x
His. A x — Cl. A K J x x x

Von Zedtwitz was South and the declaration reached seven clubs. West led a spade. Declarer rightly inferred that West, a very fine player, would never lead away from a king in a suit which North had bid originally against a slam contract. He was right—the king was in the East hand, well guarded. Recognizing that the spade finesse would almost surely fail, the only thing to play for was a squeeze. There are no end plays or strip plays in connection with the grand slams.

The Squeeze.

Von Zedtwitz therefore went up with the ace of spades, trumped his losing heart, and based his expectations on the hope that East would have to protect two vital cards—the king of spades and a fourth high diamond. And so it was—East held J 10 x x in diamonds as well as K x x x in spades. Leading out trumps, declarer at the tenth trick was on lead with

Sp. J — Di. x x
His. None — Cl. 2

Dummy has the queen of spades and A K x in diamonds; East has the king of spades and J x x in diamonds. South leads the final trump, dummy discarding the queen of spades. East must either throw away the king of spades, establishing South's jack, or unguard the diamond, making good all the dummy's cards. A sweet play, was it not? It is always hard to apply the pressure when the important opponent's hand discards after the dummy—or rather, after the hand which does not have the long suit to run off. The other hand was:

NORTH.
S—5 2
H—A K 3
D—7 6 4
C—A K J 9 7

WEST.
S—A 10 9 8
H—x x
D—J x x
C—10 8 x x

EAST.
S—8 x
H—Q 10 x x
D—K Q 10 x x x
C—2

SOUTH.
S—K Q J 8 4
H—J 8 4 2
D—A
C—Q 6 3

Von Zedtwitz, North, became declarer in six clubs doubled. East had overcalled in diamonds; West's double made it clear that he was long in both black suits. He would hardly double six clubs unless equally ready to double six spades, a suit which South had bid and rebid.

The Play.

A diamond was led by East. Declarer, you see, must ruff two diamonds and (having to lose a trick to the ace of spades) he must also obtain a discard of his losing heart. This can be obtained only on a spade; and the trouble is that dummy is short of entries because the diamonds must be ruffed promptly. You cannot afford to let the West hand in before this is done, or he will lead a trump and queer the whole plan. North must play West for precisely two hearts. He gets back twice with hearts and thus ruffs both diamonds. Now dummy is in the lead with five spades, two hearts, and the queen of clubs. A spade honor is led. West's best play is to hold off once. Another is led, West takes with the ace and plays a third spade for East to ruff. Declarer trumps with an honor, gets to dummy with the queen of clubs and now gets his discard of the three of hearts on a spade, thereupon finessing against the ten of clubs. This fine delivery was based on perfect drawing of inferences and absolutely exact card reading.

AMENDS FOR AN ERROR.

"While a dub like me should not dispute the word of an expert, I feel that you are wrong in your method of play of this hand."

The above is a sentence of a letter I received from Mr. Richard J. Anderson, 907 Sunnyside avenue, Chicago. Mr. Anderson's letter was one of a hundred that came to me protesting an incorrect hand that appeared Feb. 18 in this column.

I started my article as follows:

"I am indebted to one of the readers of these articles, Mr. Harry A. Dutton of San Francisco for this most interesting hand——"

In Mr. Dutton's letter he assured me that the hand was actually played by him and, never having seen the hand before myself, I took his word for it. It now seems that a similar hand went the rounds a few years ago and if Mr. Dutton really held this hand it was surprisingly like the trick hand with the trick taken out.

I, naturally, am conscience stricken at having made the inexcusable error of letting this slip through without proper analysis and can only excuse it on the ground that it was a human error.

To make amends I am going to give you a hand that I consider the best eight card problem hand I have ever seen. I have never seen it published. This problem was given to me by Mr. T. J. Carroll during the world war, at which time Mr. Carroll was an attaché at the American legation in Lisbon. If you enjoy it as much as I did, I am sure I shall be forgiven for my error.

The problem: North and South must make all eight tricks. Diamonds are trumps. North is in the lead.

This problem should take anywhere from a half hour to four hours to solve. I just called in an expert and gave it to him. He solved it in fifty-five minutes. When it was given to me originally I hit on it in twenty minutes and won a $50 bet from Mr. Carroll, who had allowed me half an hour.

I am not going to give the solution in the paper, but if any of my readers have trouble they can drop me a line—and on this occasion you need not enclose a 3 cent stamp. I will send you the solution.

Many Things Attract Child to 'Bad Words'

Their Vigor and Novelty May Appeal to Him.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"He doesn't hear or see that at home—I don't know where he gets it!" is the wide eyed plaint of many a mother whose child's languge shocks her, or whose kind of information leaves her speechless.

The new has a great appeal for children, which accounts for some of a child's interest in the words and expressions he hears in the street, in school, on the playground, in the funnies and "on the air." Here's novelty—he'll experiment with it.

Then, whether we like them or not, we must admit that some of the expressions that catch his ear have vigor and expressiveness.

Also, many of these words convey a semblance of grownupness which some—not all—children covet.

As to treatment—the old familiar ignoring policy is highly successful with "bad words."

When this doesn't work, after a fair trial, the thing can be talked out—the correct word substituted, or "our kind" of word suggested, or even the impression that one makes on others might be mentioned as a last resort. But avoid "moral" grounds. Adequate sex education also prevents and may also cure the adoption of certain sorts of undesirable words.

We have a leaflet, "When Your Child Brings Home 'Bad Words,'" which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HAWKS WHIP CANADIENS, 3-0; TIE FOR LEAD

NEW 135 POUND CHAMPION FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

Two Chicago Boys Fight Friday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago has an even chance to win the lightweight Golden Gloves championship in the finals Friday night at the Stadium. And if either Savior Canadeo or Lorenzo Lovings wins it will increase the point total of the Catholic Youth Organization for the Chicago team championhip. Lovings is the C. Y. O. 135 pound champion, while Canadeo is another outstanding boxer in this same division.

Their rivals Friday night are Mike Gamiere of Cleveland and George Dungey of Bloomington, Ill. Incidentally, the Bloomington Pantagraph will be represented by three boxers in the semi-finals which get under way at 8 o'clock Friday. This is the best showing of any team except the metropolitan centers of Chicago, Cleveland, and Detroit.

Bojack Outgrows Division.

In any event, there's no defending champion in this weight class, for Frank Bojack of Cleveland, the 1934 Golden Gloves winner, not only has outgrown the class but because of an injury he has not competed for several months and did not enter the Cleveland Plain Dealer's tournament.

Here are the particulars on the four boys who remain in this year's struggle for the diamond studded golden gloves:

George Dungey of Bloomington has had four years experience. He is 20 years old, employed as a material messenger for the Alton railroad, and has been in the Tournament for Champions for the last three years. In 1933, as representative of Peoria, Dungey reached the semi-finals in Chicago. In 1934 and 1935 he won the championship at Bloomington. His father, a former wrestler of note, believes that this is the year George will win a golden glove. This belief is shared by hundreds of Bloomington's citizens who watched his progress through the sectional tournament.

Gamiere a Contender.

Mike Gamiere, Cleveland's champion, is one of several Italian boys in the semi-finals. Like Dungey, he's 20 years of age, but he has been boxing for slightly more than two years. He was Cleveland's city champion in 1934 before reaching Golden Gloves status, and back in 1932 he got a start by winning the flyweight title in a community center tournament. Mike Carriere is his instructor.

Gamiere professes to like indoor baseball, but he has participated in no sport except boxing. His record in the present tournament stamps him as a possible champion.

Lorenzo Lovings, the C. Y. O champion, was born in Nashville, Tenn., 21 years ago. He's employed as a clerk in a grocery store. Lovings began boxing three years ago after he was graduated from high school and was unable to find work at his trade, a linotype operator. He has played baseball but likes boxing best of all sports.

Canadeo C. Y. O. Runner-Up.

Savior Canadeo, a 17 year old Italian student at Steinmetz High school, qualified for the Tournament of Champions in a Chicago sectional tournament. He was runner-up in the last C. Y. O. tournament and after winning a Bishop Shiel scholarship was chosen to make the trip to Portland, Ore., with the C. Y. O. team. Canadeo will continue his education at some college. He has been boxing only one year under the supervision of Paddy Kane and Dick Fitzpatrick of the C. Y. O. staf.

This is the list of lightweights you'll see in action Friday night. Perhaps they are not as well known, that is unless you attended the Tournament of Champions. And it is possible that there is none who has the speed of the three lighter weights, nor the punching power of the bigger boys. But the strife will be as intense, for froh this group will come at least two boys who will be named on the squad which will oppose the Golden Gloves champions of New York at the Stadium March 29.

That program, the eighth of the series of battles between America's two largest cities, now promises to be the best of all. For one thing, the intercity score is tied with three victories each and an 8 to 8 tie in 1928, the first year of the rivalry. And for another reason, any boy west of the Hudson river would like nothing better than to beat a New York boy in the boxing ring.

16 Teams Start in New York's 58th Bike Race

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Sixteen cyclists lined up on the banked track at Madison Square Garden tonight and, after a few preliminary whirls around the saucer, shot away at a signal fired by Eddie Cantor to start the 58th six day bicycle race.

And less than a minute afterward the 16 riders were relieved by their partners, for the start was one of the fastest seen in the 8th avenue arena in years.

Fenwick Five Wins Catholic Prep Tourney

Decatur, Ill., March 3.—[Special.]—Fenwick, Oak Park, tonight won the Illinois Catholic High school basketball championship from Spalding, Peoria, 31 to 18. The Oak Park quintet started fast and was ahead, 15 to 6, at the half. Fenwick's defense held Spalding without a field goal until late in the second quarter.

McCabe, Norris, and Kruger led the victors' scoring, collecting 22 points among them.

Both teams resorted to the open style of play, many of Fenwick's baskets coming from long range. Fenwick, however, controled the tipoff and held the edge over Spalding on both offensive and defensive rebounds.

Fenwick reached the finals by beating St. Bede of Peru this afternoon, 38 to 20, McCabe leading the attack with 21 points. Spalding beat Marmion of Aurora in the semi-finals, 27 to 24.

St. Bede turned back Marmion, Aurora, 26 to 22, for third place. Binkowski, St. Bede, scored 10 points before he went out of the game on personal fouls.

Corpus Christi, Galesburg, 1934 champion, won the title in the consolation tournament, whipping St. Teresa, Decatur, 27 to 24.

CHILLY WEATHER SLOWS UP CUBS' HUNT FOR HURLER

Grimm Calls Off Batting Practice.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 3.—The Cubs' training camp was fresh out of sunshine today, but by waiting an hour and a half later than the usual starting time the young men found enough warm weather to get in a pretty good pitching and hitting drill. Indications were that morning batting practice could be resumed tomorrow.

The sluggers really could have slugged at the usual time today, but accurate batting is not possible when an athlete is laden with heavy wraps. Without wraps there was the pneumonia menace. So Manager Charley Grimm simply decided to skip it for the day.

When he arose to another cloudy day this morning, Mr. Grimm showed signs of testiness and if the cold wave continues he will become a raging lion, according to his own admission.

Secret Hunt for Pitchers.

Most of all, he has said frequently during the off season, he wants his hitters to practice hitting. There is perhaps a more potent reason why the manager wants the training program to progress as planned, though little is being said about it by Cub officials. This matter, soft pedaled in all conversation, has to do with the eagerness to discover among the recruits some fellows who have a chance to fill out the corps of starting pitchers.

No one wants to harp on the matter, in view of the fact that Larry French and Tex Carleton already are among the most popular men in this camp, but the circumstance remains that Bush, Malone, Weaver and Tinning traded for Larry and Tex, won 29 more games and lost only one more than did the two newcomers.

Lefty Is Smart.

Larry and Tex are not going to be panicked by these statistics despite frequent reminders. Here for instance is the philosophy of the very intelligent lefty, Mr. French:

"I am not trying to build myself up to thinking that I am more than one pitcher or that I have more than one arm for pitching purposes. My goal is to do as well as I can and hope that I can exceed the mark of any one pitcher whose place I may be considered as having taken."

Carleton, jubilant over being with the Cubs, has a similar outlook and, having gained weight and strength during the winter, has sound basis for expecting to turn in his best season.

And East Is East.

But the point is that French and Carleton are two fellows and Bush, Malone, Weaver and Tinning are four. To get four fellows to supplant the departed, the Cubs have to find two other fellows. Seems painfully obvious, but you'd be surprised to learn how awry the mathematics of many have become on this particular problem.

While the comparative inactivity due to the weather has irked the impatient manager, the easing up has enabled the athletes to recover from whatever stiffness they may have felt as a result of an arduous workout last Friday. Today there isn't a man in the camp with a misery, though Chuck Klein still is complaining some about his cold.

Chuck Has Hope.

Chuck is working out, however, and doesn't even flinch when he sees six left handed pitchers swarming around waiting to pitch to him. Chuck, despite his discouraging experiences last year, is confident there must be one among the four Cub and two borrowed Angel lefties that he can hit. If he gets so he can hit one lefty, then he is going out to make it two. If weather permits and Chuck averages a new left cousin every two days, he will have negotiated five of the six by the time the Cubs return to the mainland.

Arlington, Tex., Poloists Beat Mexicans, 10 to 6

MEXICO CITY, March 3.—(AP)—Playing to their best form, the Arlington, Tex., polo team today defeated a picked team of Mexican civilians, 10 to 6. It was the first victory in four games for the Texans.

Dykes Decides Some Hitting Is What Sox Will Need Most

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 3.—The White Sox are now convinced that Mr. James Dykes, their manager, is a long way from being a second Simon Legree. Naturally they appreciate his idea of how spring training should be conducted. Here they've been three days in camp and on two of the days were ordered through only a limited workout. Today they were permitted to loaf according to their respective fancies and a good portion of them decided that the best fashion in which to loaf was to hike around a nearby eighteen hole golf course. Dykes himself was among this contingent.

JIMMY DYKES.

One sure thing about the Dykes system is that it reduces to a minimum the possibilities of sore arm and leg muscles. In the two workouts thus far he has restricted the pitchers to mere lobbing of the ball, even though some of them are in excellent trim as the result of preliminary practice. The infielders and outfielders present have been under similar orders. The throwing has been garnished by a jog once around the field for all hands.

Heat Goes On Tomorrow.

The leisurely program will be continued tomorrow but business may pick up in the workout Tuesday. By that time most of the outfielders and infielders now absent are expected to be on hand. That will be the signal for bringing out the bats. The pitchers whose arms are O. K. as the result of playing winter ball will be permitted to take the mound and start feeding 'em to the hitters. Batting practice will be stressed from then on, this being the feature that Dykes believes deserves the greater attention.

If the Sox can develop some hitting strength it may go a long way toward offsetting some of the other suspected weaknesses.

The daily hitting drills between now and the start of the exhibition games March 16 may help Dykes to solve the problem of a batting order that will give maximum results. All that he now knows about this feature of master minding is that he will continue to have Al Simmons swing third and Zeke Bonura fourth. Of course, the latter threatens to quit if he doesn't get the pay he demands, but he'll be along eventually. Luke Appling, the regular shortstop, may be stationed in the No. 5 hole and possibly Luke Sewell, the new catcher, will swing sixth. He's a better hitting backstop than the Sox have owned in many days. Who'll lead off and who'll bat second depends on developments.

Appling Worries About Ankle.

Appling is still worried about the ankle that was injured last season, but there is only a slight possibility that it will not stand up under the strain of regular work. He pulled the ligaments going into a base and as a result was out of action almost half a season. A fracture of a bone in the foot would have been less complicated.

He played golf considerably during the winter to strengthen the ailing member, but there were times when it gave him considerable annoyance. He said it felt O. K. after his first bit of spring exercise yesterday.

If Appling should continue to be a case for the doctors the shortstop place could be handled well enough defensively, but his hitting would be missed. Marty Hopkins can play the position with the best of them but is not blessed with skill at bat. There isn't much chance that Glenn Wright, ex-National leaguer now enrolled with the Sox, could play short, his old position, regularly. There is reason to doubt that he has the throwing power necessary for that berth although he claims the arm difficulties that caused him to be waived out of the National league have been corrected.

Wisconsin Seeks Big 10 Title in Game With Purdue Tonight

Wisconsin can win the Western conference basketball championship tonight at Lafayette if the Badgers are able to whip Purdue. This is the final big game of one of the most unusual seasons in recent years, unless, of course, Purdue whips Wisconsin. Then the finale will be transferred to the Saturday night game at Patten gymnasium between the revived Wildcats of Northwestern and Purdue.

In any event, considering Northwestern's legitimate desire to have the privilege of beating Purdue out of a championship, Purdue, by winning from Wisconsin tonight, at least can open the way for Illinois to tie for the title. That possibility will be decided definitly this evening.

Illinois Can Cut In on Title.

Wisconsin cannot get less than a tie. If the Badgers are defeated by Purdue, Illinois, also finishing its campaign, may share the honor if successful against Michigan at Ann Arbor. Which gives Purdue only the hope of a tie if able to beat Wisconsin and Northwestern.

Indiana's decisive licking by Northwestern Saturday night, 40 to 22, not only dropped the Hoosiers from the list of championship contenders after the brilliant 41 to 35 triumph over Purdue a week ago, but gave Northwestern some slight satisfaction for the slough in which it wandered following an impressive nonconference practice schedule. It still is possible for Northwestern to finish with five victories and seven defeats, and in the list of victories would be triumphs over all the leaders except Illinois, whom the Wildcats did not meet.

That Northwestern has hope of winning Saturday from Purdue is based on the narrow margin of loss on Jan. 14 [31 to 33]. Incidentally, Northwestern already has beaten Wisconsin, 36 to 31, as well as Indiana. The Wildcats play Iowa tonight.

Purdue Won First Game, 19-18.

Wisconsin's other defeat was in its opening game of the year with Purdue, 19 to 18, and this score possibly may be a forecast of what can be expected at Lafayette tonight. That Purdue isn't leading is due solely to the recent slump which saw consecutive defeats by Ohio State [40 to 39 on Feb. 23] and to the whipping Monday by Indiana. Illinois scored the other victory on Jan. 7 by a 37 to 36 count.

Illinois won its first game from Michigan, 34 to 22. Minnesota has a nonconference game tonight with Notre Dame and the Gophers already have finished conference play except for Saturday's battle with Indiana at Minneapolis.

Two teams have finished their 12 game quota, Ohio State and Chicago. The Maroons definitly are last with 11 defeats and one victory, over Iowa, 41 to 40. The Buckeyes have a standing of eight victories and four defeats. Only one point was the margin in each of its games with Purdue, which were divided.

It Looks Like the Badgers.

In view of Purdue's slump it seems reasonable to predict that Wisconsin will take sole possession of the title tonight. The Badgers' defensive abilities have been largely responsible. Only Northwestern has a better chance to win first place in this department.

CAMPBELL GOES 270 M. P. H., JUST SHORT OF RECORD

Beach So Rough He Nearly Is Jolted Out of Car.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell went thundering up to the very edge of his 272 mile an hour automobile record today, but old Davvil Beach, the villain in the piece, still balked him.

He was forced to haul the giant Bluebird off the sands after one breathless burst down the 11½ mile course, a roaring dash in which he hit 270.473 miles an hour through the measured mile and half the time was riding almost out of the seven ton car, so rough was the course.

Campbell hit one bump just before he came flying into the measured mile and his goggles slid down over his nose and mouth, almost shutting off his breath. The car bounced so his head most of the time was above the windshield. He said the terrific pressure nearly took off the top of his skull.

Skips Second Run.

He did not even attempt to come north in the second run, which the rules demand for a new record. Cutting a mere .17 of a second from the 13.31 seconds he took to travel the measured mile south would have given him a new mark a shade above the 272.108 miles an hour he set here two years ago.

Although Sir Malcolm wasn't so close to eternity as yesterday, when the cowling tore loose on both runs as he hit a high of 205, pouring carbon monoxide fumes into the cockpit, nearly suffocating him, he was close enough. He was so close, in fact, that he decided when he got back that for the peace and comfort of all concerned he wouldn't run on the beach again until it was considerably smoother.

Just Too Rough.

"It's simply impossible," he said, "to run for a new record with the beach as rough as it is. You can drive this beach in an ordinary car with one hand at 100 miles an hour. But Bluebird, at 275 or 300, is something entirely different. In 30 years of racing I've never experienced anything like the last two days here. But I'll stay here 25 years if I have to, to get the beach I want."

Campbell brought the car out shortly after 10 a. m. and started his run at 11:42 with at least 50,000 lining the golden raceway and the sun beating down. Bluebird was functioning perfectly. Its motors roared like thunder in the mountains.

Nearly Skids Into Sea.

He started 2,000 feet north of the amusement pier that crossed the sand near the start, howling along at 150 miles an hour as he threw the car into second speed. There his troubles started.

He was going so fast and had to turn so swiftly there to get on his course that he skidded, shot for the water, and missed the flags that stretch along the seaside by about a foot. He straightened out all right and shoved the throttle to the floor. He was doing 245.231 through the third mile and was on his way at 262.008 in the fourth mile, the one before the measured mile in the middle of the course.

But above that the beach just wouldn't let him soar. The wheels started slipping and the car threw great clouds of sand out behind it as it came through the heart of the course. Then Campbell's goggles were jolted down. Accelerating through the next full mile, he still was able to add only 8 miles an hour to his speed.

Should Have 25 More.

"Without the slippage, I should have picked up at least 25 miles more there, and I'd have had the record in my grasp," he said. "I was driving blind in the middle mile, the wind almost tearing my head off, the goggles choking me. The sand was so rough I could feel the tread tearing off the tires. I had to cut the motors coming out of the middle mile. It was useless to try to run back."

Campbell said that under present conditions he has three smooth miles at the start coming south, but from there on the beach simply is not fit for the 300 mile speed he seeks.

"There's nothing wrong with Bluebird," he said. "She's running beautifully and I'm sure I'm in fine shape."

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The world champion Blackhawks, still of a mind to keep the Stanley cup in Chicago, displayed their sincerity last night at the Stadium in the presence of 10,500 clients by whipping the currently obstreperous Canadiens of Montreal, 3 to 0.

The three goals which made up the deciding margin were contributed by Tom Cook, Paul Thompson, and Alex Levinsky, that ever delivering defense "rookie," and came in that order at the rate of one a period.

Skipping the fact that the game gave the Hawks a season series victory over the Canadiens, with three games won, one lost, and one tied, it also brought them up into a first place tie with the Boston Bruins and a half game ahead of the New York Rangers, both of whom were idle.

Chabot Increases Lead.

Probably the most important, not to say happy, action of the night was the complete dearth of goals to which the Canadiens were forced to submit. It marked the eighth shutout of the season for Lorne Chabot, the Chicago watchman, tying him in that respect with Alex Connell of the Montreal Maroons, his nearest competitor for the Vezina trophy. Lorne has now suffered the puck to pass only 76 times, while it has gone past Alex 83 times.

The advertised suggestion that both teams would concentrate on their especial forte, speed, was vindicated throughout the entire first period. The contest had not progressed far before Lepine and March came to a checking joust which sent both to the dungeon. From there on, the Hawks held the advantage on a five man basis, but it availed them nothing.

Hawks Get No. 1.

Later on Lepine's second offense, tripping Levinsky, again gave the Hawks an advantage and produced their first goal. Levinsky nursed the puck to a shooting position, fired it, and then Tommy Cook drove the rebound over the prostrate Cude for the only score of the period.

The Canadiens emerged for the second period in a high rush, which for some moments had Chabot in a kind of hot water. Lepine, Joliat and LaRochelle were particularly instrumental in this invasion, so much so that Chabot was forced to bound out of his pantry in considerable terror more than once.

In the 15 minute mark Coulter set forth on what appeared to be a personal sortie until he suddenly flicked the puck across to Thompson, who promptly lined it by the earnest but unprotected Cude. The time was 15:05.

Reporter Stops One.

The Canadiens then became so incensed that by the time the period was over Chabot was credited with 15 official stops and a boy reporter with one unofficial. The last was off the niblick of March at the end of the period.

The third period found the Hawks with an eagerness worthy of a team two goals short rather than ahead. Such was the stoutness of their attack that it required a miraculous save by Cude to detain an effort by Morenz. The Canadiens responded with some heat, but they could not match the stern attack of the champions.

The hard luck of the attacking Chicago wings apparently enraged Levinsky to the point where he personally took the puck down and recorded such a distinctive performance that no assist was credited when he drove the puck over Cude in 11:00.

From that point on the Hawks did the bulk of the puck carrying. Even Coulter, Burke, and Levinsky took to pushing the puck over the Canadien blue line, so intense was the nature of the Hawk attack.

Detroit Man Is Named Stadium Superintendent

Donald Stewart McLoed, superintendent of the Detroit Olympia for the last few years, was named building superintendent of the Chicago Stadium yesterday. McLoed will take over his new duties this week. His appointment was announced by James Norris, president of the Stadium, who also operates the Olympia.

Sacred Heart, St. John's Win C.Y.O. Titles

St. John's [Joliet] won the 1935 heavyweight championship of the Catholic Youth Organization Basketball league, defeating St. Pius, 35 to 24, at Loyola university gymnasium yesterday.

Art Simon broke loose in the second half to score five baskets and turn the game from a close battle into a decisive victory for Joliet. St. John's led at the half, 9 to 7.

For the third time in four years Sacred Heart lightweights emerged victorious in the finals, beating St. Michael's, 17 to 15. Andy Bultas, Sacred Heart center, scored three baskets and one free throw to lead in individual scoring. Frank Utters and Jack Henrich starred for St. Michael's. Sacred Heart led at the half, 10 to 7.

The girls' title was won by St. Ignatius parish. St. Ignatius, which had scored impressive intersectional victories to reach the final, defeated Sacred Heart [19th street] girls to win the championship, 9 to 7.

Winners yesterday will represent the C. Y. O. in the annual intercity basketball games against New York's Catholic champions March 31. The intercity games also will be played at Loyola university.

WARREN BEATS HOUSEHOLDER IN MIDGET RACING

Pat Warren, Los Angeles champion auto driver, beat Ronnie Householder, last week's winner of the main event, by a narrow margin after a battle of 25 laps at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night before a near record breaking crowd of 7,000.

Warren took the lead at the start and set a sizzling pace, but was closely followed by Johnny Sawyer, Sorenson, and Householder. At the fifteenth lap Householder pulled up on even terms with Warren and the duel continued until the finish line was reached. Sawyer finished third and Jimmy [illegible] came from last place to finish fourth.

Lou Skelton's car turned over during the running of the Class B semi-final race. Skelton received only minor bruises. Ted Hartley won the race by half a length from Shorty Sorenson.

BABE RUTH GOES TO JOIN BRAVES IN FLORIDA CAMP

Cheers at Chance to Play in National League.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—(AP)—Heading south tonight for another great adventure in baseball—his 22d season in the majors, but his first in the National league—Babe Ruth indulged himself in somewhat the same sensations, the same thrill of expectation as the rookie headed for the training camp and the crucial test.

At 40 the Babe has been through enough of the baseball wars to know just what's ahead of him. He knows it's going to be a grind to get into shape again, that it will be a strain on the "old dogs" to play through as many as 100 championship games this year, in addition to a pre-season exhibition schedule of 26 games, but he looks forward to joining the Boston Braves at St. Petersburg, Fla., in a spirit of revived enthusiasm.

Glad to Get Change.

"You know, I am going to get a real kick out of shifting to the National league this year," commented the big fellow as he settled back for the long train ride to St. Petersburg, Fla., after leaving New York, accompanied by Mrs. Ruth, on a journey that leads to a new chapter in his dramatic career.

"In some respects it's still like a dream to me. I can't quite realize that I won't trot out into the Yankee stadium for the opening game next month. But I'm tickled to death with the switch. It's a 'break' for me and I certainly hope it's going to mean I can help the Braves go places this year. You know, a change of scenery can be a big help in baseball.

"Just Let Us Alone."

"I'll hustle and work my head off this season for Bill McKechnie. There won't be any misunderstandings so far as I am concerned. All I ask is that they let Bill and me alone. I'm satisfied to let next year take care of itself."

With these words Ruth dismissed further discussion over the prospect that by 1936 developments will be such that he may take over the full management of the Braves on the field, with McKechnie stepping up to the front office. If Ruth has any definite understanding on this score he is saying no more about it.

The Babe forgot to bring along his golf clubs for the first time since he can remember, but he didn't neglect to bring a half dozen of his favorite baseball bats—the war clubs with which he did most of the record breaking slugging with the Yankees. At least one of them, he said, has been in his possession a dozen years. He doesn't want to take any chances on having to break in a new collection.

PAUL DEAN MISSING.

Bradentown, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Johnny Rothrock, who came from Columbus last year to win a regular right field job with the Cardinals, and Gene Moore, outfielder from Columbus who is looking for a place on the Red Birds 1935 roster, reported to Manager Frankie Frisch today. Moore took part in both workouts today. Rothrock, who arrived late, will don a uniform tomorrow. Paul Dean still was missing, the only pitcher on the roster not in camp.

DODGERS SHOW SPEED.

Orlando, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—The Dodgers are out to show some speed on the base paths if Manager Casey Stengel's plans work out. Stengel had his squad out today for time trials at circling the bases and put the pitchers to work trying to catch the runners off the bags. Much to everybody's surprise, no one was caught.

YANKEES OPEN CAMP.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—The first squad of the New York Yankees, consisting of a quintet of young pitchers, arrived today to open the training camp. The group consisted of Johnny Broaca, Vito Tamulis, Howard La Flamme, Jimmy De Shong and Clifford Melton. The first workout is slated for tomorrow morning although Manager Joe McCarthy is not due until later in the day.

ROWE'S ARM IN SHAPE.

Lakeland, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Lynwood [Schoolboy] Rowe, the pitching ace of the Detroit Tigers, turned out today for the Tigers' first spring drill, announcing that his arm was in perfect shape.

"There isn't anything wrong with my arm and I don't want any doctors fooling around with it," he told Manager Mickey Cochrane when the latter suggested he visit a Miami specialist for a checkup.

Rowe said he did not expect to have any contract troubles with President Frank J. Navin. Rowe is still unsigned.

BURNS SIGNS CONTRACT.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Irving Burns, St. Louis Browns first baseman, arrived at the spring training camp today, signed his 1935 contract, and played in a practice game. A game between the O'Learys and the Hartleys, teams picked by Manager Rogers Hornsby from the entire squad, was won by the O'Learys, 6 to 3.

Buck Newsom, pitcher, also was in uniform today. He arrived in camp yesterday. His right arm, recently infected with blood poisoning, is greatly improved, he said.

JOHNNY DAWSON WINS 4TH ANNUAL CARNIVAL GOLF

New Orleans, La., March 3.—(AP)—Stroking well over par, though so closely that neither player had more than a two hole advantage at any stage of the match, Johnny Dawson, Chicago, defeated Nelson Whitney, local veteran, one up in the 36 hole final of the fourth annual carnival invitational golf tournament today.

Whitney missed a 30 inch putt on the 36th green to three putt the hole and lose the match.

In the morning round the medal scores were identical, each going out in 36 and coming back in 41 for 77, six strokes over par. In the afternoon, Dawson had two 38's for 76, while Whitney took 39 out and 40 back for 79.

MacFarlane's 282 Wins Open at Bellair

Belleair, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Willie Macfarlane abused par today to win the annual Florida West Coast Open Golf championship with a 72 hole card of 282. With the title went $450.

Twelve strokes behind Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., the defending champion, after the first 36 holes of play yesterday, Macfarlane today put together two par cracking rounds of 65 and 69.

Wins by Two Strokes.

He finished two strokes ahead of Denny Shute, Philadelphia; Billie Burke, Cleveland; Horton Smith, Chicago, and Runyan, who tied for second with 284.

Runyan, whose 136 for yesterday's 36 holes set the early pace, needed two 74s today and faded on the first nine of the afternoon round when he went three strokes above par.

Macfarlane's putting was the main factor in his spectacular comeback after carding two 74s yesterday. His 65 this morning set a new competitive record for the No. 2 Bellealr course.

Hagen Needs 278.

Shute, Burke, Smith and Runyan divided second, third, fourth and fifth money, each receiving $218.75. Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., Harry Cooper, Chicago; John Revolta, Milwaukee, and Ky Laffoon, Chicago, tied at 286. Each won $106.25.

Walter Hagen, winner of the Gasparilla open last week, finished with 287 to win $75. Al Watrous, Detroit, with 288, won $75; Leo Mallory, Noroton, Conn.; Orville White, St. Louis, and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, N. Y., had 289s and each received $41.66. Jimmy Hines, Timberpoint, N. Y., and Walter Kozak, Flushing, N. Y., tied at 290, dividing $25.

Fredheim Takes First Place in Olympic Ski Trial

Salt Lake City, March 3.—(AP)—Sverre Fredheim of Minneapolis, soaring out over the giant Ecker Hill slide for distances of 158 and 181 feet despite a severe cross-wind, captured first place in the national Olympic ski jumping tryouts today.

Fredheim's remarkable jumping brought him a total of 220.7 points, giving him first place over Roy Mikkelsen of Auburn, Cal., national amateur champion of 1935, who leaped 156 and 182 feet for a total of 218.2 points.

Casper Oimen, Anaconda, Mont., sailed into third place with flights of 157 and 174 feet for 216.4 points and third place, while Einar Fredbo of Salt Lake City, carried away fourth honors with hops of 156 and 177 feet and 215.7 points.

Thor Groswold of Denver, one of the judges, said the selection of Fredheim, Mikkelsen, Oimen, and Fredbo as representatives of United States ski jumpers in the 1936 Olympics is virtually assured.

Gunnar Oman of Chicago leaped 143 feet on his first effort, but took a bad tumble and was unable to continue.

Boston Store Keeps Lead in Hocky League

Chicago Hocky league semi-final games at the Stadium yesterday resulted in a 4 to 2 victory for the Boston Store over the Postl club and a 2 to 0 triumph for the C. Y. O. All-Stars over Baby Ruths before 12,000.

The final games will be staged Wednesday night when the Boston Store meets the Baby Ruths and the C. Y. O. All-Stars face the Postl six. Yesterday's results enable the Boston Store to retain its one point lead in the standing. The C. Y. O. six went into second place and the Baby Ruths dropped to third. A victory for the Boston Store club Wednesday will clinch the title.

The Boston Store scored two goals in the second period, one by Bladnik and the other by Murphy, before Postl, with a two man advantage, managed to tie the score on goals by Cotlow and Devine. The Boston Store came back at full strength and forged ahead with a goal by Janelle. Whittaker made the fourth goal late in the game on a solo rush.

The C. Y. O. scored in the first period on a penalty face-off in front of the Baby Ruth's goal. Oscar Kinghorn drew the puck away from Ed Nichols and beat the goalie. After this the All-Stars played defensive hocky, getting their second goal early in the second period, Savela taking the puck away from Schotzlein at the goal mouth and beating Riddell.

CANZONERI AND WOODS SIGN FOR BOUT AT STADIUM

Tony Canzoneri, New York, and Chuck Woods, Detroit, last night were signed to meet in a return bout at the Chicago Stadium, March 15. Following much discussion as to the weight for the battle, the boys finally agreed on 137 pounds. Canzoneri formerly held the featherweight, lightweight, and junior welterweight championships. In their first meeting at Detroit, Feb. 26, Woods was awarded the decision.

Woods wanted the weight set for 136 pounds for the coming fight, while Tony held out for 138. Ultimately, the compromise was reached.

Mike Belloise, New York featherweight, who made an impression by defeating Paul Lee in his Chicago debut recently, and Frank Battaglia, Chicago middleweight, will appear in two 10 round supporting bouts, co-Matchmakers James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis announced.

Two professional shows and two amateur cards will be held tonight. The pro shows will be presented at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. Amateurs will compete in a series of contests at the new Queen of Angels Recreation center, 4412 North Western avenue, and Mount Carmel High school gymnasium, 6410 Dante avenue.

The scheduled Eddie Ward-Holman Williams bout has been taken off the card and a six round battle between George Van Der Hayden, South Bend, Ind., lightweight, and Hugh Allen has been substituted. Four round fights will involve Johnny Liston and Eddie Schiller, middleweights; Duke Callaway and Sam Scoglio, featherweights, and Fred Cleveland and Popeye Nolan, flyweights.

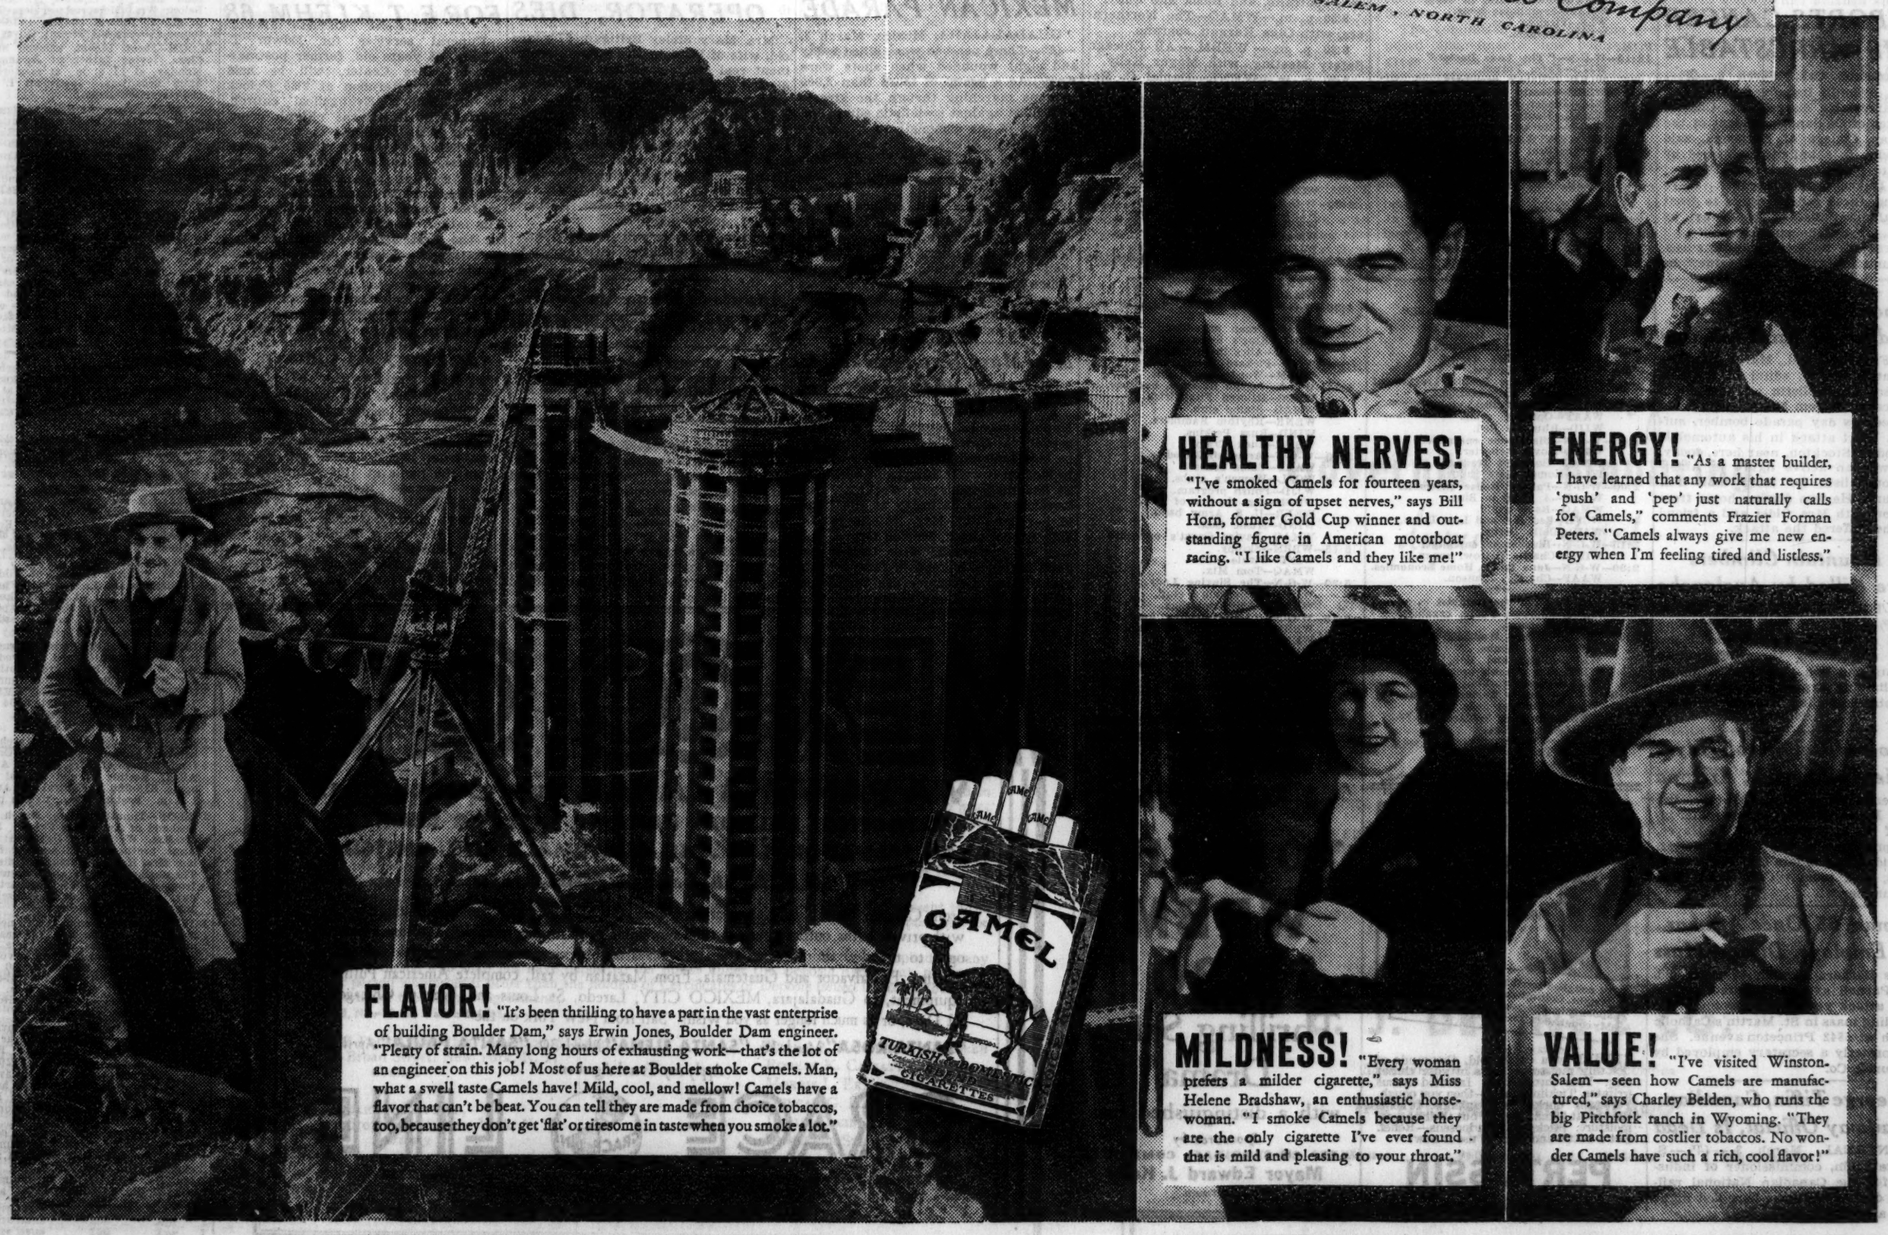
WE ASKED OUTDOOR PEOPLE:

"Is this fact important to You?"—

"Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."
(SIGNED) R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company
WINSTON-SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA



FLAVOR! "It's been thrilling to have a part in the vast enterprise of building Boulder Dam," says Erwin Jones, Boulder Dam engineer. "Plenty of strain. Many long hours of exhausting work—that's the lot of an engineer on this job! Most of us here at Boulder smoke Camels. Man, what a swell taste Camels have! Mild, cool, and mellow! Camels have a flavor that can't be beat. You can tell they are made from choice tobaccos, too, because they don't get 'flat' or tiresome in taste when you smoke a lot."

HEALTHY NERVES! "I've smoked Camels for fourteen years, without a sign of upset nerves," says Bill Horn, former Gold Cup winner and outstanding figure in American motorboat racing. "I like Camels and they like me!"

ENERGY! "As a master builder, I have learned that any work that requires 'push' and 'pep' just naturally calls for Camels," comments Frazier Forman Peters. "Camels always give me new energy when I'm feeling tired and listless."

MILDNESS! "Every woman prefers a milder cigarette," says Miss Helene Bradshaw, an enthusiastic horsewoman. "I smoke Camels because they are the only cigarette I've ever found that is mild and pleasing to your throat."

VALUE! "I've visited Winston-Salem—seen how Camels are manufactured," says Charley Belden, who runs the big Pitchfork ranch in Wyoming. "They are made from costlier tobaccos. No wonder Camels have such a rich, cool flavor!"

REBUKES CHURCH YOUTH ON STAND FOR SOCIALISM

Dr. Hutchinson Urges Goal of Character Making.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Espousal of Socialism or other political ideas by church groups was criticised yesterday afternoon and last night before representative young people from more than 100 Protestant churches of many denominations in Chicago and suburbs. Such espousal, the youths were told, should be made by citizens and citizens' groups, but never by churches or church groups.

The rebuke was administered by the Rev. Dr. Ralph C. Hutchinson, president of Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa., as his addresses brought to a close a three day youth conference conducted in two centers under joint auspices of the Federal Council of Churches, the Chicago Church federation and the International Society of Christian Endeavor.

Dr. Hutchinson brought the south side section to a close in the afternoon at the Englewood Baptist church. At this point his criticism of socialistic leanings was impromptu. He closed the north section of the conference at the First Presbyterian church, Evanston, last night, by expanding his definition of the church's spiritual task which, he said, must avoid politics.

Challenges Socialistic Finding.

At the Englewood meeting, Dr. Hutchinson's address followed a report of findings of the youth discussion group devoted to the question of "A Christian Social Order." The report advocated socialistic doctrines and defined the New Deal as "an unsuccessful attempt to make the old system work," adding that all ills of the present socio-economic setup "are inherent in our present system of government."

Dr. Hutchinson sharply challenged the Englewood "findings." He warned the young people that they must help the churches to resume the minding of their real business. He explained that "systems" in themselves, like machines, are neither good nor bad, moral or immoral, and that their goodness or badness depends upon the character of the people who operate them.

Dr. Hutchinson declared the present plight of the churches is largely the result of trying to make people "good" by systems, "new deals," prohibitions or other superficial means instead of tending to the deeper business of transforming character.

Cites Russian Peasants' Status.

The status of the Russian peasant today is far worse under a supposedly benificent "system," he said, then he was under the czars. Economic injustice is more prevalent in Russia today than ever before, not necessarily because communism is bad but because communism or any other "ism," for that matter, does not have the power to make bad and selfish characters good, Dr. Hutchinson explained, adding that character transformation is the church's business, not politics!

Until three years ago, Dr. Hutchinson was the president of Teheren college, Teheran, Persia. To get to and from his mission college post it was necessary for him to traverse Russia and he told the youths, from first hand observation, about the social and economic conditions in that country, which now are "worse," he said, "than under the czars."

SURGEONS' CHIEF REPORTS CANCER IS ARRESTABLE

Sacramento, Cal., March 3.—(AP)—Cancer, even in its advanced stages, is an arrestable disease, Dr. Charles A. Dukes of Oakland, president of the American College of Surgeons, said here today in a bulletin published by the state health department.

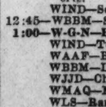
"MY COUGH DIDN'T LAST" —thanks to "MOIST-THROAT" METHOD!



"I coughed terribly," says Mr. John Wright, Columbus, O. "The first few spoonfuls of Pertussin brought relief. My cough didn't last long after that."

WHEN you catch cold, thousands of tiny moisture glands in your throat clog. Your throat dries. Infected mucus irritates. Tickling starts—then you cough. Pertussin "uncloys" those glands. It helps the throat glands to pour out their natural moisture. Sticky phlegm loosens—Relief. Get a bottle and start to use it now!

The Marine, Army, and Navy bands will play and other musical interludes will be provided by Howard Barlow's orchestra from the studios.

MARKETS DULL AS SECOND NEW DEAL YEAR ENDS

Traders Keep Eyes on Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3. — Tomorrow, the second anniversary of the inauguration of President Roosevelt, will find the stock market floundering pricewise about two-thirds of the way up between the level it occupied at the beginning of the New Deal régime and the peak of its so-called "prosperity" drive reached on Feb. 5 of last year.

Measured by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S average of fifty representative issues, the market closed yesterday at 83.97. On March 4, 1933, this average stood at 50.50. The high for the two year period was 98.27.

Averages Vary Little.

Practically speaking, the average has been hovering uncertainly around this level since early last summer, having varied no more than three or four points in either direction in eight months or more. During the last week it oscillated within a radius of a point and wound up within a half point of where it started. The period has been one of utter stagnation, with professionals contributing what little activity there was and the rank and file generally adhering to the sidelines, watchfully waiting for something to turn up.

Most of the watching is done with one eye on Washington—as it has been ever since the New Deal began to function. Brokers agree, in fact, that all of the improvement in market prices has been due to the various inflationary acts of the administration. By the same token, they concede that the prolonged period of hesitancy has been very largely in the nature of a wait for the President to pull another rabbit out of the New Deal hat.

New Deal Gets Reverses.

As time goes on without the trick being turned, the market's uncertainties seem to increase. The past week or so has been a period of unusual confusion due to the chaotic conditions at Washington growing out of the congressional revolt against White House dictation. Many observers are convinced that the New Deal is definitly on the defensive and that the breach is due to widen unless something is done forthwith to save the day for the administration.

The reverses suffered through the Weirton and soft coal case decisions aimed at the NRA, the defeat of the world court in congress, the TVA upset in the Alabama court proceeding, and finally the defeat in the senate on the prevailing wage provision of the relief bill all have combined to make the speculative fraternity wonder if the New Deal will be able to make any further headway in its unique schemes for reviving business and restoring prosperity or to resurrect any of the various ones cast aside.

Threat to Railroads.

Not the least of the recent items making for market community confusion was the warning of Jesse Jones, head of the RFC, that railroads unable to carry their fixed charges from their own revenues should be reorganized—a warning which many holders of shares in lines to be affected found difficulty in squaring with the chairman's repeated assurances that railroads in difficulty would be given all necessary help. The revised remarks brought fresh heavy selling into the carrier group and sent a number of hard hit issues bumping to new low ground.

Trade reports of the week disclosed that business in general has changed little since the Supreme court's gold decision, so long looked forward to as the one thing needed to give conditions a much needed fillip.

Rail Trafic Lower.

The steel industry has dropped further. Railroad trafic has declined slightly. Electric production has not come up quite to the seasonal rate. The Federal Reserve bank reports retail trade in this district as rather under seasonal for February, and, allowing for price differences, not quite up to a year ago. Chain store sales also were down and wholesale trade was slower.

The implications of less employment and lower pay rolls were accompanied by a bureau of labor report of another gain in wholesale commodity prices, of a rise of retail food prices, and a prediction of a further sharp gain in food prices in the near future.

London Calm Despite Sharp Sterling Drop

LONDON, March 3.—(AP)—The spectacular slump of the paper pound against the dollar and the franc and other gold currencies was regarded with equanimity today in financial and trade circles despite the fact it fell off 8 cents in two days against the dollar and slumped to 71.64 francs in Paris.

It was pointed out that the selling movement comes entirely from continental speculators who were unsettled first by the crash of the pepper market in Mincing lane and then by political and election talk.

Pull Money from London.

These speculators have withdrawn balances from their banks which the money market described as "bad money." It comes here temporarily and is taken out when better interest rates can be obtained elsewhere or when something happens to upset its owners.

While the slump in the pound continues to make its external value less, traders and exporters refused to worry because the internal value is maintained.

The official stabilization fund which the chancellor of the exchequer frequently has stated is intended only to iron out undue fluctuations, came into play Friday and Saturday, when the sterling franc and the sterling dollar rates flopped.

Demand for Gold.

Ever since the gold clause decision in the United States there has been a steadily increased demand for gold and, with sterling weakening on gold currencies, continental interests have been scrambling for the precious metal at a big premium, resulting in the highest price ever reached [$35.37] on Saturday's market.

The dollar follows in the wake of gold currencies and marks up an almost daily appreciation out of proportion to the business done. Fears of devaluation are said to be one cause of continental anxiety. Much depends upon the future action of American authorities.

READING SHOWS $5,632,053 PROFIT FOR YEAR CLOSED

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—The Reading company reports current assets of $13,709,843 and current liabilities of $9,231,750 at the end of 1934, compared with $12,090,090 and $7,816,891, respectively, at the close of 1933. Cash amounted to $4,131,365, against $3,080,287. In the year the long-term debt was reduced $1,551,446 to $134,740,621.

Of the total railway operating revenues of $53,078,431, the movement of coal returned $27,542,428, the income account shows. Revenue from passenger trafic was $2,958,625, compared with $2,872,679 in 1933. Net income was $5,632,053 after charges and taxes, a decrease of $1,033,469 from the $6,715,522 in 1933.

The company states that it did not buy or construct any new equipment in 1934. It expended, however, $3,994,570 for heavy repairs to locomotives and freight and coal cars. Sixty locomotives and 1,493 freight cars were among the equipment retired for obsolescense or inadequacy. Restoration of the 10 per cent reduction in wages will increase its pay roll by approximately $2,700,000 annually, the company announced.

Chicago District Makes Best Pennsy Safety Record

Philadelphia, Pa., March 3.—(AP)—Perfect employé safety records were made in 1934 by 26 operating units of the Pennsylvania railroad system, the company announced today. In these subdivisions not a single reportable accident to an employé occurred during a total of 10,634,957 man hours of work. The best record for an entire operating region was made by the western region, with headquarters at Chicago. The employés worked a total of 38,135,844 man hours, sustaining an average of only 4.12 accidents per million man hours of work.

Week's Output of Autos Reaches High Mark of Year

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—[Special.]—Automobile and truck production last week in the United States and Canada continued its upward trend to 83,899 units, compared with 82,541 in the preceding week. The total was the high mark for the year to date, according to Cram's Reports, Inc.

Oklahoma Natural Gas to Buy $370,670 of Bonds

New York, March 3.—The Chase National bank, trustee, has notified holders of Oklahoma Natural Gas corporation first 6 per cent bonds, series "A," that it will receive tenders for the sale to it, at 104 and interest, of sufficient bonds to exhaust the sum of $370,670.

GRAINS ADVANCE SLIGHTLY, BUT TRADE IS LIGHT

Many Uncertainties Among Traders.

New political uncertainties, advancing gold prices and puzzling foreign exchange movements, coupled with confirmation of damage done to growing wheat by storms a week earlier, dominated trading in grains on the Chicago Board of Trade last week.

Prices moved over a narrow course, but managed to rise slightly, although speculative activity was so small that trends were inconclusive. Wheat and corn advanced about a cent a bushel each, while oats and rye turned in small fractional upturns.

Weather Stronger Factor.

Weather news became more pronounced as a market factor, although the season is not yet far enough advanced for crop "scares" to have much influence. The condition of the crop in sections of the Texas panhandle, western Oklahoma and western Kansas is said to be worse than that last year which witnessed a devastating drouth. The state of Kansas is in much better condition as a whole than in 1934.

While the extent of actual crop damage by dust storms and alternate warm and cold weather is not yet known, nearly 7 million acres are reported in a precarious state. Moreover, with United States' visible stocks of wheat decreasing at a rate of about 3,000,000 bushels weekly, breadstuff supplies can be meager by May.

Situation Is Changed.

Should crop losses occur again this year they will probably exert a more profound influence on the market than in 1934. Last year liberal surpluses remained. This year that situation does not exist. Domestic subsoil moisture deficiency has multiplied in winter wheat areas while similar shortages are becoming pronounced in large districts of the American and Canadian spring wheat territory.

Efforts of the Agricultural Adjustment administration to obtain more power from congress, continued hearings on the commodity exchange regulation bill, and a move in the Canadian parliament toward putting the government into the grain business through a grain board which would control all marketing, added new political frowns to furrow the brows of harassed grain traders.

Range of Prices.

The range of principal grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade last week, and comparisons with the previous Saturday, follow:

Wheat.	High.	Low.	Close—Mar. 2.	Close—Feb. 23.
May	$0.98¼	$0.96¼	$0.97⅝	$0.97

Rye—
May	$0.65½	$0.63½	$0.65½	$0.64
July	.63⅝	.62⅜	.65	.63⅞

Season's range — May, 95¾@61⅞c; July, 80½@62c; September, 70½@62½c.

Corn Receipts Increase.

Receipts of corn from the country have been moderately enlarged, a development attributed to arrival of tax time and approach of the germinating period, which makes country elevators less anxious to hold the cereal because of possible deterioration.

Visible supplies of oats are expected to show a larger decrease this month, as a heavy distribution for seed probably will be made.

REPORT NATIONS SEEK TO RESTORE CHINESE FINANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 3.—The financial difficulties of China, which are due mainly to the fact that its currency is attached to silver, which is advancing in price, are being discussed by the governments of the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France, it is learned in London tonight.

At the instance of the Chinese government there have been meetings in Shanghai of Chinese and foreign bankers at which proposals have been outlined by China for possible loans from abroad. The practicability of these proposals is doubted by the British whose government has entered into the matter with the desire to see that any assistance to China is on as broad an international basis as possible. There have been some exchanges of view between the ambassadors to Washington, Paris and Tokio.

It is denied that the British are interesting themselves in the subject with a view to counterbalancing any effects Japan may have made in the talks with the Chinese government. Japan's participation in any scheme to safeguard Chinese currency, it is pointed out, is essential.

Japanese Reported Resentful.

TOKIO, March 4.—[Monday]—(AP)—Japanese newspapers quoted anonymous officials today as saying the government is seriously disturbed and somewhat resentful of London reports that Great Britain is sounding out the United States, France, and Japan on the question of giving joint financial assistance to China. Responsible government officials, however, said official information was lacking and declined to indicate how Japan would receive such overtures.

MORE OWNERS GIVE REPORT ON STOCK HOLDINGS

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—The following reports of holdings of stocks have been filed with the New York Stock exchange by officers, directors and principal stockholders of listed companies in compliance with the securities and exchanges act of 1934:

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO.—Edgar B. Stein, director, held 5,187 capital shares directly and half interest in 7,774 shares in joint account with wife, Edith R. Stein, on Jan. 31 after selling 100 from personal account.

ARMOUR & CO.—Elisha Walker, director, held 100 common direct, 18,000 common and 5,000 shares $6 cumulative convertible prior preferred through partnership on Dec. 31 after selling 300 of $6 cumulative convertible preferred in December, and 4,420 in November out of partnership.

LOEW'S, INC.—J. Robert Rubin, director, held no stock outright on Dec. 31, but had 7,288 of 7,300 shares of a holding company, which sold 500 common shares in December; bought 500 and sold 1,500 in November.

WEATHER, SPECIAL SALES AID RETAIL TRADE IN CHICAGO

Warm weather during the latter half of last week and special sales at some of the larger stores gave a better tone to Chicago's retail trade, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Spotty trade in the wholesale field was attributed to the adverse influence of proposals before congress and legislatures, it reported.

While the usual Easter buying appears slower than usual this year because of the lateness of the holiday, the warmer weather has stimulated buying of spring clothing and other essentials, the association said. Buyers in the wholesale field are reported as more wary of making long commitments while various legislative bodies are considering measures inimical to business.

Surface, elevated, and motor coach lines all report passenger trafic well ahead of a year ago, reflecting heavier employment, greater activity among consumers, and a heavier list of visitors in the city, the association said.

VANDERLIP BOND GROUP APPROVES PARAMOUNT PLAN

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—The Paramount Publix corporation bondholders' protective committee, of which Frank A. Vanderlip is chairman, announced today that it had approved the plan for reorganization of the corporation modified recently in accordance with suggestions made by the federal court. The plan has been approved also by the protective committee for stockholders of Paramount Publix and bondholders of the Paramount Broadway corporation, which also is affected by the proposals.

The Vanderlip committee represents holders of Paramount-Famous-Lasky 6 per cent bonds due in 1947 and Paramount Publix corporation 20 year 5½ per cent bonds due in 1950.

Housewives Use Average of 600 Pounds of Steel

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Housewives in the United States own and use an average of 600 pounds of steel in their homes, according to an estimate by the American Iron and Steel institute. This shows that the total weight of iron and steel now in service in house furnishings and housekeeping equipment is 15 billion pounds, exclusive of furnaces, automobiles, and plumbing fixtures, indicating that housewives have become important direct consumers of steel.

U. S. TREASURY PLANS EXCHANGE AT LOW INTEREST

Washington, D. C., March 3.—(AP)—The treasury tonight proposed to exchange an offering of 20-25 year bonds bearing 2⅞ per cent interest for $1,850,000,000 of Liberty Fourth 4¼'s, called for redemption on April 15, and an issue of 5 year 1⅝ per cent notes to be offered in exchange for $528,000,000 of treasury 2½ per cent notes which mature on March 15. It was estimated that the swap would save about $30,000,000 in interest annually.

The rate of interest on the note issue is the lowest ever attempted on five year paper, while the bond rate is the lowest in the memory of the treasury's oldest employés with the exception of some special bonds bearing the note circulation privilege, and a few postal savings bonds.

The new bonds will be dated March 15, 1935, and will bear interest from that date, payable semi-annually. They will mature March 15, 1960, but may be redeemed at the option of the treasury on and after March 15, 1935. The notes will be dated March 15, 1935, bearing interest from that date, payable semi-annually. They will mature March 15, 1940, and will not be subject to call for redemption before maturity.

ST. LOUIS OPENS BARGE SEASON ON MISSISSIPPI

St. Louis, March 3.—(AP)—With the roar of mechanical equipment substituted for the color and pageantry of another generation, spring came to Ol' Man River today as the first federal barge of the season slipped its moorings and headed upstream.

The barge, bound for Galena, the Illinois river and Peoria, opened another season on the upper Mississippi that has cast overboard the legends of the river heyday in its fight for restored prominence as a trafic way. Service to Chicago will begin March 13, and to the Twin Cities April 1.

Today's string of federal barge tows, with their mechanically loaded cargoes of coffee and sugar, was a far cry from the day 110 years ago when the steamboat Virginia first navigated the rapids of the upper Mississippi and tied up at Galena. Since that day the river has gone through a period when it was the main stem of the nation's transportation system, only to fade with desertion as shippers chose the rapidly developing railroads. Now it is trying for a revival.

Profit Basis Better in '34, Bank Reports

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Evidence of progress in reëstablishing the manufacturing and merchandising industries on a profitable basis was reported by the National City bank of New York in its March review today.

Total profits of 840 companies, less deficits, showed an increase from $471,000,000 in 1933 to $673,000,000 in 1934, or 43 per cent, it reported.

"The combined net worth of these companies as of Jan. 1, 1934, was approximately $13,491,000,000, and earnings are calculated after allowance for taxes and interest, but before dividends," the bank reported. "This ratio of earnings to net worth was 5.0 per cent."

Rails Lose Again.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that class 1 railroads in 1933 were in the "red" $13,801,000 after all charges, and showed a still greater deficit of $28,600,000 in 1934, with the December figures estimated.

"This makes the third year during which the railroad system as a whole has operated at a deficit, the cumulative total of which now amounts to $193,000,000," the survey said.

"While some particularly favored companies have been able to operate at a profit, in general the $12,000,000,000 of shareholders' capital invested in railroads has not only earned nothing since 1931 but has been partly dissipated in meeting necessary expenses."

It was shown for a group of 40 public utility operating companies supplying electricity, gas, and other services that a decline of 11.3 per cent was registered in their combined net income last year, following a decline of 16.1 per cent the preceding year.

Gains in First Half Year.

"The sharp rise in manufacturing and trading company profits for 1934 as a whole is due entirely to gains made in the first half year, as profits in the latter half fell below those of the preceding year," the bank said.

A tabulation of the quarterly net profits of 200 industrial corporations showed a net of $103,386,000 in the first quarter of last year, against a loss of $31,793,000 a year earlier. In the second quarter gains were 85.8 per cent above the gains for the same quarter of 1933, but there was a drop in profits in 1934 under 1933 of 28.3 per cent in the third quarter and 14.2 per cent in the last quarter, leaving a total gain of 62 per cent in 1934 profits over 1933.

U. S. TRADE GROUP FIGHTS PROPOSED AAA CHANGES

Washington, D. C., March 3.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today aligned itself against the proposed amendments to the agricultural adjustment act. The agricultural committee of the chamber recommended that:

"1. No further authority be given to impose licenses upon distributors or processors of those basic commodities which have already been brought under a program of production control.

"2. The secretary of agriculture should have authority to examine such books, papers, records, accounts, etc., as are relevant to the reports requested by the secretary, and confined to the parties at interest."

The committee report said the proposed amendments now before congress "if enacted into law would give the secretary of agriculture extensive power to license processors and handlers of all agricultural commodities."

February Failures Fewer Than Month and Year Ago

Business failures in February numbered 1,005, compared with 1,184 in January, and 1,049 in the same month last year, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet.

STEEL INDUSTRY LEVELS OFF TO RATE OF 48 PCT.

Operations Are More Stable, Says Review.

Steel operations are becoming more stable and much of the weakness encountered in the industry recently is believed to have been overcome, inasmuch as the rate declined only 2 points last week to 48 per cent of productive capacity, say the magazine Steel.

It now appears that iron and steel consumption is moving on a fairly level plane, with structural and railroad work in the spring months to be a determining factor in the volume of business for the first half of the year, the journal continues.

So far this year the rate is 13 points above the average for 1934, when there was a 12 point gain over 1933. Pig iron production in February, with a total of 1,615,207 gross tons, was 9.2 per cent above January and was the highest since last June.

Finished Shipments Maintained.

Shipments of finished steel, pig iron, and coke are well maintained, although pressure for deliveries from the automobile industry has relaxed, the magazine continues. Automobile production continues to gain slowly, being 84,000 cars last week and bringing the total for February to about 325,000 units, compared with 293,000 in January. March output is expected to show further slight improvement.

"There is a strong feeling in the industry that if the country can steer clear of labor dissensions iron and steel demand will become insistent enough to build up a new peak before summer," the journal says.

"The Nields decision clearly renders NRA's section 7A inapplicable to the actual processes of iron and steel manufacture; it also establishes the legality and effectiveness of employé representation plans.

Organized Labor in Minority.

"There is no doubt the great majority of the industry's employés are members of such plans and cold to organized labor, the prospect being that there will be no noteworthy change in labor relations. The only dark spot in the automobile picture is at the Fisher Body Cleveland plant, although there is no prospect of a general tie-up in the automobile industry."

Operations last week were unchanged at 37 per cent of capacity in Pittsburgh, 53 in Chicago, 100 in Detroit, 63 in New England, and 55½ in Birmingham. Wheeling dropped 7 points to 78 per cent, Cleveland 5 to 74, Buffalo 5 to 40, eastern Pennsylvania 1½ to 29½, and Youngstown 3 to 50 per cent.

Extension of prices for the second quarter has not been followed by any general commitments for the period, except by automobile makers, the review says. Nut and bolt prices have been advanced 5 per cent. Scrap prices have dropped sharply, steel scrap composite being off 42 cents at $11.16 a ton, the lowest since the middle of December. The iron and steel price composite is down 8 cents at $32.42 a ton, while finished steel holds at $54 a ton.

Chrysler Sets Production Record for a February

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—The Chrysler corporation established last month a new high record for a February by producing and shipping 80,277 cars. The previous record, made last year, was 54,516 units. Total shipments of Chrysler-made cars for the first two months this year were 163,153 units, an increase of 97.3 per cent over the corporation's previous record for the two month period.

Paramount Publix Corporation

BONDHOLDERS PROTECTIVE COMMITTEE

Notice of the Adoption and Approval of Plan of Reorganization

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned Committee has adopted and approved a Plan of Reorganization of Paramount Publix Corporation including (as a part thereof) a Plan of Reorganization of Paramount Broadway Corporation, dated November 28, 1934, as modified by Statement of Modifications dated February 4, 1935. A copy of the Plan has been lodged with the Depositary.

The Plan has been proposed and considered pursuant to the provisions of Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act, and on February 14, 1935, the Court made an order in which, among other things, it found that the Plan "is fair and equitable and does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders and is feasible."

Copies of the Plan and of the order of the Court are being mailed by Paramount, under direction of the Court, to the holders of record of all claims based on Paramount Bonds including holders of Certificates of Deposit of this Committee and in addition the Committee is sending a letter to all such persons giving further information in connection with the action of the Committee.

All Depositors who shall not notify the Committee in writing of their dissent from the Plan or who do not withdraw their Bonds from deposit within the period of thirty days from March 4, 1935, to wit, by April 3, 1935, and all holders of Bonds who, following the date of this notice, shall deposit such Bonds with this Committee, shall be conclusively deemed irrevocably and finally to have assented to the Plan and shall be bound by all the terms and provisions of the Plan without further act or notice.

If any Depositor desires to withdraw his Bonds from the Deposit Agreement, the Court is to determine, upon application of such holder upon three days' notice in writing to the Committee, and to the Depositary, what, if any, charges are to be paid by such holder upon such withdrawal to meet the expenditures which the Committee has made in the protection of the interests of depositing bondholders.

If the Plan is confirmed in the pending reorganization proceedings, the deposited bonds will, pursuant to a Court order in such proceedings, be relieved of any charges for the expenses, obligations and compensation of the Committee.

The Committee believes that holders of non-deposited bonds can best evidence their assent to the Plan by depositing their Bonds with the Committee. Letters of transmittal for this purpose may be obtained from the Secretary.

The Committee shall not be under any obligation, legal or equitable, express or implied, to any holder of Bonds who shall not have deposited his Bonds under the Deposit Agreement, or to any other person whomsoever other than the holders of Certificates of Deposit issued in accordance with the terms of the Deposit Agreement.

PIPE LINE PLAN SEEN AS BLOW TO ILLINOIS MINERS

Dirksen Sends Protest to Secretary Ickes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The proposed construction of gas pipe lines from the Texas Panhandle to St. Louis and Detroit through federal public works financing is under fire on the grounds that it would throw thousands of Illinois coal miners out of work.

In a letter to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, also PWA chief, Representative Everett M. Dirksen [Rep., Ill.], said that employment of men on the pipe line would be temporary, but displacement of jobs for miners would be permanent.

Means Loss to Illinois.

"If the report is correct that the proposed lines will be able to deliver 200 million cubic feet of gas daily," Dirksen stated in his letter, "it would mean the displacement of 8,000 tons of coal every day, or the destruction of $12,000 per day in mine wages and the further destruction of more than $6,000 per day in railroad wages.

"Considering the distress that already abounds in the coal fields and the transportation centers of Illinois, I want to register my protest against this proposal."

Dirksen said he did not wish to appear as standing in the way of progress, but that there were more coal miners in Illinois alone than the whole number of persons who receive employment from the natural gas industry throughout the entire United States.

Aggravates Jobs Situation.

"You are doubtless aware of the fact that we have 22 counties in Illinois which produce coal," Dirksen continued. "The relief burden in these counties has been a heavy one because of the general distress in the coal industry.

"There is ample hope for the gradual rehabilitation of the coal industry, but if government funds are to be loaned for the construction of gas lines into areas where a cheap and abundant supply of fuel is now available it will mean little more than a further aggravation of the unemployment conditions which now obtain in our state."
